

THE PHILADELPHIA Real Estate Record AND BUILDERS' GUIDE.

[ENTERED AT THE PHILADELPHIA POST OFFICE AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.]

VOL. II.—NO. 1.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, JANUARY 10, 1887.

TO ADVERTISERS WHO DESIRE TO MAKE SURE OF GETTING VALUE FOR THEIR OUTLAY.

What is an advertisement? It is a public announcement of a private or personal matter the value of which to the advertiser is determined by the number of announcements secured. In THE RECORD an advertisement is printed over 100,000 separate times in a single day, sent in over 100,000 different directions, and read by perhaps 300,000 different persons.

THE RECORD announces every day its actual circulation. The circulation of newspapers is generally concealed from the public and only estimated or guessed at by the advertiser. In nearly all cases reputed circulation is largely in excess of actual circulation, overstatements being greatly to the interest of newspaper publishers. For this reason the figures given by newspaper advertising agencies, based on guess or hearsay, are entirely unreliable.

The following compact table, verified by the affidavits of the proprietor and employees of THE RECORD, shows at a glance to persons who have paid for space in its advertising columns precisely what they have paid for.

There is no other establishment in Philadelphia where advertising publicity is sold which measures out to the purchaser in precise quantity and quality the commodity he buys, for the sufficient business reason that no other establishment has so much to sell or sells so much for the same money.

Proprietor of Phila. "Record."

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, JAN. 10, 1887.

WITH THIS number the REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS' GUIDE enters the second year of its existence. To establish a journal of any type in these days of superabundant literature is no easy task. The cold discrimination of an age whose standard of merit is not only exceedingly high but even hyper-critical, makes the task doubly difficult. A journal to succeed must bear the imprint of worth and its merit and usefulness in the field it is intended to fill, must be tangible factors or individuality is lost and success impossible. The people of America appreciate independence in journalism. They also despise the toadying, sycophantic, time-serving, monopoly worshipping journals who have eternal axes to grind and no opinions save those of their masters.

The idea advanced in the early part of last year, when the REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS' GUIDE was started, that Philadelphia, with its vast area and building enterprise, its wonderful and continuous growth, its millions of capital and thousands of energetic business men, would not or could not support a journal devoted to its real estate and building interests was regarded by the proprietor as pure and simple folly and a libel upon the intelligence, enterprise and liberality of the men who are practically re-erecting this great city. That other attempts had failed was no reason that failure should have been foreshadowed for the REAL ESTATE RECORD, and the best evidence of the correctness of these deductions is the fact that it enters its second year with a patronage equal to its wants, the merited appreciation of its readers and the esteem of the press and the public. The growth of the REAL ESTATE RECORD has been a steady and natural one. Sensational methods of forcing public attention and favor have been studiously avoided, and its rapid growth, although somewhat phenomenal, is entirely consistent with its merit and usefulness. It must continue to prosper so long as it adheres to its present upright, outspoken independence and careful purpose to serve the interests it represents; failing in these it does not merit success.

A large share of the success of the REAL ESTATE RECORD is due to the warm and earnest friends it made from the start, in men of broad mental vision and earnest purpose whose encouraging words and hearty welcome more than outweighed the discouragements which are always plenty. To the daily and Sunday press of this city,—free from jealousy, a newcomer is always warmly welcomed and no youngster ever tottered to an early grave through unfair play from them—we owe a debt of gratitude, and we thank them for the numerous kindly manifestations of good will and wishes.

Without the usual plethora of great promises we make our advent into our second year with the feeling that we are not only capable of filling the bill, but filling it to the satisfaction of our readers, our friends and ourselves.

The total cost of the buildings put up last year in Chicago is estimated at $25,000,000. The quantity of brick made is estimated at from 400,000,000 to 475,000,000 bricks. The excess of consumption of last year over 1885 is put at 50,000,000. Prices ranged from $6.50 to $8.00 per thousand. The highest anticipations are indulged in for the coming year. Real estate is also improving in value and authorities there estimate the improvement at 15 per cent. over that of 1885. No speculation is apparent, but full prices are everywhere asked and paid. The year's business shows an increase of $30,000,000 in real estate operations over 1885. The demand for property sold by the acre has greatly improved within the past year. Property in the central portion of the city is in good demand.

The Real Estate Board of Chicago has been in successful operation over three years. The membership fee to agent members is $100 for the first 150 members and $200 thereafter. The annual dues of agent members are $30 and for associate members $50 is the fee until the Board numbers 150 agent members and then the price is $100. The annual dues of associate members are $20. The committee on valuations is composed of five experts who were appointed for a year through whom applications for appraisals must be made. The outside public is making liberal use of its services as they are found to be equitable and just. It is probable that the Courts will accept the appraisals of this Committee.

The valuations are charged for at the rate of $15 to $100 after which 50 cents per $1,000 is charged. The services of this committee are of great value to real estate owners. The rate per cent. for leasing residences and stores from one to three years is the same as in New York. For ground leases where the term does not exceed 50 years the charge is 2½ per cent., on the total rent for the first ten years. Ground leases exceeding 50 years pay 2½ per cent on the appraised value of the property at the date of making the lease. For negotiating and making the leases the agent is entitled in addition to commissions to the amount expended for advertising and the sum of $2. For renting and collecting within the business limitations of the city, where the premises are occupied by one tenant the rate is 5 per cent on rentals under $1,000, and 2½ per cent. when exceeding that sum. When occupied by more than one tenant, the rate is 5 per cent. up to $5,000, and 2½ per cent. thereafter. The commission for selling property to the amount of $3,000, or less, is 5 per cent.; to the amount of $10,000 it is 5 per cent. on the first $3,000 and 2½ per cent. for the excess; on a sale exceeding $10,000 it is 2½ per cent. These rates are not compulsory, but advisory.

The Dover Book was started during the year 1886, and now has a thousand names of real estate owners, dead or alive wherever there is a dower interest. This book saves much time in the examination of titles by showing dower interests in any piece of real estate in Chicago and Cook Co., certificates are issued by the Board for 50 cents, and each certificate shows all dower interests in the real estate involved.

A great deal of discussion has been had in the Board, concerning the proposition of a form of contract to owners in giving property to agents for sale, the particulars of which are too extended to receive due notice in this issue.

THERE seems to be a growing consensus of public opinions as to the desirability and in fact necessity of a better water supply. The fact that there is only one company that has the capital and the enterprise and the plan by which we can be supplied with water does not make that company a monopoly nor render its proposition any the less commendable. Water supplies are very scarce. Even Paris has but one and London itself has but one system and while New York has two or three sources of supply from a purely engineering standpoint it has but one which is practically available. Philadelphia has two or three alternatives. It might dig wells for a few miles along the Delaware as they do along the Rhine, or we could rely on the Schuylkill supply with all its discouraging features, or we could seek temporary relief in one or more of the near-by streams but the only commendable plan yet presented is the one which has become known as the South Mountain plan. The best engineers have pronounced in favor of it and so have all the leading manufacturers and merchants in Philadelphia. A meeting was held on Tuesday by the Councils' Water Committee to hear the friends of this project explain some of its details. The representatives of the Citizens' Committee who have heretofore been opposed to it were present and after hearing the explanations made so far withdrew their opposition as to say they were not opposed to it and would attentively consider the representations which had been made. The petition in favor of this source of water supply which was presented by Councilman Wm. M. Smith, was signed by nearly 250 business and professional men and firms, from Geo. B. Roberts down. Several hundred million dollars are represented in these names. Letters were read from Dr. Cresson and Dr. Leeds in reference to the Schuylkill water. Dr. Cresson made the very important statement that in his opinion the Schuylkill river supply cannot be relied upon. Mr. Sam'l S. Hollingsworth one of the counsel of the Water Company explained that the Company's proposition involves a lease of the works for 50 years, and that a yearly rental of $500,000 will be paid from the completion of the works until the year 1910. After that year and until the termination of the lease the company will pay the city one half of the gross receipts, less $2,000,000 annually. During the first three years $5,000,000 will be expended in permanent improvements for the storage and distribution of water. Of this $2,000,000 will be expended as soon as the company has possession of the works and the balance at the rate of a half million dollars every six months. The company promises to expend $6,000,000 as Councils shall direct in further improving the system of distribution. The project of the company is to construct three conduits. The first will be built within three years and will cost $11,000,000 and will extend from Point Pleasant on the Delaware to the subsiding reservoir in the city. In twenty-eight years from this date the company binds itself to build a second conduit of the same capacity and cost and three years before the termination of the lease it will build a third conduit at a cost of $19,000,000 with a capacity equal to the first two. These propositions involve the expenditure of $52,000,000. The rental will amount to $68,000,000. The total expenses for the fifty years are estimated at $120,000,000. The total receipts for 50 years are estimated at $236,000,000 leaving a profit of $116,000,000 to pay $31,000,000 of running expenses and $40,000,000 of interest. The company figures out its net profit at $45,000,000 but the city comes into possession of the entire property at the close of the fifty years' lease.

This important matter will come before the Select Council Committee perhaps three or four times and the matter will, as soon as possible be formally presented to Councils. Councilmen may rest assured that there will be no public indignation meetings held by the citizens should they decide to authorize the leasing of the works. The only possible grounds for opposition to the proposed lease of the Water Works is as to the matter of distribution. There are some who would like to retain control of the streets and the water-pipes beneath them. The only answer to this is that no company could be found who would be willing to invest its millions where the other contracting party could not make a contract for longer time than one year. If this company brought the water to the city reservoirs and no farther, it might be subjected to annoyance and interference by some future municipal body. The only thing the city can do is to place the supply of water in the hands of any competent party it can find to do it. The city has not got the money to do it itself and never will have. Philadelphians ought not to have such love for the Schuylkill as to pledge themselves to drink its impurities for the next generation or two. This scheme is one which commends itself to our manufacturing interests especially. It involves the tearing up, if we rightly understand it, of all the old pipe that was put down in the older section of the city many years ago.

The project is in short to furnish not only the water but the pipe to carry it in abundant supply and the reservoirs to hold it and all the machinery necessary to guarantee beyond the possibility of a doubt, that the city of Philadelphia shall have for the next one hundred years at least all the water it can use in even the most wasteful way.

The extremes of fortune are presented in the cases of Mrs. Logan and Mrs. Gibson, one the widow of an eminent American General and Statesman, the other the poor but respected widow of a Philadelphia fireman, one husband the hero of many battles, the other the hero of a simple act of duty, falling in the front rank for duty's sake and without even the inspiring hope that his deed of bravery would ever receive a simple passing record. Mrs. Gibson like Mrs. Logan was bereft of all that woman in her wifely instincts holds most dear. The one was surrounded by warm sympathisers and influential friends, and all that the eminent qualities of the dead General demanded, was done to assuage the deep grief and irrevocable loss she experienced. The other a simple fireman's wife living in a home in keeping with the small pittance her husband earned, with young and helpless children to share her home, with grief as deep and cutting as was the other, received such comfort as a few poor well-meaning neighbors and relatives could give her. An appeal was made in the interest of both these good women. Thousands rolled in, in answer to the appeal for the General's widow, while only a few hundreds came to meet the urgent necessity of Mrs. Gibson and were it not for the generous weekly gift of an enterprising business man of this city, the outlook for fireman Gibson's wife and children would be a sad and dreary one.

There is nothing that appeals so strongly to the better natures of men and women than the realization of the wants of those rendered helpless by the death of brave men dying for duty's sake, and yet public sentiment cannot always be relied on, for in Gibson's case it was little better than failure.

It should be so constituted that appeals for help in cases of the Gibson type should not be necessary. Firemen should be pensioned for life if permanently injured, and if killed, their wives and children should be pensioned for a series of years at least. It reflects no credit upon the civilization of this ultra-civilized age that the helpless children of the men who are killed while in the service of the people of great cities should starve or become beggars.

A LAW was passed several years ago in the interest of the railroad companies of this state, making railroad ticket scalping a misdemeanor. It was entitled, an act to prevent imposition and fraud upon travelers, subsequently an amendment was passed, making it obligatory upon railroad companies to redeem all unused (in whole or part) tickets at the price paid by the holder minus the rate charged by the company from the point at which the ticket was purchased to the point where it was presented for redemption. The latter part of this law has always been repudiated by the companies for when a ticket is presented for redemption, it is met with the proposition to send it to the main office. This law is so absolutely a one-sided affair, that it is high time it was repealed. It is wrong in principle and bad in morals, it strikes at the sacred right of ownership and stamps the owner as incompetent to control that for which he has paid his money, beside which it often entails loss and annoyance upon the holder who should have the same untrammelled right to dispose of an unused railroad ticket as he has in the disposition of horse-car tickets, eating-saloon tickets, ball tickets, or even a bank check or negotiable note. The law is a pretty piece of tyranny and is a relief of the times when the Pennsylvania Railroad Company held a first mortgage upon the State, the Governor and both houses of the legislature.

Railroad ticket scalping as it is called, should be as legitimate as any other business and the cry made at the time the law against it was passed about impositions upon travelers, was done to hood-wink the public, for there had been a few cases of imposition practiced, but at the same moment the railroad companies had by discrimination and other illegal exactions imposed upon the people of the whole State.

Repeat the law against scalping, license the scalpers and exact the bond. It is high time the people had a chance, the railroad companies have been pampered and favored in everything so long, that they have made the people feel that their power is irresistible.

THE future manufacturing prospects of Philadelphia and other large Eastern manufacturing centres can be best guessed at by observing the rapid growth of cities and towns throughout the far West. Those who have lived east of the Alleghany Mountains, or even those who have not visited the Northwest for some time, would be surprised at the wonderful development of that great country, which apparently was devoid of any other natural resources excepting cyclones in summer and blizzards in winter. Within the past year or two railroads have penetrated all that region, and upwards of fifty towns have sprung into life, all stirred with an emulation to succeed. These are the centres of profitable agricultural communities. They are creating markets for the manufactured products of the East. They are preparing to add to the supply of our agricultural products, and in a few years what is now a sparsely settled section will become a thickly settled region, with its wealth, population and resources well known to the outside world.

RAILROAD accidents, especially in the United States, are of such rare occurrence that when they do occur they are the subject of wide discussion. The peculiarity of nearly all of the recent disasters has been that the fault was purely with the employees, that plain orders were violated or ignored, and that the engineers practically took the control of their trains in their own hands. It is intimated that the drunkenness of the engineer of the freight train which collided with the Chicago express in Ohio the other day was the cause of that disaster. The railway managers have reduced railway management to a very fine point, and if they can find engineers and flagmen and train dispatchers and signal station employees to do their plain duty, there will be no loophole for accidents. How seldom one hears of an accident from a defective road-bed, or defective brakes, or locomotive or cars? The system of inspection that is maintained on all roads is such that accidents from defective material are almost impossible. Yet the occasional occurrence of disasters from this cause serve to remind managers that they cannot be too careful or buy good material. The engineering talent which presides over our railway systems is responsible for the quality of iron and steel used. A few years ago, when accidents were so common, defective material was found to be the prime cause of many of the disasters. Those disasters led to the present careful system, which tests every car wheel, every axle and every piece of machinery before it leaves the shop. In some establishments car wheels are submitted to thirty different tests before they are passed. Even with all this care accidents will happen, and one of this kind is reported in the Springfield disaster.

RAILROAD building and operating is not as rosy a business as it might seem. During the past year forty-five railway companies, operating 7,678 miles of main line and representing a total capital of nearly $375,000,000 were sold under foreclosure and transferred to new owners. This means the wiping out of a large amount of railway capital, but the properties remain and are as valuable to the public as though they remained in the hands of their original owners. To the impartial observer it seems as though entirely too much railroad building was being indulged in. If the average of the past five years is a fair average we are certainly about to depart from it very widely. No less than 12,000 miles of main track will be built this year, if the fact that rails for that much mileage has already been purchased means anything. At the same time what this country can do and cannot do is a matter of guesswork. It is a mighty young Republican giant, and a few hard knock-downs do not seem to hurt it. Enterprise has been let loose like a roaring lion and the work done under this exciting stimulus will remain to be enjoyed by others at least, if not by the original builders. It is an old saying that "Fools build houses and wise men live in them." While this is by no means universally true there is a great deal of truth in it in regard to railroad building.

UNDER our new municipal charter and our new Mayor, our Real Estate Exchange will have an opportunity for doing some good in a variety of ways, which will not be apparent until the practical workings of that charter are under way. We have not been informed whether the Real Estate Exchange has got down to practical work yet, but if it has not, it would be well for it to do so and take a hand in devising improvements of a legislative character to be presented to the State Legislature. Our New York brothers are never asleep when the legislature is in session. They have half a dozen bills always on hand, and with the help of some advanced lawyers of that city, they are projecting some very radical legislation in regard to land transfers, and to dower and courtesy. New York will certainly take the lead. New York city has more interests at stake than any other city. We should at least keep our eye upon what is going on there, and a well-appointed committee of our Exchange should take up the whole question of building and real estate legislation. It might be much worse than it is, but certainly it might be much better. It is easy to rail at and find fault with our patched up legislation. We know that when the work of reforming it is done, it will require patience and great familiarity with all that has been done in the way of legislation for the past thirty years, and an intimate acquaintance with the requirements of the future. Among the measures which will come before the New York Legislature this winter, are several relating to the ownership of land and the transfer of title. A bill was passed by the Senate last winter, but it failed in the House. This legislation may be referred to a State Constitutional Convention which is to meet next summer. Another measure before that body is the providing for short forms for deeds and other legal instruments. The Land Transfer Reform Committee has endorsed the measure, the object of which is to get rid of the mass of verbiage now contained in legal documents effecting titles, mortgages and the like. Mr. David Dudley Field is the authority for the statement that over $100,000 are annually spent in New York for useless words in legal documents. It is not to be wondered at that all the legal fraternity of New York should rise up in their might, and call him cursed who suggests such a reformatory measure. It would be well for them to read what our Judge Arnold has to say on this point. He says, although not in our words, that the lawyers are cutting their own throats. They insist upon the simplest matters of business being lengthened out by the folio, and they multiply legal technicalities by the hundred, and expend their ability in devising how useless litigation can be prolonged, in order that they may keep in fees and—bread and butter. Judge Arnold gives a valuable hint to our lawyers, and it would be better for them if they would act upon it. Many of them will insist upon a continuance of the feudal customs in regard to the handling of real estate. The New Yorkers will no doubt cut this Gordian knot by a legislative act and let the people free. They have been tied down to verbiage long enough. If common sense were relied upon, there would not be much litigation. Business men are disgusted with the farcical litigation of Courts and settle their disputes outside as much as possible.

GOVERNOR PATTERSON in his recent message refers to the inequality existing between Real Estate and Personal Taxes in the following pithy way:

"The ineffectiveness and partiality of the laws for the taxation of personal property must be confessed by every unbiased student of our financial policy. Of the taxes raised throughout the Commonwealth for all purposes, both local and general, real estate contributes four-fifths, while its assessed value is only one-sixteenth greater than that of personal property. If our laws were competent to an exact and truthful assessment of the value of personal property it would without doubt equal and most likely largely exceed the value of the real estate. As a matter of fact, therefore, real property in this Commonwealth is burdened by taxation four times as heavily as personal property. If we should eliminate from this comparison the taxes paid by corporations, and for licenses and other privileges granted by the State, and consider only the taxes paid by individual citizens upon their possession, it would be found that the owner of real estate pays quite ten times greater tax upon his property than the owner of personal estate. This inequality is a flagrant and indefensible act of injustice. The burdens of government should be equally shared, or at least as nearly equal as human laws can contrive. Since our legislative policy is to tax property rather than persons, there can be no possible excuse for selecting the houses and farms of the poor people to bear ten times as much of the public burdens as personal property. If things and not persons are to be taxed, common equality would dictate that the aggregate of a man's possessions, irrespective of their kind, and simply according to their value, should bear the infliction.

THERE were 1459 wills entered to probate during 1886, an increase of seven over 1885, Register of Wills Kinsey, paid into the City Treasury as fees collected, $99,337.38 an increase of $6159.32, there were 1402 administrations granted and 1570 accounts filed, there were paid to the State $417,556.58 collected as collateral inheritance tax an increase of $13,328.68 over the previous year.

Communication.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 4th, 1887.
JOHN N. GALLAGHER, Esq.,
Proprietor REAL ESTATE RECORD:

DEAR SIR:—I have to acknowledge the receipt of a copy of your issue of December 20th for which I presume I am indebted to you, containing a marked copy of an article on "The So-called Bribery of Architects" and desire to thank you for the views therein expressed. I fully agree with you that any architect who accepts or receives a commission, donation, or any pecuniary benefit for using or recommending the use of any given material is guilty of dishonesty and unprofessional conduct. I also agree with you that this subject deserves the attention of all clients and the severest reprehension of all honorable men, and especially of journals representing building interests. Very respectfully,

A. B. MULLETT, Arch't.

Special Notice.

The Chicago branch of Messrs. Merchant & Co. has been removed from its former location, Nos. 182 and 184 East Kinzie street, and will hereafter occupy No. 202 Lake street, an unprecedented extension of their business having made this change necessary, in order to obtain more convenient and commodious quarters. Mr. V. Le Huray, who for the past three years, has been the New York manager of the firm, recently sailed for London, England, where he will permanently locate for the purpose of conducting the new office, which Messrs. Merchant & Co. will establish in that city. This is enterprise with a vengeance and we wish them in their new departure all the success that their energy and upright business methods deserve.

The Warren Ehret Roofing Company find that the magnificent growth of their business necessitates removal to more extensive quarters. They have consequently leased the premises 428 Market street, and will lease their present location on or about February 1st next. This firm carry an extensive assortment of roofing materials, besides being contractors for roofing. Their great facilities enable them to make contracts for the heaviest operations, with the assurance to the customer of the best work, at the lowest price. Artificial stone pavement has recently been added as a new feature of the firm's business.

Recent Decisions in Pennsylvania in Relation to Matters Concerning Real Estate.

Decided by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

A certificate of the separate acknowledgment of a married woman, although omitting to state that she delivered, as well as signed and sealed, the deed without compulsion, etc., is not invalid, if otherwise in the usual form, it is a substantial compliance with the statute, and therefore sufficient.

DEED.

When the interest of a judgment debtor in land is regularly divested by judicial sale on a valid bona fide judgment against him, the purchaser at such sale may lawfully subsequently sell and convey such land to the judgment debtor's wife, and her title cannot be overthrown, as in fraud of his creditors, without affirmative proof of such fraud.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

A lessor who has, by request of the tenant, made a deep excavation on the premises for a well, and left it uncovered and full of water, is not liable in damages for the death of the tenant's grandchild, between two and three years of age, who, visiting the tenant with his mother, and by her left in charge of an aunt acquainted with the premises, strays away and is drowned in the well.

MORTGAGE.

A mortgage given by the grantee of land, and accepted by the grantor in furtherance of the specific purpose of putting the land out of the reach of the grantor's creditors, will not be enforced. Courts will not relieve a party from the consequences of his intentional fraudulent act.

In such a case, equity will leave the parties in the position where they have knowingly and wilfully placed themselves. Public policy forbids the intervention of the courts to relieve a fraudulent actor.

A release of the land by the mortgagee, in accordance with a decree in partition proceedings, upon payment of the owelty to him, does not prevent the mortgagee from afterwards recovering the mortgage debt from the co-tenant to whom the land was allotted.

VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

Where an agreement for sale of land is fully executed in writing, the vendor thereby assumes the character of a trustee, and holds the legal title in trust for the vendee, under the terms and conditions of the contract. The trust thus implied is of the same character as if it had been expressed in the agreement.

F. R. SHATTUCK,
Attorney at Law,
58 South Third St., Phila.

—A writer in an English architectural journal suggests the following rule for finding out the best proportions between the height, length and width of rooms: Given the width and length, the height equals the sum of half the width and the square root of the length. Thus, a room 16 feet long and 14 feet wide, would have to be made 7-4-11 feet high. This rule is said to give pleasing proportions for rooms, and its adoption to result in bringing the angle formed by the ceiling and wall just within the angle of vision of a person standing in the center of the room without raising the eyes. The rule can, obviously, be observed only for one room on each floor, unless the floors of different rooms are not to be on the same level—a method of construction at once difficult and expensive, except in the case of small rooms located in ells or extensions of a house.

An offer was made by J. A. Bailey of New York for the Lincoln market house building on Broad and Fairmount Avenue. It is intended if it is secured to transform it into an amusement house. If he cannot purchase it he is willing to lease it.

LINCOLN MARKET has been reported purchased by a New York syndicate for $200,000. The property has a frontage on Broad street of 110 ft, 7 1/2 in., and on Fairmount avenue of 126 ft. It is to be altered into a dime museum, and for other amusements.

TWENTY-SIX new dwelling houses were built in West Chester during the past year. Among them were a two and a-half story brick house by Isaac N. Haines, formerly of Oxford, and a three-story brick house by Joseph T. Harkness, formerly of that vicinity.

THE Philadelphia Petroleum and Stock Exchange has removed to No. 304 Chestnut St. Six years ago it started business at Third and Walnut Sts., and since then their business has increased from 400,000 barrels a day to 3,800,000 barrels a day at the present time. The present membership of the Exchange is 225.

JOHN F. BETZ has purchased from Richard Debbins the lot at the Southwest corner of Broad and Montgomery Avenue for $55,000. The lot measures 146 ft 6 in on Broad Street by 270 ft 8 in on Montgomery Avenue. It is said that Mr. Betz contemplates the erection of a Theatre on the ground, and that it will be ready for the public about June 1st next.

F. C. VAN BLUNK, 18th and Montgomery Ave., states that there is an increased inclination on the part of people that rent the larger houses to take them by the month, so that when they go to the seashore they can store their goods and spend the money they would have to pay for rent at the seashore. Out of a large rental list he has only four or five vacancies.

THE American Fire Insurance Company have completed the alterations in their building at 308 and 310 Walnut St. It contains forty-six offices all of them well-lighted. The building has been transformed from an old-fashioned one into a modern one, and a story was added to the top of the old edifice. A new structure has been added to the rear 200 feet in length and three stories high. The main corridor has a width of 10 feet and a length of 266 feet.

JOHN EVERHAM, 2503 Ridge ave., has succeeded very well with his houses on Oxford street, West of 25th having sold more of them, the remainder being let to good tenants rents are keeping up well, and houses are in good demand, Wm. Lynn has bought the vacant ground at 25th and Montgomery ave., and intends to commence operations in Spring. And the North side of Columbia ave., west of 25th is to be built up with fine properties this Spring. Mr. Caven has bought the tract of land between 26th and 27th streets and Columbia and Montgomery aves., and will build this Spring.

DURING the month of December, 75 permits were taken out covering 213 operations of which 139 were two-story dwellings and 16 were three-story dwellings. During December 1885, 100 permits were taken out covering 145 operations. The total number of permits taken out during the year 1886, were 3,519; permits were taken out covering 8,985 operations of which 4,690 were two-story dwellings and 1,935 were three-story dwellings, making a total of 6,625 two and three-story dwellings as against 6,791 dwellings for 1885. The record of miscellaneous buildings such as banks, stores, breweries, shops, etc., will add largely to this total but the statistics are not kept in good shape.

SOME BIG FARMS STILL LEFT—Notwithstanding the fact that Lower Merion township, Montgomery County, borders close to a populous part of Philadelphia and that a considerable portion has been sold out in lots at big prices, yet there are some large farms in Lower Merion. The Moro Phillips place comprises 365 acres; that of James Mitchell Magee 300 acres, and of John Y. Crawford's 209. The largest is that of Mrs. Naomi Morris, north of Bryn Mawr. Her lands comprise 594 acres, and of these not less than 100 acres are in one piece of woodland. Mrs. Morris is now ninety years of age. She is in possession of her faculties to an unusual degree for one of her age. This Morris family are descendants of the celebrated Robert Morris, the financial head of the American cause in the days of the Revolution. These acres were purchased by him, and have been in the hands of his posterity ever since.

THE Philadelphia correspondent of the Germantown Telegraph objects to the Building Trades Journal calling contractors "Mere Middlemen." He says: "since in every case the contractor has a great deal of hard work of his own to do, besides furnishing materials which it would be impossible for the operatives to command without furnishing the money out of their own pockets, incurring debt at a ruinous rate to obtain. The fact is, that the present system upon which the building trades are organized in Philadelphia is in many respects peculiar to the city, and accomplishes an amount of work for less money than would be possible under the co-operative or any other system. Nor can it be said that the workmen employed on these buildings are paid miserably poor wages since the rates are in all cases liberal, and protected by the law-making liens for mechanics' wages a first mortgage upon any new building upon which they may be employed. As for the capitalists, who in the first instance purchase the ground upon which the buildings are to be erected, their interests are evidently concerned in paying all claims in cash, in order to secure a clear title, and thus enable them to sell their own mortgages advantageously after having disposed of their buildings. By these means operations covering values to the amount of three quarters of a million dollars are carried on with perfect ease."

Architect's Notes.

LINDLEY JOHNSON, the architect, has removed his office from 431 Walnut to 512 Walnut.

JACKSON & REED, Architects, 804 Walnut street, will start as soon as the weather permits a store-house in Germantown built in the Gothic style and furnished in Mahogany, Oak, Butternut, Ash and White Pine it will cost about $16,000.

G. FRANK MILLER, 615 Walnut St., two stone houses at 15th and Alleghany Ave., M. M. Hall, house at Westmont N. J., for M. L. Buyer, main church building Sunday school building and parsonage for the Reformed Episcopal Church, Front St. below Norris, Philadelphia, all these are about starting. Will also start as soon as the weather permits, a Methodist Church at Baltimore Md.

PAUL BRANDNER is about to start the additions to the cottage of Joseph Newman, 913 Pacific Avenue, Atlantic City, N. J. The improvements consist of new steam heating apparatus and rear building to cost about $5,500. A dwelling house and butcher-shop for Ernest Worner, southwest corner of Huntingdon and Sepviva streets, which will be started as soon as the weather permits and will cost about $5,500. Preparing plans for Mr. Philip R. Ritter, 2217 to 2223 Frankford Road, two stores new fronts third story, enlarged from the rear, also an addition to his dwelling house in the rear, to cost between $5,000 to $10,000.

HAZELHURST & HECKEL, 508 Walnut St., are working on a number of plans for Spring, amongst them some large operations, the outlook is very fair. A great deal of work being contemplated and a number of drawings being made, with a view of getting early bids. This movement is taking place a little earlier than usual. Drawings have been made for immediately remodeling and enlarging the hotel property on Delaware Avenue north of Market, for George Pfeiffer & Son, remodeling and adding to the residence of Mr. Irving at Shoemakerstown on the North Penn Railroad, have prepared the drawings for a Sunday School and Parish building for the Universalists' Church of the Restoration, also remodeling the old church; are fitting up the offices of Mr. John Potter, the publisher at Tenth and Filbert, a residence at Willow Grove, Montgomery County, Pa. This is a frame building for Mr. G. W. Buzby. Two cottages at Longport, Atlantic County, N. J., will soon be started for Miss Hunter of Atlantic City. These are the first of a number to be built on that end of the island. A frame residence at Ridley Park, Pa., for Mr. Boswell, which will be started as soon as the weather permits. A house at Merion Station P. R. R., for F. A. Harris, Esq., this will be a stone building, hard wood finish and will cost from $18,000 to $20,000. A residence on School Lane Germantown, for the Misses Campbell, built of local Germantown stone, hard wood finish, to cost about $10,000.

A NEW National Bank is to be started in the neighborhood of Germantown avenue and Norris street, for the convenience of the carpet manufacturers and others in that vicinity. A committee consisting of W. S. Y. Myers, A. B. Hackman, F. Magee, J. H. A. Klauder, Charles Shaw, and William Holmes, have the matter of subscription and organization in charge.

CHICAGO seems to be keeping up her reputation as the great divorce city of the West. The statistics of the county divorce court show that in 1886, 1250 new suits were commenced, whereas, in 1885 there were only 952, during 1886, a total of 686 decrees were granted; the number of decrees granted in 1885, was 548.

THE News gives lawyer W. H. Madison, of Millin the credit of having said that "There is too much circumlocution in legal phraseology. I realized this when I first began to practice law thirty-five years ago. I realize it with as much force now. There is no virtue in the obscurity of the phraseology and its vagueness. Time and labor both could be saved by a simplification."

ACCORDING to the report of Chief of Police Stewart there were 54,409 persons arrested during 1886, 28,122 of whom were arrested for intoxication. Fifty-six persons were arrested for prize-fighting and 194 for cruelty to children. 6,426 arrests were made for breaches of the peace, 25 for manslaughter and 30 for murder. 41,978 white males and 8,209 white females were arrested and 2,413 colored males and 809 colored females. The station-house lodgers amounted to 54,589. 5,094 persons were carried in the city vans to the house of correction and 25,994 to the city prison. If the inducement to or opportunities for intoxication were lessened the presumption is the 28,122 arrests of 1886 would be reduced considerably.

Post-Dating.

Merchants and jobbers have not a little to say, but in a rather quiet way about the evil of post-dating. This evil has assumed, or rather is assuming a magnitude that is certainly calculated to call for more than passing attention. Competition has passed beyond legitimate limits. For awhile it was a question who could make the best goods for the best prices, the best machinery for the best prices, and so on, all through the various trades. Then competition began to assume a new phase. The merchant or jobber, or manufacturer who could give the longest credit began to stretch in that direction. Competition began right here and it is surprising to what limits it has already gone. If the evil could be confined to simply long credits it might be tolerated, but where a merchant, for instance, buys goods three to six months or farther ahead, he will sooner or later find himself stocked up with unsalable or partly unsalable goods, which he must close out at a sacrifice. This evil is universally recognized and the practice of post-dating universally condemned; yet all do it, and each does it because his neighbor does. Trade and commercial papers call attention to it and warn manufacturers and others against the evil, but still the practice is kept up and there is no apparent protection against it. This evil has always preceded a commercial disaster. At present we are not in any immediate danger. There is no telling how long we will be within the limits of safety. It is all right for a railroad company to buy 10,000 or 15,000 tons of rails in December or January, which they will not have delivered to them until July or August, because that is a legitimate transaction. They have the money to buy and pay for the rails, and they have the road graded, and they have a community to supply with railroad facilities. And besides that they find customers before them who have bought the entire output of the rail mills up to that time.

But this is not the case in dry goods, lumber, coal, hardware or any of the usual commodities of life. It is not necessary to buy so far ahead in these directions. Even were it necessary, it ought not to be necessary to date a purchase made now as purchased on July 1st, 1887, yet this is being widely done, and the only thing we have to say of it is that the practice is a bad one, and will produce the same results, that similar policies have always produced before. The effect of such a reaction is to cause a depreciation of real estate, and to undermine that peculiar sort of confidence, which leads men to buy and pay more for property than they know it is really worth. The real estate interests have more at stake than any other interest. If goods will not sell, the manufacturer can shut down and wait. If business slackens up, business men can simply economize and wait. But if real estate values take a tumble, they stay down long after the cause which led to the precipitation has been removed. Investors refuse to believe the improvement, has come after it has come. Builders know that house and factory builders will economize, and crowd themselves until actually compelled to enlarge or build. We all remember how blocks of houses stood during the depression between 1877 and 1880, although there was a special cause for this in Philadelphia. The fact of the matter is an industrial or commercial depression, and they generally come together, reacts with terrible force on building and real estate interests. A depression in values takes place, which is unnecessary and abnormal, just, as in a boom, an appreciation takes place which tosses values beyond what they ought to be.

We do not believe we are in danger of any immediately bad results for post dating, because the stronger houses will not follow the weaker very far in the down grade. They will rather let them have rope enough to hang themselves with, and that will be the end of all those of moderate capital. Wholesalers will be very chary of extending credit to post daters, and they are right. A healthy commercial sentiment is our best protection against this evil, and it is being aroused.

Railway Tracks Laid in a Year.

The Railway Age says that in the year just closed 5,010 miles of new main line railway track have been built in the United States. Kansas leads the country with the surprising amount of 1,520 miles, the greater part laid within the last six months. Assuming the average cost throughout the country to have been but $20,000 per mile, the expenditure for roadway alone was $100,000,000. Present indications are that the year 1887 will show even greater activity.

The "News" Reduces its Price to One Cent.

The reduction of the price of the Daily News of this city to one cent was a perfect New Year surprise. It is always so full of newsy news that no one could possibly begrudge two cents for so good a paper, but its new proprietors were not content with viewing grand possibilities at a distance. They have been identified so long with Philadelphia journalism, that they fully comprehend what can be done, and they mean to do it. Messrs. Wiedener & Elkins have retired. Their successors are Messrs. Handy, Megarage, Brainerd & Waggener, certainly a strong team, with lots of brains and business ability.

Items of News.

Administrations granted in 1886, 1,402.
Decrease from 1885 of 23.
Accounts filed in 1885, 1,507.
Accounts filed in 1886, 1,570.
Increase over 1885 of 63.
Collateral inheritance tax for 1885, $404,227.90.
Collateral inheritance tax for 1886, $417,556.58.
Increase over 1885 of $13,328.68.

—The English Mechanic gives the following method of treating new oak wainscoting and furniture to give it a desirable antique appearance: "Oak is fumigated by liquid ammonia, strength 880 degrees, which may be bought at any wholesale chemist's at five cents a gallon. The wood should be placed in a dark and air-tight room (in a big package case if you like) and half a pint or so of ammonia poured into a soup plate, and placed upon the ground in the centre of the compartment. This done, shut the entrance and secure the cracks, if any, by pasted slips of paper. Remember that the ammonia does not touch the oak, but the gas that comes from it acts in a wondrous manner upon the tannic acid in that wood, and browns it so deeply that a shaving or two may actually be taken off without removing the color. The depth of shade will entirely depend upon the quantity of ammonia used and the time the wood is exposed."

—The Czar, of Russia, has expressed his determination to have an annual Parliament at Moscow. It is looks like the coming of a more liberal form of government for the Russians.

We had supposed that patents on window shutters had been exhausted but a Des Moines man comes out with another in which he talks about angular and tubular stays, straps, pintles and so on. A tile has just been patented which consists of an external frame, webs or projections inclosed by the frame and arranged to divide the same into recesses, and an artificial stone composition, filling all the recesses, within the frame and flush with the edges of said frame, and with webs or projections, the face of the tile thus consisting of metal and artificial stone.

Another composition for artificial marble according to a Syracuse, N. Y. man consists of glue, boiled linseed oil, water, acid and plaster of paris. A Chicago man gets up a patent conduit pipe. It consists of an outer cylindrical shell and a series of straight longitudinal walls, formed integral with said outer shell and a central portion connecting said walls, and also formed in one piece therewith, whereby segmental chambers are provided extending from the outer shell to the central portions, said chambers being of an area or capacity to receive and hold electric conductors.

Apartment houses are still going in New York. Chas. Buck & Co. will build one costing $250,000. There is a great deal of building activity in Brooklyn. Office structures in Chicago are still going up. There is a great deal of building going on in New Orleans.

—The consumption of lead pencils in this country is estimated at 250,000 a day.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, JAN. 17, 1887.

TRADE and labor matters are occupying a good deal of attention in this and many other large cities throughout the country just at this time. Both workingmen and employers are wisely endeavoring to come to an understanding now long before the opening of the season. In some branches of trade the agreements arrived at, show that there will be no strikes for higher wages or shorter hours. This will be about the general result. The only thing that was to have been feared, was a general strike upon the part of an entire industry, as for instance, the building trades in all branches. The recent labor movement has made strikes more difficult because the various labor organizations have combined, and one will not or cannot by the rules of their organization, strike without the assistance or consent of the other. At least, this idea of mutual consent occupies a more prominent position in the trade organizations of to-day than they have heretofore. One organization may strike, but where it expects assistance from another, the matter of conferences comes up and must take place and in this multitude of councils there is more wisdom manifested than heretofore. The painters could and did go on a strike, regardless of what others did; so could the stone masons or carpenters, and in this way frequently great harm was done to the workingmen themselves, through the perhaps ill-considered strike of one branch. The idea of the Knights of Labor is still broader and seeks to bring the workingmen of an industry together, not only of a locality, but of the entire country. This is the movement now in progress and it will modify the relations of labor and capital in a very important degree when the work now in progress is effected. The miners, for instance, have an organization representing 100,000 men. The iron workers though only a trades union, has an organization of 20,000 estimated. The cigar makers have a powerful combination and so have other trades. All these various branches are federating into one. The tendency to centralization while fraught with some danger because of the mighty strength could be wielded, introduces elements of strength and of protection which have not heretofore existed. For instance, the dozen branches of the building trades cannot strike with the same ease that they have heretofore. Consultations must take place. Causes are patiently investigated. Efforts must be made to conciliate. Committees must act and interview employers and in these conferences the petty causes which perhaps instituted a strike are investigated and the entire strike is avoided. It requires no gift of prophecy to recognize many of the advantages which will come from this combination of labor. While on one side it has the elements of great strength, on the other side it has the elements of greater wisdom and conservatism. It has often been said that every monopoly contains the germ of its own destruction, and every wrong the germ which will eventually destroy it. The labor movement has within it the germ which will protect it from itself, that is, from the extremes into which wild leadership has sometimes dragged it.

Just now the prospects for an amicable understanding between employers and laborers throughout the country are bright. The leaders of the Knights of Labor and of the trades unions notwithstanding some assertions to the contrary, are interested in the maintenance of friendly relations and are doing all they can to preserve them. The great strikes which occurred last year were the work of unauthorized lieutenants, seeking for a little notoriety and who did not understand their true relations to their superiors, nor the principles and purposes of their great organizations.

We take the ground that the harmful results which employers are disposed to apprehend from labor organizations are mostly fanciful. It is true that in many cases organized labor has gone to extreme limits and has hurt itself and employers, and it is also true that in their lack of understanding of the intricacies of business, and of trade, and of the subtle influences that control them, that they are likely to make frequent mistakes. Yet out of all this, good cannot help but come. The very responsibility that labor organizations have upon them, creates a more intelligent understanding of its rights and duties. Strikes which were possible in 1877 are impossible in 1887, because workingmen understand better their true interests, and the interests of capital and of employers. The work of education is progressing slowly and the dangerous ground will soon be passed. Labor as a rule is more willing to arbitrate than employers. Employers a year or two hence will be as willing to arbitrate as their employees. The occasion for arbitration will not be so urgent when both sides manifest a disposition to do what is right. Real arbitration is willing-ness to do justice. The necessity for arbitration is simply the dividend for selfishness.

THE Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company is about effecting a contract loan for $2,000,000.

IN Germany they have an instrument for detecting the loss of water through the leakage in the water mains.

PHILADELPHIA seems to be a favorite locality for burglars, pickpockets and gamblers. Other cities are crowding them out.

THE citizens of Philadelphia seem to be inclined to organize themselves into a committee of the whole to see to it that the contractors do their work as they contract to do it.

THE master masons attempted last week to organize a national association in Boston. The matter has been under consideration for many years. The combination of labor last year, made this present action necessary. In our next issue, we will perhaps be able to give some of the details of the affair. The convention was held on the 10th, 11th and 12th inst.

THE era of large buildings has fairly opened in New York City. The necessity for them is very urgent. All that have been built are paying well. A new one to be twelve stories high and fireproof, is to be erected upon the site of the present Stone building on Liberty street. It will cost $350,000 and the dimensions will be 100 by 80 feet and 145 feet high. It will be of brick, iron and stone. It will furnish nearly 300 offices.

We referred a short time ago to the fact that the current architectural literature was rich in thoughts of clear thinkers. Some of the recent books which have come out, certainly deserve not only a favorable notice but words of praise. In some of them there is a little tincture of the student, just a little too much to suit the practical men for whom they are intended, but it is an excusable fault which even very practical men are inclined to run into when they undertake to write a book.

WHILE watching our own home affairs with a jealous eye, it will do us no harm to take a bird's eye view of what is going on beyond the limits of our horizon. Over in New York they are a little frightened at the fact, that the bridge over the Hudson at Poughkeepsie is likely to draw a large amount of freight traffic from that city from the West, direct to the East in which New York's competitor, Boston, will largely profit. The new bridge will cost $4,000,000, and is backed by capital representing $60,000,000. It is not necessary for New York to get frightened at this little thing. Traffic is seeking short cuts and will have them, and any trade which cannot stand the strong competitive forces at work must decline.

IN 1876 the cost of buildings erected in New York City was $15,903,880. Last year the expenditures were $58,459,653, or nearly four times as much as ten years ago. This is a surprising progress. In 1880 the expenditures were $29,115,335. The total of the expenditures in that city for the last thirteen years is estimated by the Record and Guide of New York at $409,014,769. This is only an approximate estimate, but, it is sufficiently accurate to show the wonderful progress that has been made in that city. Last year 13,569 conveyances were made representing $244,000,000 in round figures, against $185,000,000 for 1885 and $182,000,000 for 1884. The average amount of each conveyance in 1886 was $21,000 as against $9,500 seven years ago. The number of mortgages last year foot up 12,586 representing $144,785,392, against $110,270,927 for 1885 and $118,519,976 for 1884.

THE building prospects in cities to the East of us are no less favorable than in the West. The New York Elevated railroad may be extended to King's Bridge. In fact, there are rumors rife in New York real estate and building circles, of immense projects concerning which nothing definite can be said as yet, because the matters have not yet gone beyond the limits of possibilities. The improvements which have already been made in the Harlem region and the impetus which has been given to real estate operations and house building, have created a desire on the part of real estate operators and buyers of lands, to possess considerable property in that rapidly growing region. It is one of the rising suburbs of New York. It is within easy reach by rail, and is healthy and attractive. Real estate agents there have been quietly buying up a great deal of land, and it is not likely that they are making any mistake. The suburban rapid transit roads have made the Harlem region very attractive. Numerous transfers of property are being made and as an exchange says, the foundation is being laid for gigantic fortunes.

THE possibility of losing trade is stirring up some of the public spirit in citizens, to secure government appropriations for the improvement of the New York Harbor. No doubt the annual howl that goes up against the River and Harbor appropriation, prevents the expenditure of a great deal of money that should be expended in that direction. We, here in Philadelphia, understand just what we are losing every year through the miserly economy of the government. Dollars should be expended at once where cents are pinched out. While we have no such harbor as New York, we have facilities which, if properly improved, would enable us to take a far more prominent place in competition for the commerce of the Atlantic coast.

It has been intimated that the railroad companies are behind the opposition to the liberal expenditure of money for the improvements of rivers and harbors. There is, no doubt, some truth in this. A few years ago sixty million dollars were asked at the recommendation of army engineers of high standing. The bill was subsequently vetoed. Congress has been so frightened by supposed popular clamor, that new bills proposing to expend money in this way, will have little opportunity of passing. Of course, this is a mistake. The country demands these improvements and the public intelligence will soon reach a point of comprehension of the public needs and requirements, they will overcome all opposition and lead also to the making of appropriations sufficient to put our rivers and harbors in good shape. We should do with our rivers and harbors just what a careful business man would do with his business or the building in which he transacts his business. If improvements were needed he would make them, but as a nation we do not. We allow a clamor, or rather our Congress allows it, to prevent it from expending money as it should for the furtherance of both internal and foreign commerce.

INSPECTOR McDEVITT's testimony and practical illustrations before the coroner's jury of the danger arising from the use of electric lights are certainly steps forward in the science of lighting by electricity. Electricians and others have steadfastly maintained that there was no danger if the wires were properly inducted, and their arrangement conducted under the supervision of electrical experts. That the Temple Theatre fire was caused by the electric wires there is now not the least doubt, and the discovery presents itself as a truly important factor in the array of causes of our annual fire loss. The crude and unscientific principles governing fire insurance are largely responsible for the unreasonable annual waste through fire, beside which the collateral and incidental losses, such as business embarrassment and frequent ruin, are of no small importance. No sane nor honest man wants to be burnt out, no matter how heavily his property is insured; and every business man would cheerfully pay a heavy premium for that principle which would afford him a reasonable assurance of prevention. Hence it follows that the time must come when the self same elements of safety which enter into the business of title insurance will also become a principle of fire insurance. In the time companies the element of risk is almost altogether avoided through careful investigation and sound judgment, whereas fire insurance bears sad burdens of the yearly waste without the a murmur, and no effort is made to assail its vulnerable points and reduce the loss to the proper yearly minimum.

NO DOUBT the foundation is being now laid for a movement, which may not manifest itself for a year or two, but will result in extensive improvements of our interior waterways. A Senate committee some ten years ago examined the various schemes then proposed looking towards the expenditure of money for the construction of such waterways, and reported that $150,000,000 could be wisely expended. The movement was killed by the railroad interests, who foresaw that an improvement of our inland rivers and the construction of inland canals would operate against them in their control over the traffic of the country. Since then the railroad companies have built 50,000 miles of road, and have secured a control that has been tenfold more advantageous to the country than to the railroad companies themselves. The time may not come for another half decade, but it will eventually come, when this vast network of railway construction will urgently call for these very waterway improvements which the railroad interests successfully fought down ten years ago, and against which they have ever since stood. When the time comes for these improvements or some of them, as it will, the railroad companies which have opposed them will be either their friends or will not actively oppose them. As land becomes scarce in the far West the necessity for making habitable vast areas of land between the Atlantic and Mississippi will arise. We are accustomed to imagine that because immigrants travel a thousand or two thousand miles West of the Mississippi that therefore all the land East of the Mississippi is occupied. A map showing the extent of population this side of that river would be surprising to those who have not given the matter careful attention. There are vast opportunities yet to be utilized, but because of the peculiar configuration of the country railroad building is not as adaptable as on the prairies West of the Mississippi. The improvement of rivers, large and small, and the construction of canals can quadruple, to say the least, the agricultural, mineral and manufacturing capacity of the region this side of the Mississippi. The lumber resources of this region are beyond computation, and have yet hardly been touched. The mineral resources are better known, but developed to a very moderate extent. The agricultural resources are large, and are especially adapted to the wants of small farmers and planters who are able to cultivate from fifty to two hundred acres perhaps. This region of country is the poor man's country of the future, and must of necessity become the greatest wealth-producing section on the American continent.

In the dearth for news, newspapers are discussing how cars can be heated without fire or rather stoves which scatter fire when an accident occurs. A good inventor or two could accomplish more satisfactory results.

THE proposition to accept corporate security for contractors doing city work is a good one and should be adopted, but it should be distinctly understood from the start that our home companies are to have the preference against foreign companies, provided, of course, that their capital stock is in keeping with the amounts for which they enter as surety.

THE Aramingo canal notwithstanding its euphonious name will soon be no more, as a canal it was a signal failure, as a breeder of pestilence and disease it was a disgraceful success. Sewers are to be built to carry off the filth and the Aramingo is to be transformed into an eighty-feet wide street, and from Huntingdon street to Frankford Creek, below Huntingdon street, the owners of the property must be consulted as to their riparian rights, before anything can be done.

CHESTER AVENUE, is to be paved with fire brick from 43rd to 49th street, and this has been ordered by Councils. A new and strange paving material is suggested as an improvement over anything we now have in use, its durability and desirability are heralded throughout the city, the ordinance makers go junketing over the country and return convinced that the new pavement is a success in some country village and wants at least a trial in this great city. A spot is selected, not where a fair test may be had as to its power to withstand the heavy travel of our busy thoroughfares, but a pleasant street where a heavy vehicle is seldom seen, and this is called a test.

ANTI-MONOPOLISTS who are seeking material with which to hurl thunderbolts at the railroad corporations, in all justice should make note of the reduction of rates in freights which has gone into effect in the past twenty years. The reductions are as follows: On the Erie road in 1865 the average freight earnings were 2.7 cents per ton per mile; last year .6. On the New York Central the decline was from 3.4 cents to .68; and the Pennsylvania from 2.6 cents to .62; and the Michigan Central from 2 cents in 1870 to .56 in 1885. Passenger earnings are higher. The competition for traffic has driven freight rates down below remunerative limits, but passenger traffic remains at about where it was ten or twenty years ago.

WE observe that there is a constant tendency towards a centralization among manufacturers and traders. All of last year's combination however, did not reduce greatly the number of failures. The ground is being laid for more. While ten thousand disappeared last year, twenty thousand new traders, or firms, or corporations sprang into existence. Possibly this is a very low limit, that is for times when enterprise seeks recognition and field for operation. The inducements are certainly very encouraging and thousands of men with moderate capital will take risks and rush into the field of production or exchange regardless of the fate of those who have gone before them. In this struggle the best will win, but this is not always so. Business has become a matter of generalship, of combination, of competition, and to a certain extent, of what people erroneously call, luck.

MAJOR VEALE, in his report to the Board of Health, very pointedly suggests that property owners should clean and keep clean the small alleys, which are so frequently neglected as to become intolerable nuisances. The uncleanly condition of these alleys is the result of slovenly and indifferent tenants, it is a mistake to throw the responsibility upon the owner for it is a matter which is practically beyond his control. No owner or agent can be expected to exercise a strict watch over the occupants of houses and even were it possible for him to do so, he might control his own tenants and yet be held responsible for the moral apathy of neighbors. The alleys should be under the jurisdiction of the highway department, and the cleaning should be embraced in the street cleaning contract for the district, then the efficiency of Major Veale could be exercised to the benefit of the community. An attempt to hold twenty or more different property owners responsible for the shiftlessness and untidy habits of a score of tenants, would result in such a complication of individual and collective responsibility, that the Major would be compelled to waste a large part of his time in placing the responsibility. As honors are easy so far as the alleys are concerned, the expense of cleaning should be met by taxation, practical methods are the best.

THE frequent delays upon the cable lines are quietly working up a strong sentiment in the traveling public in favor of some more reliable system of transportation. The frequent breakages, or stoppages, or blockages, about five to six o'clock, preach more powerful sermons to the annoyed riders than any amount of newspaper indignation, which editors sometimes fall back on when other subjects are exhausted. There seems to be something radically wrong about the mechanical part of our cable line. Cars suddenly stop as though challenged by an invisible sentry, and remain stock still for half an hour or longer, and then, without invitation, begin to creep on their course. There is an explanation always, but the traveling public do not understand it. An elevated or underground railroad must be built sooner or later. The cable people say that they will soon have their lines so finished that these delays will not occur. This is their only safety. Even though these delays are remedied, the fact still remains that the cable system is not a sufficient one. Instead of short cars running every six minutes or more, we need trains of two or three cars, as long as the ordinary passenger car, running almost as frequently as now. The management of our cable and street car lines reduces street car traveling to a minimum. A proper system would increase traveling to a maximum.

THE Boston Herald has set a good example in endeavoring to settle future labor disputes so far as it is concerned by dividing profits with its workmen. The public will watch the experiment with a good deal of interest. If this system of dividing profits offer a solution of a troublesome question it will be a valuable piece of information and will be worth what it costs. The writers upon labor topics seem to agree pretty well that nothing but a system which involves a more or less just distribution of profits will be acceptable or will solve the difficulty. Other methods may develop themselves as we get further into or out of the labor question. At the present time, the system of dividing profits is the most acceptable, but a great many of those whose aim in life is to accumulate large fortunes by depriving others of their rightful compensation will not give this system a very warm reception. The percentage of the successful is small. The great bulk of workers either in the ranks of labor or in the ranks of employers when all is said and done, realizes no more than their just share, and frequently not even that. Therefore the system of individual ownership and absolute control, of a business is losing its charm. It is natural that men should seek to make the most out of any good business, but the practical results are in consequence of the operation of competitive forces that the returns are below anticipation and reasonable calculations. This result makes many willing to divide upon an equitable basis, and we do not doubt but that the system will gain in favor as it is tried.

THE Window Glass Manufacturer's Association held a meeting in Washington last week and listened to annual reports and other matters connected with that industry. It was shown by the report of the President of the Association that eighty-two per cent. of the factories of the country are running, and that the product, in spite of the strikes that had occurred, was extremely large. It was stated that imports were stimulated during the past twelve months, until they reached thirty-two per cent. of the whole consumption, as against twenty-six per cent. for the previous year. The glass manufacturers have had more than their share of trouble with the powerful organization which practically controls that industry as to wages. But as all factories are subject to about the same dictation, the practical result is the same, and the only difference is in the quantity of glass imported. The glass workers themselves will not knowingly put wages to a point where importations will be increased and they themselves thrown out of employment in consequence. While the present building activity prevails fair prices for glass and a heavy demand can be relied upon. It is rather surprising to know that so much glass was imported last year as stated, and the workmen, it is to be presumed, are responsible for a considerable percentage of it. American glass is good enough, and if builders can purchase it at the same, or a little less price than the imported, they would naturally prefer to have it.

THE question which a good many business men are asking, is, are we threatened with reckless railroad building? This is a matter which chiefly concerns those who are putting their money into railroads, yet it is one which many others are intimately connected with. A disaster to railroad building enterprises is a disaster to general business enterprise. An enormous amount of money has changed hands in railroad building during the past ten years. To the general public it matters not, perhaps, how much individual investors may lose, but to look at this matter wisely there is a disadvantage to the general community where unwise investments are made even by the individual. A large amount of mileage cannot be wisely built years before it is wanted, no more than a business man can extend his business faster than the market calls for its extension. The probabilities are, that the railroad investors who have completed their arrangements for investments this year, have not made a mistake; but if we are to build railroads at the rate of 12,000 miles a year, it will not be long before the extraordinary activity will produce the usual results. Outside questions have much to do with industrial health. The causes for the present vigor are well known to financiers and those who have given patient study to them. The silver question has had a very direct bearing upon our present industrial activity. If an adverse financial policy to that which has heretofore existed is to be inaugurated, we will discover that the prosperity of which we boast is built upon sand.

THE South, with its millions of hidden wealth, will ere long make itself felt in open competition with its Western and Northern neighbors. There is no moonshine in the statements that have been made as to recent developments in the South, for they are neither exaggeration nor mental fantasies. Almost daily some wonderful tale is told of new developments of startling proportions, and the Northern and Western people are either amazed at the glittering cheek of the new South in setting such big yarns afloat, or swallow the whole statement with honest credulity.

When the stories were first told of the gigantic proportions and magnificent possibilities of Georgia marble they were received with many grains of salt; knowing ones, couldn't be fooled with any such Utopian tales. But it seems now that the whole truth about Georgia marble was never told, for the resources of the quarries seem to embrace not only every variety of marble used in the mechanical arts, but almost every shade and color.

It is hardly possible to estimate the depth of the formation at some points in the quarries. Frank Siddall has now on exhibition at his office the core of a boring which was over forty feet long, and although now broken in pieces, a single natural fracture cannot be detected in its whole length. It is of a beautiful green color, of light and dark shades, and is certainly a tangible evidence that the stories were not so very Utopian after all. It is now positively asserted that it is possible to obtain a single slab of pure marble from the Georgia quarries 5.0 feet long, were it possible to find machinery of sufficient dimensions to do the work of cutting it; and one enthusiastic member of the quarry company offers to make a contract to produce from the quarries the whole front of a two-story house in a single piece, with windows and doorways cut in to suit.

There are two companies now working the Georgia quarries, not as competitors, but in perfect harmony, as both represent different interests—the American Marble Company, of which that indefatigable journalist, Mr. E. M. Puffer, proprietor of the Boston Herald, is President, and the Georgia Marble Company, of which Mr. Henry C. Clement, of Chicago, is the President. There are several gentlemen of this city who have large interest in both companies, Mr. G. H. Starkey, of the firm of Starkey & Palen, being among the number.

An Error of the Compositor.

Through an error of the compositor, the advertisement of the City Trust, Safe Deposit and Surety Company which appeared in the last number of the Journal was made to say that the capital stock of that company was only $25,000, when in reality it is $250,000. We make this correction in justice to the company, although the error was such an absurd one that our readers must have noticed it. The City Trust and Surety Company has met with the most gratifying success. Its officers and stockholders include many of our strongest men, and its business transactions embrace some of the most important operations of the past year. Its advertisement, which appears in this number, is worthy the attention of our readers, as it outlines the many features of the company's business. No better voucher as to its reliability can be asked for, than the list of strong men, who are its officers and directors.

The Builders' Exchange.

Stacy Reeves, George Watson, George W. Roydhouse, Miles King, Charles Reeves, William H. Albertson, David L. Woelppel, William Nee, Jr., Hugh Copeland, Frederick F. Myhertz, John S. Stevens, John Thorn, Joseph Chapman, John Huneker, John E. Evanson, William Harkness, Jr., Murrell Dobbins, Alfred P. Shannon, Thos. Little, John F. Prince, Franklin M. Harris, and Michael B. Andress are the incorporators of an organization to be known as the Master Builders' Exchange of the City of Philadelphia. The purpose of the organization is "for the encouragement and protection of the building interests in the city and county of Philadelphia, to inculcate just and equitable principles, establish and maintain uniformity in commercial usages, acquire, preserve and disseminate valuable business information, and avoid and adjust, as far as practicable, the controversies and misunderstandings which are apt to arise between individuals engaged in trade when they have no acknowledged rules to guide them, to the end that membership in this corporation may be an assurance to the public of skill, honorable reputation and probity."

A charter will be obtained when the organization will be perfected by the election of officers and directors.

An Important Decision.

THE MECHANIC'S LIEN LAW RESTRICTED BY PHYSICAL APPEARANCES.

Judge Wilson, in Court of Common Pleas No. 4, has delivered an opinion which is not only very important, but which in a great measure defines the power of a lien to be restricted by physical appearances.

The case was Neall vs. Workman, exceptions taken to the Auditors report having been taken. Neall the plaintiff, obtained judgment upon the second mortgage upon a piece of real estate. Workman the defendant, held a mechanic's lien upon the same premises, which was filed after the mortgage was made to the plaintiff. The property was sold upon the judgment and the contract was as to the distribution of a balance of the proceeds.

The work had been done and the materials had been furnished prior to the making of the mortgage, and the lien had been filed within six months from the time the work was finished. The plaintiff claimed that the work done was of such a character that no lien therefore could be enforced against the whole premises, under the act of 1836. The work consisted of an extension of the party wall four feet, the raising of the wall of the back building eight feet, and the construction of a connection wall, which practically gave an additional space on the second and third floors of the main building, which were fitted up for domestic purposes.

Judge Wilson in his decision, said:—"The single point before us, is whether a construction of this kind constitutes such a thorough change in the character or appearance of the old building as to transfer it into a new structure or erection. That this must be the effect before a lien will be sustained against a whole building, under the act of 1836, seems to be the result of the rulings on this general subject. It may, perhaps, be said with truth that the cases are not all consistent with each other, but this probably arises from the inherent difficulty of applying the general principle to facts which lie near the border-line of distinction. The Auditor, substantially conceding the law to be as we have stated it, was of the opinion that the addition of the bath-room before described to the rear of the main building in question was such a reconstruction of the old building, and made such a change in its external appearance as to produce, in effect, a new building, as it existed after the new work done. We think, nevertheless, that the true conclusion depends, after all, mainly upon the physical appearances—the extent of the changes from the original structure. To entitle the mechanic to his lien we think such changes must be substantial and considerable. The projection of a structure of this limited size only, from the second and third stories of the rear end of the old main building, seems to us to have been too slight and immaterial an alteration to change the old building into a new or different one, or which is a legal consequence—to form a basis of a lien against the whole premises, under the act of 1836. We therefore sustain the exceptions to the report of the Auditor."

AMERICA has an absolute monarchy on a small scale in the small town of Pullman, near Chicago. There are no city officials at all and no elections. The officers of the Pullman Car Company attend to everything and to their credit be it said they have the best municipal government and the best city, from a sanitary stand point, in the entire United States.

Recent Decisions in Pennsylvania in Relation to Matters Concerning Real Estate.

Decided by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

ABANDONMENT.

To constitute an abandonment of an improvement it is not necessary to show that it continued until the ground was grown-up with bushes and trees.

When an improvement right which depends upon possession has not existed for twelve years, there is a conclusive presumption of abandonment.

The doctrine of abandonment only applies to imperfect titles.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

A release of a legacy charged on land is not such an instrument as must be separately acknowledged by a femme-covert, but if not so acknowledged it cannot be recorded.

DEED.

A forged deed placed on record passes no title to an innocent purchaser from the grantee named therein, who relied upon the record evidence of title.

EASEMENTS.

Purchase of land to which an apparent easement is attached, is affected with notice of its true origin and history, and acquires no rights inconsistent therewith.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

When a landlord enters by consent of the tenant to make repairs, with a stated reduction of rent for the time required, the tenant cannot set up as a defense the damage to his business resulting from the unexpected length of time occupied in making the repairs unless unreasonably delayed.

MECHANICS' LIENS.

When a joint Lien is filed for alterations made to convert adjoining buildings in order to connect them into dwelling houses under the act of 1861, it must be apportioned, otherwise it will be postponed not only to other mechanics' Liens but also to other lien creditors such as the holder of a mortgage made before the filing of the claim, but recorded subsequently thereto.

MORTGAGE.

When a mortgagee takes a deed absolute, and is authorized to sell for a certain price, if he dispose of the property at private sale for any less sum, he is liable to the mortgagee for the difference.

MUNICIPAL ASSESSMENT

When a Railroad company owns its road bed in fee, as well as land in access of that used for such purpose, it will be bound by a municipal claim for paving in front thereof. A sale under such lien would pass the fee subject to the easement.

VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

A vendor by articles is not liable for a small deficiency in the quantity of land which is sold to contain so much more or less in the absence of fraud or deceit.

F. R. SHATTUCK,
58 South Third St., Phila.

—The roofing materials most commonly used in the United States are shingles, slates, tin and the tar and gravel composition. Among those less often employed may be named iron roofing, terra cotta tiling, sheet copper, canvas, duct and thatch. In European countries zinc, asphalt and sheet lead roofs are not uncommon.

BUILDERS' ITEMS.

Building and Real Estate Notes.

In Media all the real estate agents are busy.

The city of Williamsport, in this State, is to have a real estate exchange.

BUILDING to the extent of $250,000 was indulged in at Media, Pa., during the past year.

The Reading Artillerists will build a handsome armory in the beginning of spring.

FRANK BUCHMAN has purchased the railroad hotel at Penuburg, Montgomery county, Pa., for $5,000.

The new Ninth National Bank, Front street below Norris, opened its doors for business on Tuesday last.

HARRISON WEAVER, of Philadelphia, has purchased the Keystone House at Greendale, Montgomery county, Pa.

MR. CONRAD, proprietor of the Herefordville hotel, Berks county, Pa., has bought the hotel at Treichlersville.

RICHARD SIMPSON, of Williamsport, Pa., has purchased a property in that city for $18,000, which will be greatly improved.

JOHN R. BECHTEL, of Reading, Pa., has purchased a large amount of property in that city for building purposes.

OTIS BROS. & Co., have contracted with J. H. Haehlein for a passenger elevator for premises 418 Library street, this city.

The United States Government will erect a new public building at Camden, N. J. Its cost, together with the ground, is limited at $100,000.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company is purchasing real estate, in order to put up an immense building between Cedar and Liberty streets, New York.

GEO. E. GOLDBECK, 4217 Lancaster avenue is making arrangements for building 12 houses on Spring Garden street; 2 on Budd street and one on W'yoaning street.

We regret to record the death of Wm. Mattick the real estate dealer of 3878 Lancaster avenue, which occurred on Thursday last. Cause, congestion of the brain.

F. H. McCANN, 1138 Lancaster avenue. Collections still good. Very few idle houses. The uncertainty of the cable cars is driving tenants from West Philadelphia. Prospect for Spring bright.

D. S. MANN, real estate agent, 218 south Fifth street, Philadelphia, has just effected a sale of several lots on Twenty-ninth street between Thompson, Philadelphia, to Messrs. Weidener and Elkins for $25,000.

GILBERT HILES, the contractor and builder, residing at Second and Chestnut streets, Camden, is missing. Mr. Hiles has left unfinished four houses which he was erecting at Fourth and Chestnut streets, Camden.

JOHN WALTON, real estate agent at Hershman, Montgomery county, Pa., sold the one-acre lot with buildings belonging to the estate of William J. Hallowell, deceased, in that township, to Harry Brooks for $2,100.

R. S. GALBRAITH, 1942 Reed street, has about twenty vacancies on his large rental list. Look for very extensive building operations in the Spring in this section of the city. Has some few vacant lots for sale.

LAST year nearly ten million dollars' worth of real estate was sold at Newark. The demand for real estate is very marked.

Fewer permits were granted last year than in 1885, but the value of the buildings erected is about the same.

E. FITSPATRICK, 812 Passyunk avenue. Rental list is pretty well filled up. There are many inquiries for small houses and rents are keeping well up. Could rent two hundred small houses in a week if they were to be had.

SIMPSON & FRIEL, 1900 Wharton street have sold all their houses on Chadwick St. Will start to build about thirty houses as soon as the weather permits, at Bancroft and Morris streets. These will be six room houses.

C. F. HALL, 3944 Lancaster avenue is renting some of the large houses that have been vacant for some time. There is a fair demand for small houses. Business generally is picking up. Have recently sold 3901 Aspen street, which is a corner store for $5,000.

A BUSINESS boom has struck Avondale, a little hamlet in the vicinity of Swarthmore, Pa., whereof the inhabitants are glad. A Mr. Shields, of Philadelphia, brother of the lawyer by that name, has secured the old Avondale mill, which has been converted into a paper and saw mill combined.

THE Collingswood Land Company, with a capital stock of $150,000, divided in 3,000 shares, has been incorporated in Camden. J. The incorporators are Edward C. Knight, Dr. William Pepper, Edward P. Dwight, Charles S. Lewis, Edward C. Knight, Jr., of Philadelphia, and Augustus G. Ritchey and Daniel Frost, of Trenton.

J. T. CARROL, Eighth and Passyunk avenues. Out of a rental list of 800 or 1000 has 33 vacancies. He has rented during the past week twenty houses, and rented five on Tuesday, he is going to build about twenty-five small houses in the lower part of the city. The indications are that rents will be advanced in Spring.

ELWOOD BECKER, cor. Fourth and Pine streets, has more applicants for small houses than he can supply. Plenty capital about seeking investment in small houses. Bargains are hard to get. Four dilapidated frames, two back and two front on South and Gillis Alley will be pulled down, and a handsome store built. This will be started as soon as the weather permits. New front going in store North side of South below Fourth. Five or six new dwellings will take place of the frames N. E. cor. Fourth and Lombard streets.

The Chester Times says:—"It is probable that a number of new houses will be erected in the Northeastern part of the city next spring. There seems to be a demand for small houses of neat design, and this demand is more than likely to be met before many months have passed. There are some fine building sites on Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, the highest part of the North ward, and the new houses will, in all probability, be erected on these thoroughfares. Ground has risen in price in the locality named during the past year."

J. A. McCAUGHEY & Co., 1251 Long Lane. There is a heavy demand for store properties on Long Lane. They have seventy-eight houses in course of erection at Long Lane and Wharton street which are frozen stiff. They have not a vacant house on their rental list all being let to good tenants and could rent 500 more if they had them. This refers to five and eight room houses. They anticipated putting up from 150 to 175 houses West of Long Lane and South of Federal street. These will be more five to eight room dwellings and three-story store properties.

GEO. LODGE, 3d and Federal streets. The real estate business is unusually brisk at this season of the year. Selling plenty of property, and plenty of money being invested in ground rents. Mr. Lodge has enlarged his premises by adding two large offices on the second floor. Has put in new steam heating apparatus for warming the whole building. Rentals have been right good. Out of a list of 400 has about eight vacancies. There is plenty of capital to be had for investment in small houses. Is putting up twelve small houses on Long street between Ninth and Tenth below McKean and though not yet plastered five have already been sold. They will erect 18 four-room houses in the same locality all of which will have ready sale.

GEO. E. CUMMINGS and THEO. M. REGER, No. 711 Walnut street, dealers in Seaside and Suburban lots say that the outlook for the coming season is excellent. Of course nothing is doing now at the shore, but there is every indication of a boom. They have been giving attention this Fall and Winter, to lots on the North Penn Rail Road. The demand for Suburban homes has been very brisk and they sold $5,000 worth of lots before the cold snap set in, and are only waiting for a break in the weather to start work. They have a large number of applicants who will invest as soon as Spring opens. Their operation at Fort Washington is a grand success and twelve cottages are to be built soon.

A BIG building operation foreshadowed. (Morton, Delaware county, Chronicle.) The 43 acres of land located in Ridley, near Rutledge, recently purchased by the Swarthmore Improvement Company, have been laid out into fine building lots, the most of which are 50 by 175 feet in dimensions, with avenues 50 feet wide, named Swarthmore, Amherst, Overbrook, Harvard, University, Villa Nova, and Muhlenburg avenues, after the various colleges and universities. The company has just sold one fine lot on an adjoining tract, for $800, upon which it is proposed to build a Presbyterian church. A building fund has been started, and will probably be invested for the present in the Morton Building and Loan Association. The outlook for building improvements on the company's ground is reported excellent.

Architect's Notes.

A FIRST quality tar and gravel roof can be had for about one-half the cost of a good tin or iron roof properly painted, and about two-thirds the cost of a shingle roof. It is not adapted to steep surfaces, however, it makes rather a hot roof in summer, it is apt to effect the taste of a roof when new and it will not bear being walked on. A considerable skill is also required in the mixing and preparation of the tar composition and in the laying of the roof. A poorly prepared and laid gravel roof is but a mild improvement, if any, on no roof at all.

ARCHITECTS, above all things, in addition to skill in their calling, should be humanitarians. They have it in their power to add to, or take from, the large class of people who are compelled by force of circumstance to live for years, perhaps, in rented homes, comfort, accommodation, and enjoyment, without additional cost to landlords, or extra work to builders and contractors. Let them study the probable taste and wishes of tenants in their plans, as well as the mere technicalities of their profession, and we will have a far better and more convenient class of dwellings at no greater cost.

—A new door hanger consists of an arched yoke provided at one extremity with pivot studs and at the other with a threaded shank and adjusting nut. The axles for the rollers are mounted on the top of the yoke.

 Where there are no figures to indicate the amount of the judgment, the damages have not been assessed.
 The first name in each line is that of the judgment debtor.

An asterisk (*) denotes judgment confessed or bond and warrant conditioned.

The figures 1 2 3 and 4 immediately after the name of the plaintiff indicates the number of the Court. The letters D. M. J. and S. after the number of the Court indicate the term as D., December Term, M., March Term, as J., June term and S., September Term.

An examination as to the nature of judgments and suits will be made for subscribers without extra charge on application.

—A new fire proof floor and ceiling consists of a series of girders with a concrete body between them and the fireproof composition below each girder, with braces placed in the concrete body with their ends resting on the foot of a girder.

The House of Refuge.

The treasurer's report of the House of Refuge shows that the receipts for 1886 amounted to $147,984 30, of which the city contributed $40,000 and the State $60,000, the balance coming from private contributions. The expenditure amounted to $147,949 30. The average number of inmates during the year was 775, a decrease of 23. The managers of the institution want the State to purchase the buildings owned by the House of Refuge for a State reformatory for first offenders under twenty-five years of age. The movement is endorsed by the Supreme Court Judges and a number of citizens.

Statement of the American Fire.

The American Fire Insurance Company, of this city, submits some very interesting figures in its annual statement, which appear on the first page of this issue of the REAL ESTATE RECORD. With a grand total of assets amounting to $2,801,858.68, represented in cash on hand, and securities bearing profitable interest, and with a cool half million surplus, it looks as though the American Fire was fully capable of maintaining its characteristic reputation for solidity in the face of any probable emergency.

The company has returned to its old quarters, 308 and 310 Walnut street. The building has been greatly improved, and some extensive alterations and additions have been made.

Flowers.

The winter's festivities have created an unusual demand for flowers; the outlay for roses alone is something wonderful; cultivation has produced prodigious results, the demand frequently exceeds the supply, and sometimes serious annoyances are caused through the inability of dealers to fill orders. For reliability, there is no better house than that of the well-known Shearer, 109 South Seventh street. Mr. Shearer's experience and extensive facilities command a large share of the best trade in the city for cut flowers and for choice plants, with which his nurseries are heavily stocked, there is no better place to buy.

The State

The State Treasurer's report shows the receipts during the year 1886 to be as follows:

Corporations, including payments for sale of main line and canal systems.....	$4,792,979.56
Interest income.....	149,000.00
Licenses.....	947,361.20
Collateral inheritance tax.....	662,976.61
Personal property.....	674,624.14
Miscellaneous.....	293,769.62

Total.....$7,520,711.13

The following were the payments:

Department expenses (including $506,329.10 for judiciary, and $132,749.61 for public printing and supplies).....	$1,128,704.30
Redemption of loans, interest on loans, premiums, and purchase U. S. bonds.....	2,835,534.00
Charitable and penal institutions.....	1,745,972.74
Common schools.....	1,150,248.13
National guards.....	283,456.57
Miscellaneous items.....	59,309.48

Total.....$7,203,225.22

The receipts of the year were $659,003 less, and the payments were $1,311,962, $311,962-11 less than those of 1885.

Diamond Street or Park Avenue.

For a series of years proceedings before a road jury, in the court, a struggle has been maintained to open Diamond street to Fairmount Park as a continuous thoroughfare. The past year saw the end of this struggle, and Diamond street is now open to the park, and at last it deserves its name of Park avenue. The street has shown wonderful improvement since. It has an improved pavement, and this, with its greater width than most thoroughfares, and high location, has brought it to the attention of builders and real estate men. Previous to 1886 but one block of houses was erected on the street, but during that year Mr. J. M. Sharp has built four blocks of handsome residences, and intends to further continue his work during this year (1887), having recently purchased the lot at the corner of 15th street, from Messrs. Snyder and Dickey. Mr. Kniss is also building on the lot on the north side from Carlisle street to 15th street, and Mr. Goldbeck is building at the corner of Broad street. Thus the close of 1886 witnesses the whole avenue built up solidly from Broad street to 18th street, with the exception of one small lot. In the accomplishment of this great enterprise and public improvement, Mr. Singler, proprietor of the Philadelphia Record, should not go unmentioned. It was through his liberality that the right of way through the cemetery was secured. His heart and influence were in the project.

A new inside blind consists of sashways having the central vertical integral parting strips, and the outer guide strips of the pulleys arranged in the ways and counterbalancing sections connected by ropes in one of the grooves. The upper spring-pressed section and the lower weighed section are arranged into the other groove.

ABERDULAIS TIN PLATE WORKS,

NEATH, WALES, NOVEMBER 19TH, 1886.

Messrs. MERCHANT & CO., Philadelphia,

DEAR SIR:—We are in receipt of your favor of November 9th, which has our most careful attention. For the past two years we have endeavored to meet the views of yourselves and customers in reference to improving the coating of the "CAMARET" leaded plate. That our mutual efforts in introducing guaranteed and stamped plates have been successful does not admit of a doubt.

Your desire to further improve the coating of the "CAMARET" so that Architects, Builders and Roofers may be still better satisfied meets our entire approval, and you can inform all friends of the "CAMARET" Roofing Plate that this brand of 1887, which we are now making for you, will be much heavier coated than any of the "CAMARET" plates we have shipped you heretofore.

We are confident that the extra coating now being put on this brand, together with our usual care in assorting, squaring, etc., will cause the "CAMARET" Roofing Plate to continue—as we are satisfied it is to-day—the leading brand of regular coated plates in America.

Yours very Truly,

(Signed)

WHO DESIRE TO MAKE SURE OF GETTING VALUE FOR THEIR OUTLAY.

What is an advertisement? It is a public announcement of a private or personal matter the value of which to the advertiser is determined by the number of announcements secured. In THE RECORD an advertisement is printed over 100,000 separate times in a single day, sent in over 100,000 different directions, and read by perhaps 300,000 different persons.

THE RECORD announces every day its actual circulation. The circulation of newspapers is generally concealed from the public and only estimated or guessed at by the advertiser. In nearly all cases reputed circulation is largely in excess of actual circulation, overstatements being greatly to the interest of newspaper publishers. For this reason the figures given by newspaper advertising agencies, based on guess or hearsay, are entirely unreliable.

The following compact table, verified by the affidavits of the proprietor and employees of THE RECORD, shows at a glance to persons who have paid for space in its advertising columns precisely what they have paid for.

There is no other establishment in Philadelphia where advertising publicity is sold which measures out to the purchaser in precise quantity and quality the commodity he buys, for the sufficient business reason that no other establishment has so much to sell or sells so much for the same money.

JOHN N. GALLAGHER, Prop'r.

Refers with permission to William M. Singerly,

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, JAN. 24, 1887.

In future—or at least as long as it is possible to obtain it—the REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE will present a weekly report of all properties that are subject to liens yet unfilled, for the removal of nuisances by the Board of Health. This information is not only invaluable to property owners, but it will also greatly facilitate searches for liens made in the interest of purchasers. A reference to the list will enable the reader to discover the amount of the claim—if any—against properties under his control, and will also enable him to liquidate the same before the lien is filed, thereby saving not only annoyance and trouble, but also cost and penalties which always follow as a natural consequence.

BUILDERS, manufacturers, storekeepers and business men generally are buying freely. The fear or the possibility of a further advance in prices is behind it. Here we are in the last week in January and prices in almost all directions are moving upward. The indications in our own line are most satisfactory. Our architects are generally busy. Our builders speak about next season's operations without any doubt as to the activity. The manufacturing interests are making preparations for further enlargements. The element of speculation has no place. Everything done or projected seems to rest on legitimate demand. The advances while welcomed by all are looked upon by all intelligent people as involving a certain element of danger. They always do. With all our expansion of capacity it does seem strange that there should be a necessity for such advances as are being made in some branches of industry. True, so far the upward tendency has been confined chiefly to iron and steel. If it extends no farther the country will soon right itself. Breadstuffs and provisions are low and declining. Textile goods are pointing upwards. Hardware, tools, implements, etc., are firm in price and may and likely will advance a little in sympathy with iron and steel.

Meanwhile every shop, mill and factory is being put in shape to do more. This extraordinary activity will terminate soon after the present era of railway construction activity is over. Possibly it may continue longer than we anticipate. Experience shows that we must look for a reaction, sooner or later. Prices always have advanced to a point where enterprise was challenged to halt, and it has halted. The lowest industrial depression we have ever had was the granite rock on which was built our greatest industrial activity. It would be better for all concerned if these fluctuations in value could be avoided. This alternate racing and balking is destructive of that kind of progress which we most desire. Fortunately, however, the business of the country is being done mostly on the capital of those engaged in business. That is, there is less borrowed money in business than usual, less of the profits go to pay interest, more remains in the pockets of producers.

The country should not permit itself to be involved by a false prosperity. Eighteen months ago steel rails sold at $26, now $40 is asked, while flour to-day sells for no more than it did eighteen months ago and so all through. The wages of labor have advanced in that time, while the net profits in most lines of manufactory have increased very little.

The danger is only prospective, yet it should be spoken of now and avoided if possible. The great bulk of productions and commodities have advanced less in proportion than the cost of production. An equalizing process is at work and if it goes no farther than to effect the equalization made necessary by dearer labor, then no harm will be done.

The retirement of Robert E. Pattison as Governor of the State of Pennsylvania is an episode in the history of the commonwealth of no insignificant importance, inasmuch as it is a refreshing instance of the ending of an official career characterized by manly dignity and official honesty of such an eminent degree that not a single act of his as Chief Magistrate of the commonwealth is open even for the shadow of suspicion, that he is not a member of the dominant part is no just reason why people and press should not with unstinted praise express their appreciation of a man who has so justly earned their esteem and admiration.

The official career of ex-Governor Pattison, like that of our present City Solicitor Warwick, is an evidence that there is no danger either to the city or the commonwealth in placing young men in high official positions, for both have exceeded the expectations of their most sanguine friends and supporters.

The first attempt at an architectural association in this country was made in Philadelphia fifty years ago.

ARCH STREET resists the march of invasion like a martyr. Its old timers barely look out upon the creeping trade spirit. Real Estate brokers say this year will make a decided change in the affairs of that street below 13th.

THE New York Real Estate Exchange proposes to take a hand in securing appropriations for coast defences. Why don't our bantling flap its wings and crow for defences, or at least for the removal of Smith's Island for, instance.

THE New York Lawyers have taken up the question of Land Transfers to ascertain in their mild way of putting it "what improvements, if any, should be made in the Indexing of Real Estate records in the public Registers' office.

THE small cities and towns throughout the State will present a lively appearance on the opening of spring. Building, especially house building, we learn on good authority will be prosecuted all through the middle and eastern section of the State. The activity in the iron and steel industries have something to do with this. Wages have been advanced and a liberality in expenditure has been developed.

ELEVATORS are a factor in civilization. They save time, money and weariness. The business has grown faster almost than any other. We learn that the dozen or more concerns of national reputation are very busy, and that capacity and speed are on the increase. The elevator builders have had an exceptionally prosperous season, and their orders already this year foot up beyond precedent.

FAVORABLE reports are received from building material and supply houses in all large cities. Contracts for supplies are now being placed for all manner of material, from lumber and concrete and brick up to gas-fixtures, and even for decorations. Office furniture has become quite a business, especially in the West, and the excellence of the workmanship is admitted by Eastern office tenants.

SEVENTEEN unions are now represented in the Building Trades Council of Philadelphia, an addition of three during the last quarter. The membership is now 20,000. The Council will print for general information 5,000 pamphlets containing the laws of Pennsylvania relating to mechanics' liens. The Council might go farther and suggest, and possibly help to enforce certain improvements.

A FEW months ago we gave Front street, north and south, a hit between the eyes. There are symptoms of improvement. Some improvements have been going on, enlargements and the like. A few buildings idle last summer are now occupied. If Smith's Island were dug away and Philadelphia harbor made fit for sea-going vessels property all along the river would appreciate in value. Girard brought it up, but the old man is dead.

SOME newspaper reporters are good architects on paper. They have had the old post-office building torn down a half a dozen times and a magnificent building erected in its stead and rented out at fabulous prices. Mr. A. J. Drexel informs us he has not yet made any definite plans in regard to building on that site and that the reports in the papers are manufactured. Plans are under consideration, but Mr. Drexel says they will not be ready for some time.

MARKET STREET properties are advancing. Asking prices are climbing. A number of important purchases are contemplated. The tearing down of an old rookery makes one step in the right direction. How half the properties on that thoroughfare can be devoted to the uses to which they are devoted is a mystery. A brilliant future for Market street is not assured yet, shanties, vacant lots and sheds and old rookeries, in frame and bricks, are seen every where between Broad street and the Schuylkill.

"We are told, and we are not anxious to dispute the statement, that the labor troubles are practically over. The labor leaders ought to study the strike statistics of last year and if such a study will not convince them of the inutility of strikes then no figures can. The successes were few, the failures many. Still there are abuses that demand righting for labor is an ox that has to pull a heavy load. Capital can run at the approach of danger, and it will. What we need, is an absolute settlement of wages, hours of labor, and questions of unionism and labor.

THE question of insurance is one which more closely interests architects than the question of the cost of material, or even the style of building. Styles of architecture are pretty well settled. It is a mere matter of arrangement but how to prevent fires or at least to so construct buildings that the minimum of risk will be encountered, is an important question and one which is yearly growing in importance. This is not only true as to dwellings but as to mills and factories. The total losses for the last year have been given variously but a fair estimate is $115,000,000. This is only one item. Connected with this is the cost of fire departments and losses from other sources the total amount of which has been put at as high as $300,000,000. This costs each family in fire protection and losses by fire, about $30 per annum or 60 cents per week. This immense loss is increasing from year to year, and it is making the insurance business less desirable. Higher rates will not be submitted to, excepting under protest by the business community. The only remedy is in greater care in the prevention of fires. A great deal is to be saved in this way. Much loss is due to inexcusable or at least curable carelessness. The fact that a mill is well insured, frequently leads to habits of carelessness even where the employers or employees do not imagine themselves to be careless. A more educated public sentiment is needed in this matter. The evil is one of magnitude. Capital will be withdrawn from insurance investments if this heavy loss continues. New avenues are opening up and advantage will be taken of them, unless those who have the insurance matters under their control will see that losses are reduced in number and amount. A great deal has been written and said upon this question and some of the suggestions made are wise, and all of them ought to be observed but the practical results are, that each year's volume of losses from fires is larger than the preceding one.

NOTWITHSTANDING the advanced stage of mechanical science and machinery at the present time, there are some things which were accomplished hundreds of years ago which now baffle the skill and ingenuity of the best workmen in the world. Mrs. Wm. B. Astor, of New York, is the fortunate possessor of a pair of diamond ear drops weighing about 10 kts each, they are egg shaped and are cut briolet, i.e., the facets are cut all over them, they are suspended by a small gold wire, running through them, the question is how were these minute holes drilled through them, there is no known metal hard enough to pierce a diamond, even with diamond dust, they came from India and are rare antiquities, they have been submitted to the most expert diamond cutters throughout the world, and all have declared it impossible to drill a diamond at the present time, it is supposed though that the holes were drilled with a small tool made from a diamond, though this is conjecture only. These ear drops cost Mr. Astor $50,000.

No. 31 south 15th street is now the headquarters of the Philadelphia Chapter of Architects.

AMONG the bills introduced at Harrisburg is one to make twelve hours a day's labor on horse, cable and electric cars.

OUR city was well represented in the National Board of Trade which was in session last week at Washington D. C.

LAST year 1802 locomotives were built in the United States. There are in all about 28,000 locomotives in use, and it is estimated that 1,000 a year is necessary to replace those worn out.

THE Board of Surveyors met on last Monday and approved the location of two or three miles of sewers, and conformed the plans of the re-survey of the four survey districts, between Broad and Twenty second streets.

THE usual pre-election, Mayoralty-police raids upon low dance houses, gambling dens and other d-lec-table iniquities, will probably be omitted this year, as they are not likely to occur when an incumbent's aspirations have been chilled by circumstances over which he has no control.

ANOTHER Hebrew is stepping towards the foot of the British throne and possibly some day may occupy a position not much less in its dignity than that occupied by Beaconsfield. This man is Geo. J. Goshen. He is a man of signal ability and has right ideas upon questions of finance which underlie Britain's prosperity.

SECTION 4 of the new city ordinance to carry into effect the Bullitt Bill reads as follows:

The Board of Building Inspectors shall be attached to and under the direction and control of the department of public safety, and shall consist of three members, who shall perform the duties now by law allotted to it, and at the expiration of the term of the present inspectors the director of said department shall appoint their successors. Provided, said board shall be composed of practical carpenters and brick layers but the three members shall not all be of the same occupation.

"I WOULD buy this house the very moment prohibition became a law in Philadelphia." This was said in reference to a property situated but a few minutes' walk from our business centre, and which, were it not for the rum mills and disreputable influences in the neighborhood, would readily sell for one hundred per cent. more money than could possibly be obtained for it at present. We merely quote the above to show that some people do not consider liquor saloons, free and easy and other entertainments for man and beast advantageous auxiliaries in refining and improving neighborhoods, and maintaining the value of property.

SANITARY questions have received a good deal of patient and scholarly discussion in American and British journals during the past year or two. Public opinion seem to have awakened to the fact that reforms in sanitary appliances and methods are extremely necessary. Much progress has been made in a short time. Builders are quite willing to adopt all the latest improvements. Even the owners of old residences, shops and factories are adopting improvements which are calculated to make the life and health conditions more favorable. Throughout the Western States a great deal of interest is being manifested in sanitary reform. Boards of Health are adopting active and radical measures to establish reform on a permanent basis, and they are having the co-operation of all good citizens. As a natural result, many inventions are brought to the attention of the public, some of which are deserving of adoption, but many of which show that the originators are simply students or apprentices in the art of sanitation. Here in Philadelphia we are making wonderful progress, yet it is surprising what a great field still exists notwithstanding all that has been done.

BUYERS of city lots find higher prices generally asked than a year ago. This is not at all surprising, the only matter of surprise is that old properties have remained so long at a standstill. Business requirements are pressing and large sales are expected to be made during the next four weeks.

It requires no great perception to recognize a growing sentiment against the sale of rum and also against the influence of the rum-seller. Men of extreme ideas advocate the adoption of ultra measures and have declared that nothing short of prohibition will suit them, and a large increase is being made to the ranks of this ultra party, but the great conservative sentiment which is spreading a hundred fold faster than the other, is that in favor of high license. The order loving, and law abiding citizens of large communities are not all prohibitionists, by any means, neither are they strictly speaking, temperance people, yet it is from the great mass of conservatives that the rum interest has most to fear. The man who takes but a casual drink of intoxicating liquor or who will not drink at all through his natural inherent strength, and not because of temperance societies or even religious obligations is fully as well qualified to judge of the merits of the question as is the most ultra prohibitionist, he is equally as intelligent and generally more thoroughly practical, he can be found in all phases of society and in all business interests, he fully comprehends the baneful influences of rum and he is just as much disgusted with the brazen faced impudence of the rum-selling braggart as is his prohibition neighbor. He is quite as strong in his convictions and is as thoroughly independent in his actions. He believes in a good stiff license, because he knows that some men will have rum even if compelled to distil it at their homes on the kitchen stove, and further because he believes that the rum traffic should support the prisons and almshouses filled with its victims.

It might be argued that if prohibition was once adopted there would be no victims. This would probably be the fact were it possible to enforce prohibition against its manufacture throughout the world, but so long as intoxicants are made, the ingenuity of man will defeat all the prohibition laws that have been or that can be made.

WE are told our school houses and residences have too much hot air in them and that much sickness of the pneumonia and consumptive sort can be traced to this cause. Let these wise men tell us some better way instead of chasing us with hobgoblins stuck on the ends of poles.

THE Business Committee of Philadelphia is willing, for the present, to admit that the only opposition to a strong element in Councils to the construction of an elevated railroad in this city, is because of the defects in our general railroad law. The sincerity of this will be attested. The Legislature will be asked to amend the law, and if, under the opposition of those who were opposed to the elevated railway, the necessary amendments are not made, the opposing element will be heard from. It is, of course, the programme to defeat whatever defects exist. It is easy to show an open hand just now in Councils, and manifest a willingness to "reform next year." However, we are glad to see that Mr. Hammett has reported through the Railroad Company a resolution to ask the Legislature to so amend the general railroad law, as to permit the construction of an elevated railroad under certain conditions. A strong committee will go to Harrisburg to urge the passage of the amendment. The Board of Directors of this proposed road have informed Councils that they have modified their plans to meet all the opposition heretofore made. A communication states that the route now proposed covers Front street as far north as Girard avenue; thence along Girard avenue east to Norris street to Moyer street; through Moyer street to York street; thence to Commerce street to Cedar street to Lehigh avenue; thence up Lehigh avenue to Kensington avenue, across Kensington avenue, to C street, along C street to Tusculum street, along Tusculum street to Front street, and thence to Jenkintown. Also a branch from Lehigh avenue and Emerald street, through Emerald street, across Frankford creek, through Thomas street, Meadow and Cedar streets to Bridge street, and thence to Tacony. This enables the road to avoid passing any private residences except upon wide streets, such as Girard avenue and Lehigh avenue, where the road being in the middle of a very wide street, could not possibly be any disadvantage to the residents.

It is only when some prominent person like Geo. W. Childs falls upon an icy sidewalk, and is seriously hurt, that the public mind seems to appreciate the enormity of its negligence. The thousands who go down and are lifted up with broken bones, the mending of which takes months of precious time to the wage-earner, and means want and trial and suffering to weak women and helpless children, the general public take no stock in. It is sad enough at the best to see a human being seriously injured, under any circumstance, but doubly sad when the injured one, through no fault of his own, lies prone upon a hospital bed, conscious all the time that mother and the bairns are faring hard enough through his misfortune.

If the South Mountain water lease proposition does not go through, it will at least cause a serious consideration of what's the next best thing to do to get clear of the necessity of drinking the filthy water from the Schuylkill. There are hundreds of families in this city that use water for drinking purposes obtained from melted ice. These people are enabled to avoid the chances of disease, although at considerable expense; but what are the thousands of poor men's families to do but take their chance? Water once polluted can never be purified short of distillation. There is certainly no poetry in the fact that the people of this city are taking with their daily rations of Schuylkill the worst form of sewage from the 350,000 people living north of Fairmount dam, on the borders of the Schuylkill river.

THE Bricklayers Company held their annual meeting last Thursday at Mercantile Hall. The present membership is 120, an addition of 39. Since the last annual report was read officers and committees to perform various duties have been elected to serve during the coming year. The treasurer's report showed $16,000 assets. Henry R. Coulomb was elected President for the ensuing year; Thomas Singleton and Samuel Hart were elected Vice-Presidents, and Stephen Morris Treasurer, and Edward S. Fitch Secretary. After the conclusion of business 110 persons, some of them invited guests, sat down to dinner.

ARCHITECTURAL and building papers, east and west, have much to say that is worth reading. The freshest thoughts and conceptions of studious architects find place in the columns of our papers, and the builders and contractors find an abundant supply of information concerning new devices, new material, better methods, and so on. An architect or builder who does not read current literature of architecture or building, must certainly be very wise or else a great deal of matter is published which is of no use. The recognition which papers in this line are receiving is encouraging to publishers and editors. As a bank receives and holds the unused capital of a community, so a paper gathers up the fresh thoughts and new ideas as they come to the surface.

THE warning of houses is deserving of study. The only remedy for the evils of house-warning, says a prominent writer, is to entirely abandon the plan of applying the heat to the air, of making the air the carrier of the heat. Heat wants no carrier any more than light.

"Put your fire in proper position; take away the iron and brick casings that enclose it and obstruct its natural movements, and, quicker than you can think, the heat will be flashed all over your room, darting out in straight lines in every direction from the surface of the fire, down, up and horizontally; and this without expense for pipes or hot-air ducts. If one grate is not enough, put another on the opposite side of your room. Coals are cheaper than coffins; the wood is better used to keep the body alive than to enclose it when dead."

Coals may be cheaper than coffins, but we have become so accustomed to machinery and mechanical contrivances that we would almost prefer coffins to grates. Heaters and registers, and flues and steam-pipes have become indispensable, and theories or learned soddings will not stop them.

THE Builder's Exchange will be a valuable feature under the intelligent management with which it starts out. Its aim is "to encourage the building interests in the city and county of Philadelphia; maintain uniformity in commercial usages; disseminate valuable business information and avoid or adjust the controversies between individuals engaged in trade." The builders feel quite friendly towards the project. They recognize the need of more frequent communication and an enlargement of the field which has been partly filled by the Carpenter's Association of Philadelphia. It would have been well to have taken steps to arbitrate all labor difficulties. That may become a very important and pressing issue. New issues may arise, not involving wages or hours of labor. The question of freely admitting foreign workmen to the craft may be one and the question of working with non-union labor may be another.

It was indeed an act of chivalrous gallantry for Alexander P. Colesberry to withdraw as a candidate for the vacancy in the Board of Education, in order that Miss Anna Hallowell, might be appointed to the place. Miss Hallowell is the first woman ever appointed a member of the Board.

FIVE cent dinners will do more to advance the cause of religion, temperance and morality than all the millions expended in costly dinners. They are trying two cent dinners over in Brooklyn. Booths are being erected in various places for the experiment. A cup of coffee and a piece of bread goes for one cent, and a bowl of soup for the other. Strange as this may seem, it is practicable on a large—a sort of Wanamaker scale, so to speak; but hire and hauling and dish-washing will prove an impediment to the success of this novel attempt. One thousand two cent feeds gives $20, which will buy enough to carry out the programme. A five cent booth on Market street, and one on South, and another at Front and Vine might pay.

Brewster's Blackstone.

The Hon. F. Carroll Brewster, L.L.D., formerly City Solicitor of Philadelphia, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of this county, and Attorney General of the state of Pennsylvania, has just added to his many well earned laurels, an epitome of Blackstone's Commentaries, which is the trap rock if not the fountain of law. Many a tutor has said to his student (after the student had finished reading Blackstone) when asked what law book he should read next "read Blackstone."

Judge Brewster has prefaced his work with a list of his many and eminent students, no doubt their tutelage, covering a period of over a quarter of a century, inspired this able jurist to condense and still preserve the strength of the master legal mind of the world.

Mr. Brewster's condensation, abridged by his vast legal experience, gives the best hand-book and guide to legal students, to the conveyancer, and to the full fledged lawyer. The rule in Shelley's case has been exhaustively treated and interpreted in the light of the most recent decisions of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, giving reference to each decision, its book and page. This alone is worth the price of the book. But when we add to these the intuitive terseness of Judge Brewster's logic and composition, it excludes all redundant memorizing. The student who pursues this book with care becomes an anatomizer of the law. Its bones, joints, sinews, extensors and flexors are here represented and easily classified.

What is law?

Of course, as a whole, it is composite, traditional and even unwritten (lex non scripta) legislative acts, treaties of nations and judicial decisions (stare decisis), but in the main it is the crystallization of the common sense of men for ages past.

Blackstone is the pre-eminent writer and digester of this crystallization. Judge Brewster has succinctly given all the salient points of the four Books of Blackstone, which cover over one thousand pages, and this he has done in one volume of less than three hundred pages, embracing questions and answers.

We heartily commend the book to our subscribers and readers.

THE next thing that the legislature of Pennsylvania will be doing will be to start a new State House. There has been a great deal of talk for years past concerning this, but the terrible examples of wasteful expenditure we have had in other cities, makes the people rather afraid to enter upon a State House structure for themselves. Judging from the quarters the Building is good enough. If there were any prospect of getting better legislation in a better building, the thing should be done at once, as there is no certainty of this, our law makers had better go slowly. They ought to be able to find some other way of spending a few millions.

FAILURES in the United States during 1886 numbered 10,563 against 11,116 during the preceding year.

THE Baltimore American says:—The Baltimore Real Estate Exchange reported yesterday the results of the business of its first year of organization. The showing made is a remarkably good one, and promises well for a future of increasing prosperity. It is a well-organized and ably managed body, composed of active, industrious and intelligent men of business and deserves the full measure of success.

Recent Decisions in Pennsylvania in Relation to Matters Concerning Real Estate and Building Associations.

Decided by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

A building association has a right to retain from a withdrawing stockholder a proportion of the probable loss sustained by reason of the purchase of real estate sold on its mortgage, which has depreciated in value, even before the loss has been finally determined by a sale; it may be ascertained by an appraisal.

DECEDENT'S ESTATES.

When lands are sold for the payment of debts, taxes and ground rent which accrued between the confirmation of the sale and execution of the deed, are payable out of the proceeds; so is a municipal assessment under like circumstances.

DEED.

A judgment upon a mortgage, given by a married woman, will not be opened, merely upon the husband's unsupported testimony, that the wife was not separately examined by the justice who took the acknowledgment.

EASEMENTS.

A purchaser of land to which an apparent easement is attached, is affected with notice of its true origin and history, and acquires no rights inconsistent therewith.

EJECTMENT.

The action for mesne profits is an equitable one, and therefore a bona fide occupant, under color of title, who has made permanent and valuable improvements may show that they are a full compensation for the use of the premises.

ESTOPPEL.

A wife by joining in a conveyance of her husband's land, is not estopped from claiming under a mortgage held in trust for her.

FIXTURES.

Physical annexation is not essential to convert a chattel into a fixture; if the article, whether fast or loose, be indispensable in carrying on the specific business, it becomes a part of the realty.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

A purchaser at sheriff's sale of an unexpired term of years, as assignee in law is entitled to the benefit of a covenant on the part of the lessor, to repay at the expiration of the term, a sum of money deposited with an insurance company, by the lessee to effect a perpetual insurance upon the demised premises for the benefit of the lessor.

MECHANICS' LIEN.

A mechanic may file his claim against the person who was the owner of the property, at the time when the work was commenced. It is not necessary to name the contractor, unless the claimant contracted with him.

MORTGAGE (FORECLOSURE OF.)

An averment in the scire facias, of a default in the payment of interest, whereby the mortgage debt became due, is conclusive unless contested.

It is no defence to a forfeiture for non-payment of interest, that the mortgagee had agreed to notify the mortgagor, when the same fell due.

BUILDERS' ITEMS.

Building and Real Estate Notes.

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., is to have a fire brick works.

THE Easby Mansion at Media, is to be newly decorated.

COL. A. K. McCLEURE is to greatly improve his residence at Wallingford.

THE extent of building in Media in 1887, it is estimated, will amount to $300,000.

CHESTER never presented a busier scene than now among its mills.

ABRAHAM MARKLEY has become a large purchaser of real estate in Lansdale.

IN Minneapolis last year over 4000 buildings were erected at a cost of $11,000,000.

CHESTER, PA., wants a congressional appropriation of $75,000 for a new public building.

D. WYNCOOP MCNAIR, has purchased real estate near Mechanicsville, Bucks county.

THOMAS STAPLER of this city, has purchased a farm near Newtown, Bucks county, at $150 per acre.

THERE is already good inquiries for suburban properties along the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

J. R. McELROY, 205 South 6th street, has lately sold a property on Walnut street above 11th for $28,000.

E. M. STAUFFER, of Quarryville, Lancaster county, Pa., intends erecting a large mill at that place.

S. WALKER & SON, 1304 South 18th street, report sales slow. They look for big operations when spring opens.

ALBERT THOMPSON, of Wrightstown, Bucks county, has bought real estate in Newtown, the same county.

THE Tradesmen's Bank will occupy quarters in the new Drexel building, to be located on the site of the old post office.

THE Western District glass manufacturers will advance the card rate of window glass at least 5 per cent. during the next two weeks.

THE Abram Cox Stove Company—office, North Second street, this city—will erect new works at Lansdale, Montgomery county, Pa.

TWENTY two story eight room houses will be built by John McConaghy, on Federal street between Twenty and Twenty-first streets.

THE farm of Caleb Sharpless, Kennett, 30 acres, has been sold by his assignees to James Phillips, East Marlborough, Chester county, for $4,000.

H. H. HOUSTON of Wissahickon, will build one hundred two and three-story houses with mansard roofs at Chestnut Hill this spring.

THE stone masons and bricklayers of Chester will build a headquarters of imposing proportions, which will have a hall with a seating capacity of 1,000.

COMPANY B, the crack military organization of Chester, talks of erecting an armory and opera house combined. Captain F. G. Sweeney has the project in hand.

JOHN GREER & Co., will build a factory plant at 16th and Reed streets, 45 feet front on 16th street and 118 feet deep on Reed street. It will be for four stories high.

AN elegant fireproof hotel is to be built this season at Minneapolis, 75 feet by 146 feet and 146 feet high, of pressed brick and stone. The estimated cost is $800,000.

THE Camden National Bank has secured the property at Kaighns avenue and Second street, Camden, for $8,000, and will erect a suitable bank building thereon at an early day.

J. T. CARROLL, 8th and Passayunk Av., says small houses are in good demand, and prices are well maintained. Owing to the bad weather they have made no very recent sales.

J. P. MORNEN, 923 Walnut street, has a large demand for small houses for investments. Nine roomed houses are wanted for homes. In suburban properties things are quiet.

CLOSE & CHUBB, 5th and Walnut streets, have bought mortgages and ground rents to the amount of $60,000 this month. They claim small houses to be scarce and bargains unknown.

THERE is no truth in the report that Henry C. Lea will erect a six-story building at 1016 Chestnut street this spring, as Messrs. Walmesley & Co. have secured a lease for another year.

TRYMME, HUNT & Co., will occupy the building formerly occupied as La Salle College at the N. E. corner of Filbert and Juniper streets, while their new building is in course of construction.

THE New Camden Opera House will be located at 313 Market street. The auditorium is to be 60 by 90 feet, and will have a seating capacity of 2,000. $35,000 is to be expended in improvements.

THE Patterson Mills Company, of Chester, Pa., whose mill has been idle for several years, will shortly resume operation. The building will be provided with Otis Brothers & Co's hoisting machines.

MR. CHARLES E. FISHER has been elected a member of the Board of Directors of the Baltimore Real Estate Exchange to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation from the Board of Mr. Charles E. Savage.

THE South-west corner of 17th and Sansom streets will be torn down about the 1st of March and four handsome modern residences will be erected fronting on 17th street by J. J. Solomon, proprietor of the Bingham House.

S. E. GARDNER, 7th and Washington Av., reports that more small houses are wanted; as there is plenty of capital seeking this kind of investment, and those holding small houses are satisfied with a smaller return than formerly.

L. T. BROOKE, 731 Walnut street, reports the sales of suburban properties as a little slow, with prospects good for spring. There is considerable inquiry for farm properties. The Crosby store at Rosenmont has been sold for $5,500.

DENVER, Col., is a very active city from a building standpoint. Last year over $2,000,000, were expended in buildings and 709 building permits were issued. A State Capitol building will be constructed this year at a cost of $1,000,000.

SOUTH STREET has begun to pick up, prospectively at least, especially beyond Broad. Two or three manufactory sites are being looked for. Some fine business stores have gone up within the few months. East of Broad the street is as of old, slow yet capable of being made a very valuable thoroughfare.

L. MIDDLETON, 731 Walnut street, reports a good demand for moderate sized houses and tenants are willing to pay good rents he looks for an opening in spring for large properties, and has considerable inquiries for suburban properties. Germantown houses are in good demand for rentals.

E. J. PAXSON, 733 Walnut street, has several suburban properties for sale to speculators at Villa Nova Station, on the P. R. R., at $3000 per acre. At Lansdale, Pa., at $300 per acre, and a tract of land with railroad front at Westville near Woodbury, N. J., containing 76 acres for $20,000.

LAST year 370 brick buildings in Boston cost $6,157,050. 1140 wooden buildings cost $3,108,426. The most costly building was the Massachusetts Hospital Insurance Company which cost $400,000. The Boston Gas-light Company expended $900,000 last year. A large number of hotels were erected in Boston.

A HOTEL to be called the Grand Avenue Hotel, will be built in Kansas City 120x220 feet, and eight stories high at a cost of $600,000. During December permits were issued in that city for buildings which will cost $610,000. These are samples of the business activity which is coming to the surface in the West.

CHICAGO is to have a grand opera house at a cost of $2,000,000. The tower will be 300 feet high. The auditorium will seat 5000, but 8000 can be crammed into it if necessary. The stage will be 70x120 feet. There is only one open house in the world larger than this one and that is at Milan. Chicago always does try to beat the world.

WITHIN the past ten days Thomas H. Parks, of 1917 Norris street, has resold five houses on the South side of French street, west of 16th, to Mr. E. F. Smith, previously sold to Mr. J. H. Sheble. Also 2010 North 19th street, to Mr. James J. Cummings, and the south-west corner 19th and Page streets to Mr. Henry Waugh. Considering the season quite a satisfactory inquiry for sale and rent is in progress.

SIMPSON & FRIEL, 19th and Walnut streets, will as soon as the weather permits start on 28 houses at Jumbo Park; which will have 6 and 8 rooms each. They have started twelve eight roomed houses on the north side of Tasker street between 15th and 16th streets. Out of 135 houses they have built they have only five to sell. Three being corner stores and two dwellings, but these are rented to good paying tenants.

J. A. McCaughy, 1215 Long Lane, reports that the old established brick-yard of Jacob Jarden was sold on Wednesday. The ground will be built on by H. C. Webster this coming season. A lot of thirteen houses on Twenty-second street below Federal street which have for some time been under litigation, have passed into the hands of H. C. Webster, who will finish them and put them on the market this spring.

INSTEAD of rebuilding on the site of the burned furniture manufactory on Wilder street near Fifth and Reed in this city, John D. Raggio, the owner, intends erecting thirteen dwellings there. He has purchased the site of the previously burned lard-oil works of Washington Butcher's Sons and the property adjoining at the northwest corner of Sixth and Moore streets, on which he is now erecting a factory at a cost of $45,000.

FOLSON is a new town eight and a half miles from Philadelphia, on the B. & O. R., a quarter of a mile from Moorestation on the P. W. & B. R., and three-quarters of a mile from Morton on the West Chester R. R., via Media, it adjoins Ridley and Prospect Parks, and the new town of Ruthledge built on the old Tasker farm. The B. & O. have erected a handsome new depot, the largest on the road between Philadelphia and Chester.

COULD not our Lumber Dealers Exchange, Builders Exchange and Real Estate Exchange pool their issues and get together and put up a whopper of an exchange. Why even over in New York the lumber men are talking of amalgamating with the Building Material Exchange. A meeting was held on Tuesday of last week at the Gilsey House to talk it all over, and the talk was in favor of the "corn line" which seems the way of putting it now, provided certain difficulties could be overcome, of which there is not much hope.

THE Chester News says: "There is every prospect for a big building boom in South Chester when spring comes and the weather is fit for outside work. Unless plans are changed the lot of ground on the north side of Third street between Reany and Morton streets will be built up before the summer is over. For a long time there was only one building on that side of Third street between Flower and Morton streets, but there are several at present, with the prospect of having all these sites covered by houses or other buildings in a short time. A South Chester gentleman who is identified with the interests of the place says that not only will building operations be brisk on Third street, but in all parts of the town, so that work will be plenty for carpenters, masons, painters and the other artisans employed in erecting new houses or stores. Quite a number of new houses were erected last year, but it is alleged that the list will be doubled this year."

A BUILDING BOOM FOR POTTSTOWN.—There is a building boom in prospect for Pottstown during the coming Spring, as the following from the Ledger of that place indicates:

Mark H. Richards, Esq., Agent, has sold to Messrs. Thos. Taylor, Ellis Mills and James H. Lafferty, the valuable property, north-east corner of High and Penn streets, Pottstown, 30 feet front by 140 feet deep, for the sum of $20,000. This real estate formerly belonged to the estate of David Weand, deceased, but was afterwards purchased by Mrs. William M. Minter, Miss Sallie Weand, Mrs. William R. Shuler, Jr., and Mrs. Levi Prizer, four of the heirs of said estate. The purchase now made is 60 feet front and extends back 140 feet, the owners retaining the King street front. It is understood that Mr. Taylor takes the corner property, 20 feet front on High street, at $7,500; Mr. Mills the next 20 feet at $6,250, and Mr. Lafferty the last 20 feet, which includes the old post-office sites, at $6,250. The purchasers will take possession next Spring and intend to erect this Summer, a block of three store rooms, Mr. Taylor to have his for rent, Mr. Mills to remove his business to his new store, and Mr. Lafferty either to rent or occupy his premises.

Architect's Notes.

W. E. JACKSON, 506 Walnut street, has just finished a stone fence and vaulted entrance at Tulpehooken and Green streets, Germantown. The entrance is built of undressed local stone the fence extends around the property and is capped with stone on edge. The vaulted entrance on the corner has a shingle roof.

LINDLEY JOHNSON, 431 Walnut street, is getting out the plans for the Second National Bank of Atlantic City, N. J., on the site of the West Jersey depot at New York and Atlantic Aves. The building will be 32x79, built of brick with stone trimmings. There will be a large building for the bank proper, with rooms for Directors, &c., with second story for janitor and watchman. It will be built in Romanesque style. Also the plans for a public school on Pennsylvania Ave., Atlantic City, N. J., which is to be a brick building with granite trimmings and will cost about $25,000 and a large residence at Chestnut Hill for Mr. Alfred Rex, to be built of stone on the Flemish order.

J. J. DEERY, 328 Walnut street, has the plans for a new parish building for St. Marks Catholic Church. This is a school house and church combined, built of Trenton brown stone, the basement will be for society purposes and heating chambers for steam boilers. The first story will be used for school rooms, and the hall will be in the second story, finished with open timber roof. The design being a modern treatment of Romanesque, and will cost $18,000, he has just finished and taken down the scaffolding from the exterior of St. Michaels Church at Second and Jefferson streets, and will completely rebuild the interior in very elaborate style. The whole interior will be torn out and remodelled, everything going in being new work.

G. T. PEARSON, 427 Walnut street, has under way a double house for Mr. H. T. Mason at Cheltenham, near P. R. R., three stories high, built of stone and tiles at a cost of $17,000, with two high towers and red slate roof. Four houses on Wingoeken Terrace, Germantown, each for separate owners dissimilar in design, part stone and part shingle, in the local antique Germantown style. The four houses will cost about $32,000. Alterations and improvements for Mr. J. F. Stoer, on Mannheim street, complete rebuilding of interior with fine staircase, oak hall, conservatory, &c., to cost about $10,000. A residence for Mr. Ambler, editor of the Farm Journal, near Ambler, Pa., which is to be a long, low old fashioned pebble-dashed stone house and will cost $10,000. A farm house at Beverly, N. J., for Mr. T. E. Maris, all shingle, very steep roof, two stories in the roof, open fire place, &c., to cost about $5,000. A stone chapel for the Wakefield Presbyterian Church, Main street, Germantown, with class rooms and gallery, stained glass windows decorated walls and ceiling and will cost when finished $15,000. Four pairs of houses on Johnson street, Germantown, dissimilar in design, with simple but very different treatment from the usual for double houses, stone walls, steep shingle roof, reaching nearly to the ground and enclosing the porches. These will cost about $5,000 a pair. An extension and alteration to the Luray Inn, Luray, Va. A new wing 50x300 with 100 sleeping rooms, parlor, alcoves, &c. Exterior of the shingle treatment with large circular tower at the extreme southern end. The alterations to the present building, will comprise entirely new kitchen department, auxiliary offices, the addition of a children's dining room and two extensions of the main dining room. These additions are made with the view of a class of travel seeking longer stays at this place than has been possible under the present limited conditions of the Inn. The cost of these alterations and additions will be about $40,000.

Where there are no figures to indicate the amount of the judgment, the damages have not been assessed.

The first name in each line is that of the judgment debtor.

An asterisk (*) denoted judgment confessed or bond and warrant continued.

The figures 1 2 3 and 4 immediately after the name of the plaintiff indicates the number of the Court. The letters D, M, J. and S. after the number of the Court indicate the Term as D, December Term, M., March Term, as J., June term and S., September Term.

An examination as to the nature of judgments and suits will be made for subscribers without extra charge on application.

The New Straw Lumber.

One of our latest enterprises is the manufacture of lumber from straw. We are told that the Egyptians of old, made brick from straw, but it has been left to Mr. S. H. Hamilton to demonstrate that a very superior lumber can be manufactured from this cheap material. This is not an untried experiment, but has been in practical use, and wherever used has given entire satisfaction.

A company has been formed under the title of the Hamilton Straw Lumber Company, with a capital stock of $100,000, and have taken the extensive premises at Fairmount and Delaware avenues. Some idea of the magnitude of the building can be formed when we state that there is a floorage of two acres and a half. Mr. Hamilton, who is the inventor and manager of the concern, has evinced a remarkable amount of far-sightedness and business tact in his selection of this site for his enterprise, for it would have been an impossibility for him to select a better place with better facilities for getting in and sending out material. The P. R. R. has a switch running into the building. The P. & R. have a track close at hand, and for water facilities a slip runs up from the river directly opposite the presses. The company have put in a 50 H.-P. boiler and a 40 H.-P. engine, built by Nagle, of Erie, Pa. They have a large oven, containing 1,000 ft. of two-inch pipe for superheating the steam for the purpose of heating the chemicals and the building. Two large iron vats, holding about ten barrels of chemicals, enclosed in brick work, and around the sides of the vat and underneath run two coils of pipe for heating the chemicals, thus doing away with all risk of fire. Gigantic presses are used, weighing 19,000 lbs. each. The factory is now running, with a capacity from 20,000 to 25,000 feet of boards, 32 inches wide and 12 1/2 feet long, daily. Owing to the depopulation of our forests, the value of this lumber can at once be seen, and it has many advantages over natural wood. It is impervious to heat, cold or moisture, will not crack, warp or shrink. It has no grain, and consequently cannot splinter. It is very elastic and combines hardness and strength. It resists all dampness and atmospheric action, and decay is prevented by a resinous substance, with which it is completely filled. It can be brought to the highest polish at less than one-half the cost of natural wood, there are no pores to fill or defects to hide. It can be painted, varnished, shellacced, oiled, papered, and in fact covered by the use of any known adhesive. It can be given any tint, shade or color, and can be pressed or molded into any shape or design for decorative purposes. In the process of manufacture it can be worked to a finish, and makes a remarkably natural imitation of mahogany, cherry, ebony, rosewood, or any other natural wood susceptible of a fine polish or gloss. With this material no seasoning or drying is necessary, as it is without pores and perfectly sapless, and is always ready for immediate use. It can be sawed, planed, bored, nailed, dovetailed, grooved, or worked in any manner with the same tools used for natural wood. It can be subjected at will to various degrees of heat and pressure, thus regulating its hardness or softness. It can be made to imitate the finest marble to such a degree of perfection that it would take an expert to tell it from the genuine article, and can be used in the place of slate or marble for such purposes as mantels, vestibules, table-tops, billiard tables, and for many other purposes where a high degree of finish and hardness and beauty is required. For the manufacture of musical instruments it has been demonstrated that it is regularly adapted on account of the absence of pores and its great density. The uninterrupted transmission of the vibrations of sound produces a finer and sweeter tone and far greater melody. In weight it is one-tenth heavier than walnut, and possesses twice its tensile strength, and is therefore far more desirable than natural wood for use in the construction of railway coaches, ships and other conveyances used in transportation. It is manufactured and sold at a less price than clear white pine, while in the finer shades, such as mahogany, cherry, walnut, bird's-eye maple, or any of the other natural woods susceptible of a high polish, straw lumber fills the bill at one-half the price of natural woods.

Straw lumber can be used with satisfactory results for inside work, such as wainscoting, door panels, plain ceilings, or any work requiring high polish, while the cheaper grades can be used for weather boarding, roofing, cornices, flooring, etc. It has been used with perfect success in the manufacture of furniture, for panel work in bedsteads, washstands, desks, pianos, bureaus, etc. It is a perfect substitute for canvass for portrait painting. Carriage makers have proved its value in carriage beds and panels, and for coaches, buggies, etc. The bookbinders have proved its adaptability for the covers of books. It is a perfect substitute for lath and plaster. For a cheap and perfect imitation of marble, nothing has yet equaled it for counters, billiard tables and burial caskets. Numbers of testimonials have already been received, speaking in the highest terms of straw lumber, and it has only to be used once to insure its constant use. A letter from Browning, King & Co., the celebrated clothiers of New York, states that they have four offices finished with straw lumber, one is as fine an office as there is in the city of New York; the other three are plain, but give entire satisfaction. They claim that they are thoroughly pleased and satisfied with the lumber, and recommend it to any one wishing a good substantial finish for the interior of their building. This letter is endorsed by William Field & Son, the architects, of 111 Broadway, New York. Straw lumber has been endorsed by the leading architects in Philadelphia and throughout the country, and is destined to revolutionize the lumber market.

—The drilling of holes in plate glass has been successfully accomplished. Holes can be bored seven-sixteenths of an inch in diameter, through glass one-eighth of an inch thick. A workman can drill thirty or forty holes per hour and run the drill at the rate of 2000 revolutions per minute.

—Newark and Jersey City are troubled with an impure source of water, but the good people of those cities see no immediate escape. Their water supply is badly polluted with the refuse of factories which line the source.

Women as Architects.

It has of late been largely agreed that there are many fields of work hitherto complacently occupied by men only, which there is every reason to suppose could be as worthily filled by women. In making fresh suggestions in this sense I would say that my remarks have more direct reference to the girl and the young woman of the middle class than to those of the artisan class. What really valid objection is there to asking her to become a "draughtswoman," and in due course an architect?

Surely an occupation such as the preparation of architectural drawings, requiring neatness and delicacy of touch, attention to detail, patience and care, is one which would seem at first blush more likely to find its proficients among women than men. Let us, then, look into the course of training that prevails, and see if it offers any considerable bar to the adoption by women of architecture as a profession. In brief, the routine is as follows: A youth on leaving school with an aptitude, more or less, for the profession, is articulated as pupil for four or five years to an architect, to whom he pays a premium. This is, of course, in proportion to the position and repute of the architect in question, but may be stated at from a hundred pounds to four or five times that amount. As with solicitors, so among architects, the pupil is supposed, by having "the run of the office," to acquire an intimate knowledge of its work—design, draughtsmanship, knowledge of materials, official routine, and so on. If a young fellow of parts, he soon begins to "feel his legs" and to understand his work, and, if wise, supplements his office instruction by attendance at the admirable classes of the Architectural Association and elsewhere. At the end of his articles he is qualified to dub himself a "junior draughtsman," in which capacity he claims as salary from a pound to two pounds a week. A couple of years should then see him a draughtsman proper, and in a position to obtain three, three and a half or four guineas a week. In many cases, of course, thanks to such "backing" of his friends as he may be fortunate enough to get, the lucky pupil can set up on his own account immediately his articles are completed.

In this routine, which I have briefly sketched, there are only two objections that stand in the way of its adoption by women. Against the first, which is the "commingling of the sexes," caused by the admission of women as part of an ordinary office staff, we can adduce American experience. Here they are frequently employed as type-writers and so on. But even should conservatism insist vigorously in this respect, we can at least compromise with it and suggest a "women clerks' room" as a solution of the difficulty. The second objection is the difficulty women would experience as regards the inspection of buildings and the necessary mounting of the scaffolding for that purpose. While remind the objector that women decorators have been known to work for days on scaffolds, and that there are such things as "divided skirts," I would say that I am more particularly suggesting that women's work in an architect's office should be "drawing-board work," such as ornamental and other detail drawings, competition sets of plans, schemes of color decoration, and perspective drawings. The simpler department of tracing has, I am told, been tried, and with some success, by the Ladies' Tracing Office, in Westminster, and other ladies besides the Misses Garrett have taken up decoration work and a certain amount of architecture connected with it. My plea is for a further advance on the part of women into a territory of which there is no reason that man should occupy the whole.—Mr. C. Harrison Townsend in the Pall Mall Gazette.

Topolobampo.

Topolobampo is the name of a new Mexican colony, now locating on a grant of land from the Mexican Government. The grant is situated on Topolobampo Bay, on the Pacific coast, in the State of Sinaloa. It is to be the terminus of a projected railroad, which it is claimed will be when built, the shortest route from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The managers of this new colony, who are known as the Credit Foncier Company, propose to combine all the beneficent features that are now a part of the best governments of the world, in fact they aim to produce a magnificent city possessing all the advantages of a large community without any of its drawbacks. Land and mineral wealth are to be held in community interest. Wharves and water privileges, market houses, street cars, water and gas works, are also to be held for the interest of the community. No dogs or horses are to be allowed within the city limits. The colony propose to issue its own paper currency, and will use no other in their dealings with each other. The prospectus of the Foncier Company says, that "the moral depends upon the intellectual, the intellectual upon the physical, the physical upon the purity of the atmosphere, and therefore the atmosphere must be held in trust by the corporation, for the use of its members." It also says that it is the duty of the corporation to publish one or more daily papers, and that every member is to be allowed, free of charge, to publish over his or her name "any criticism, idea, nomination and argument." One of the terms of the colonization contract with the Mexican Government, is that at least 25 per cent. of the population of Topolobampo must be Mexicans.

News Items.

—A new fire proof composition consists of white sharp sand rosin, boiled linseed oil, slacked lime, sulphuric acid and suboxide of copper.

—A new paint composition consists of gutta percha, spirits of turpentine, venetian turpentine and dry ground pigments in suitable proportions.

—A new saw is composed of one clearing tooth and two cutting teeth. Each pair of cutting teeth are filed in opposite directions and have their points formed square or chisel-shaped. A New Hampshire inventor has an instrument for plumbing the corners of buildings.

—The use of asphaltum in building is said to be largely on the increase, it is principally employed as a prevention against damp cellar walls and mason work underground, also for water-tight cellar floors, coating for rain-water cisterns, covering for underground vaults, etc. The usual method of applying it is to reduce to a semi-liquid state, in a large iron pot, over a good fire, sufficient to about two-thirds fill it, care being taken that the flame does not rise over the top of the pot and ignite the asphalt. The wall is made as nearly dry as possible, and the joints somewhat rough, to admit of the asphalt penetrating the pores and securing a hold; the wall is then covered with asphalt, applied with a long-handled brush, while the material is hot and brushed in well—a coating one-half inch thick being as perfect a protective as a thicker one. A barrel of asphalt, as found in the market, heated and applied to vertical walls of brick, will ordinarily cover about two hundred and fifty square feet of surface, and produces most lasting results.

—Tin is a popular roofing material. It can be used equally on flat and steep surfaces; when well selected and laid it is very durable if painted occasionally; its weight is trifling, and it is incombustible. A reliable tin roof costs about twice as much as a shingle roof; it is not so easily nor so cheaply repaired; imperfections are not so readily discovered when it is laid; it is sometimes stripped from the sheathing boards by high winds; a leak is very difficult to locate and stop, and it needs occasional painting to preserve it. Until quite recently the excessive competition and cheapening of prices in the American trade led to the deterioration of the established brands of tin, and to the unloading by Welsh manufacturers of spurious and worthless plates upon this market to such an extent that there was a marked decline in the popularity of this material for roofing, and the early extinction of the demand for it became imminent. The leading American importers are now attempting to correct this evil by offering to guarantee the quality of tin they sell, and to take back at their own cost all sheets found imperfect.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, JAN. 31, 1887.

THREE great nations beyond the Atlantic have their national banks, and there is no good reason why the United States should not follow their example. The basis of our national currency is the great question among financiers. Why could not a national bank be established which would exercise some control over the interests of the country as the banks of Great Britain, France and Germany exercise over the finances of Great Britain and Europe? The money-lenders have at various times helped to create panics by locking up money when it was most needed.

With all our abundance of money we are liable at any time to be subjected to such a panic as will shake the nation from one end to another. This is especially true when the system of credit is extended to its legitimate proportions. We mentioned last week the tendency in that direction. Business men and manufacturers are so anxious to do business that they are extending credit unduly, and one is vying with the other in the length of credit allowances. It is certainly laying the foundation for a panic, if not for a panic, for a depression which will sooner or later catch a net full of unfortunates. It is at such a time as this that the money-lenders corner many if they can, if they do not do so it is because they cannot. We are constantly in danger of financial emergencies of a national character which can only be met successfully and safely by a national bank. There is a sort of co-operation between the treasury department and the national banks which circumstances make necessary. They have no necessary connection, but the government as a collector and disbursing of some three hundred million dollars a year, as a steady buyer of its own obligations, cannot avoid constant intercourse with the organized financial interests, especially as it is their father. As the system in vogue must go, it is necessary to consider whether a United States Bank would not be a great regulator of discounts, and a sustainer of confidence in dangerous times.

BUSINESS men who have no occasion to meddle with real estate laws or legislation, are nevertheless as deeply interested in the establishment of good laws as are agents or conveyancers.

EACH day and week develops some additional encouraging information, concerning the building operations of the coming season.

BUILDERS in the up-town and down-town regions, are making great preparations for the coming season.

PHILADELPHIA will have in a very short time, a number of excellent office buildings.

THE ebbs and flows of prosperity that have characterized our progress for a century, have their origin in a violation of laws, more or less understood, or not at all understood. The industrial and commercial activity of the nation, has been arrested frequently, because as a nation, we did not know how to avoid dangers that beset nations as well as individuals. The practical men of the country, those who have their money labor and skill to pay out, want to know what are the probabilities for the future. Will we have a set-back, is asked. Will the panics of 1873 and the depression of 1883, repeat themselves in the near future. Why do panics come? Political economy has not cleared up the causes of panics. The conditions of industrial health are only partially understood. Business men are extending their field of observation every year and have learned the value and necessity of organization. If there is law under trade, why is there not an order of progress and of decline under our complex relations as a nation of people. There is such an order, but we have ignored it. To discover it and place ourselves in harmony with it, is becoming a greater necessity yearly. Hundreds of millions of wealth have been wiped out by juries, or rather vast accumulations of wealth have changed hands, without the exchange of equivalents. Tradesmen, manufacturers and others, have seen their patient accumulations of a lifetime, swept from their grasp in a few months or weeks. Credit has disappeared. Business has stood stock still and enterprise has been choked, all through the but little understood operations of laws of trade. Every man is interested in a better understanding of the causes of these quicksands. The wonderful development of our commercial system and method have done much to help us. Conservative methods have arisen in the place of hap-hazard methods of business. Certainities have taken the place of uncertainties, until business men are more assured that prudence and integrity will hold what it accumulates than a few years ago. Yet, withal we are constantly in danger of overproducing, of overcrowding and therefore of a reaction that will depress values. These possibilities are not lost sight of in these days of bounding activity, nor should they be.

THE outcome of the meeting of the thirteen associations of master housebuilders, which was held in Boston on the 10th to the 12th insts., was the organization of a National Housebuilders' Association. Those will be eligible to membership who are engaged in the house-building trades, including masons, carpenters, stonecutters, plumbers, roofers, painters and iron workers. A committee was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws, and was instructed to report at a national convention to be held at Chicago on March 29, 1887. Cities having less than 50,000 population will not be included in those entitled to be represented. Each city may send seven delegates.

STATES are organized for the transaction of business. Elections are held in order that the stockholders who are the people, may determine who shall be the officers and directors of their corporation, dividends are represented in economical government, and a proper enforcement of the laws to the benefit, safety and prosperity of the stockholders.

The people relegate to the officers and directors such powers as are necessary to promote the common weal, and the abuse of these powers infringes upon both the collective and individual rights and prosperity of the people.

The people are the body corporate and the officers and directors are but paid servants, and while the latter are particularly, the government de facto temporarily, yet the sovereignty is in the people, and their officers no more constitute the state than do the officers and directors of a bank.

The present principle of selection of officers and directors frequently leads to costly mistakes, from the fact that business qualifications and sterling integrity and capacity, must give way for political popularity and hide-bound partisan preference, and where the stockholders of a moneyed corporation, weigh well and consider deliberately the great qualifications of the candidates presented for their votes the electors of a commonwealth ignore every business principle and espouse the cause of the worst possible men with records as black as the most wretched infamy can make them.

The cause of this principle of selection weighs upon all alike, and those who would constitute a better state of things must suffer often-times even more than the reckless partisan who although a factor in the body corporate has no tangible interest at stake.

It is no wonder that dividends are light, and assessments heavy and regular, and it is pure and simple foolishness to expect more profits from the institution until each stockholder looks upon elections from a business stand point and government whether state or municipal as a business proposition

THE Baltimore Real Estate Exchange held its first annual meeting Jan. 11. Since July 6, when the public sales began, 165 pieces of property have been sold, aggregating $291,577 16. The Exchange has issued a printed free list of houses to rent by its members, which has been of great assistance. The arbitration committee has not as yet been called upon to settle any dispute.

IN a few weeks, at least, the office of High Sheriff, of the County of Philadelphia, will be declared vacant, it is hoping against hope to longer avoid the conclusion, which is now settled beyond controversy, that poor Rowan is a mental wreck. There is not even the remotest possibility of his recovery and the business necessities of the county will no longer admit of delay in the necessary proceedings to provide for his successor. The question then arises as to who his successor shall be, and the bent of the public mind naturally turns to Mr. John J. Ridgeway, who has virtually been Sheriff ever since the incumbency of Mr. Rowan commenced. As to Mr. Ridgeway's qualifications it is unnecessary to say a word. A tour through the real estate offices and among the legal firms of this city settles beyond controversy the fact that Mr. Ridgeway is infinitely preferable, to those having the most business with the Sheriff's Office, over and above any gentleman that could be named.

The business of the Sheriff's Office is now conducted for the first time in many years on strict business principles. Estates are settled within a reasonable time, and as an eminent real estate lawyer said to a reporter of THE REAL ESTATE RECORD, "Mr. Ridgeway permits nothing to interfere with the business of the office, politicians of influence have no claim upon his time and must invariably give way for business men. It is really refreshing to be able to go to the office and transact business in a few minutes, that use to consume the best part of a day." And this sentiment truly expresses the opinion of the business and professional men of this city, and were this not enough it would indeed be a signal repudiation of the civil service doctrine, which is held in such high esteem by Mr. Ridgeway's political co-adjutors, were any other gentleman even named for the place.

WE observe that an agitation has been started in two or three cities for the purpose of devising schemes by which workmen can be provided with cheap and comfortable homes. That the great bulk of workmen are not housed as comfortably as they ought to be is recognized. How to help them, is the question that is receiving attention, as yet without satisfactory issue. A company has been formed at Pittsburg, and two hundred houses, especially adapted for workmen, are to be built and rented or sold low. At Chicago the question has been considered. In several New England towns employers have deemed it advisable to invest capital in a small way in that direction. In New York the question is broader and deeper. Writers are directing the attention of capitalists to the possibility of very remunerative investments in the unimproved suburban regions near that city. The erection of huge apartment houses in the upper part of the Island may suit the middle class, but the $10 to $20 a week class are overcrowded and cannot rent or buy sufficient accommodations. The first essential is that the fares on all the roads should be reduced to the street car price or less. We in Philadelphia are beyond this question, and yet not beyond it. We have tens of thousands of comfortable homes, but we need many more. The street car system has enabled the city to expand its grand proportion two miles or more in every direction. A system that would carry the people farther in a shorter time at no increased cost would lay the foundation for a further expansion. A powerful, selfish, strongly entrenched combination stands in the way. The political elements are compactly organized, but the business interests are not, and hence the contest, if and when it comes, between the progressive interests representing Philadelphia in all her grandeur, and the selfish interests in all their entrenched power, will be an unequal one.

A CREMATORY, 60 feet by 103 feet, and 90 feet high, is to be built near Germantown Junction. There will be a chapel and reception room on the first floor, and the cellar will be occupied by the necessary retorts and furnaces. Mr. William Gette is now making the plans. The building will cost about $40,000, and Messrs. G. H. Becker and Isidore Herzberg compose the building committee.

THE cable road managers feel that it is incumbent upon them to improve their facilities greatly, or public opinion will reach the boiling point. The President of the Third avenue road in New York says his new cable will surprise the public. No doubt the public is all ready.

THE small farmers, or some of them who have less than twenty acres, want to be exempt from taxation. Those who have twenty-one acres or more are expected to pay the tax of those who have only twenty or less. It is also proposed by some Henry George legislator to exempt from tax all building lots not exceeding 20,000 square feet on which the owner actually resides. This would exempt a lot 40 feet front by 500 feet deep, or 60 feet front by 333 feet deep. The intent of such a bill is to help the small town and village lot owners, and thus to increase the taxation of business places, manufacturers and larger lot and land owners. All this is of questionable utility, even granting the justness of the proposition. Schemes of this kind are by no means new. Of late years they have multiplied. The burden of taxation never rests easily. The rich seek to shift their burdens even more than the poor, for with the poor it is so laid that they do not feel the direct pressure. The producers are better paid than ever, and have more abundant opportunities than ever; but for all this there is a more earnest desire to escape the burdens of taxation, and their claim is being heard and listened to with more attention than a few years ago.

THE paving law is to be tested through suits brought by the City Solicitor against the Union Passenger and the Ridge Avenue Passenger Railway Companies for repaving Ninth street between Race and Vine streets.

THE three-mill tax law will be assaulted by a strong attacking column this Winter.

PHILADELPHIA will likely be allowed another Orphans Court Judge.

A WOMAN's suffrage amendment is before the Legislature.

LONG JOHN WENTWORTH, who was at one time Mayor of Chicago, represented a type of mayor needed very badly in this city at present. He was naturally an impulsive man, with a heart none too large for his massive frame and mind. He was free from sentimentalism, and thoroughly practical. His peculiarity consisted in his determination to see for himself what was going on about town. If the streets were dirty he knew of it; and what's more, he knew who was to blame. If he contemplated making a raid there was no such thing as sending information beforehand, for no one knew it but himself, and at the proper hour he would simply stop at a police station, call for a detail, and make a sweep at short notice. His eyes seemed to detect every irregularity. A dangerous sign or a piece of bad sidewalk would receive the same attention as more important matters. Gamblers and thieves feared him while the respectable portion of the community admired his energy and courage. He was a man of large executive ability, and was noted for his great height. A man of equal determination would be invaluable to this city, as a successor to the present incumbent.

REAL ESTATE has to bear more than its share of taxation, while stocks and bonds get off with less than the share they ought to bear. In fact the owners of stocks and bonds are practically untaxed, and this fact is having its weight with the real estate interests. The law makers have a very important matter to act upon. The evil, for such it is, will grow in size, and as it grows it will furnish material for the disorderly element to agitate for impracticable reforms. But the trouble will not end with the anarchic element. The great body of land and property owners, those whose brain and management so greatly contribute to the production of wealth, will not be content to sit idly by while the shifting of the load of taxation is going on. Ways and means must and will be found to make all forms of wealth bear its just and equitable share. That bungling crowd of legislative apprentices at Harrisburg are trying to amuse themselves with schemes aiming at some sort of correction. The evil is a gigantic one.

THE marble cutters will have some extra jobs if the State appropriates $80,000 for memorial tablets, as is requested.

THEY are striking at the Bullitt bill already. That bill abolishes the present system of District Surveyors and their mode of election. A bill has been introduced to repeal that portion of the bill and retain the present mode of election. The boys at Harrisburg might as well take notice that the people of Philadelphia are a little particular about trifling with that bill. It has undergone some small examination already. The people want to see it go into effect as it stands, with what ever alleged defects it possesses. They want to see the "wheels go around" awhile, and if they don't go around right they will tolerate suggestions for improvement. But just at this time it is about as much as one's legislative head is worth to monkey with the Bullitt bill buzz-saw, as our friend Colonel McClure would put it. The boys had better go slowly. Accidents might happen, and some of them might step on tacks. There are a good many laying around.

WE are slowly getting away from the barbarism of the old common law which regarded women as a sort of slave. A bill has been introduced in our legislature extending the liberties of married women to transact business; to sue, and be sued; to sign mortgages or deeds, and to do business as a man. Efforts of this character have been made before. It is time the bars were taken down and women given a chance to assert themselves. It is not a question of extending, but of recognizing rights.

A BILL has been presented at Harrisburg, exempting small land holding from taxation. This might be called a poor man's bill but it is a question whether any such Legislation would benefit the poor man. He gets the load some how or other. Henry George's doctrines are filtering.

THE Philadelphia Record recently published a list of six hundred and fourteen persons that had mysteriously disappeared from this city during 1886. A large percentage of which were females. The sudden disappearance of boys and young men from their homes, in these days of super-abundant literature of the rollicking rover order, is not at all astonishing. Neither is the fact that nearly twelve per cent. of the whole number of human castaways were girls and women to be wondered at. How could it be otherwise when dives and concert saloons, with their devilish allurements, are as thick on our main thoroughfares as western grasshoppers in the Summer time. Young girls can be seen at all hours of the day and night flitting in and out of these places, and it is right here in these hell holes that young girls serve their apprenticeship in shame, and it is even intimated that the proprietors pay for police protection.

BIG buildings are coming. Architects endorse them. Here in Philadelphia we will have a building of which we will not be ashamed when the Brown Bros. structure at Fourth and Chestnut streets is completed. With elevators and iron and fire-proof materials there is no need of stopping short at five, six or seven stories. The Potter building in New York has served to start two or three other big office building enterprises there. The new Equitable building in New York covers about an acre, and has a frontage of 167½ feet on Broadway and 308 feet to Nassau street. It is claimed to be fire-proof in the absolute sense. All of its facades are of granite. Nine steel boilers and three hydraulic pumps can force 7,500 gallons of water per minute. A 400 horse power engine furnishes power for electric lights. The seventh and eighth floors are handsome and extremely well fitted up offices.

WHAT have builders to say about the proposition before the Legislature to enable purchasers of property in Orphans Court proceedings to take clear title at once instead of waiting two years.

THE mystery of mathematical progression is largely shown in the following extract from the pages of Judge F. Carroll Brewster's new work on Blackstone's commentaries for the use of students.

"Question.—How many ancestors has a man in the first ascending degree?

Answer.—Two.

Question.—In the second?

Answer.—Four.

Question.—In the third?

Answer.—Eight.

Question.—In the tenth?

Answer.—One thousand and twenty-four.

Question.—In the twentieth?

Answer.—One million forty-eight thousand five hundred and seventy-six."

Of course lawyers are supposed to know these things, but there are thousands of busy men who have never given this question a single thought.

NO ONE can deny that it would be a good thing to have a system of bank examination that would examine. Bank failures and defalcations have become entirely too numerous of late. The laxity in our system of banking encourages dishonesty. A bill has been introduced at Harrisburg, providing for State Examiners of all public banks and banking houses incorporated by the State, of all private banks or banking firms in the State receiving deposits or doing a regular banking business. The bill wisely provides that the amount of net profits shall be published when dividends are declared, and that no part of the capital stock shall be used to pay dividends. The penal clauses ought to be strengthened. No honest banker can object to a rigid law for examinations. Failures hurt the strong as well as the weak by creating distrust where it ought not to exist.

LAST week's New York conveyances, 222 in number, footed up $4,476,618 in value. Of mortgages 208 were recorded, involving $1,843,263, against 232, involving $2,868,802, for the corresponding week last year.

NEW YORK street car managers think that they can operate their roads with electric motors at a cost of $4.00 per day against $7.50, the present cost. The electricity in the present system is stored in cells, after the Siemens invention, and will last from seven to eight hours.

THOSE who claim that the water of the Schuylkill is suitable for the domestic and manufacturing purposes of the people of this city must realize the absurdity of their statement after the experience of last week, it could only be equalled by the water in a hog wallow in Spring time.

THE annual report of the Fire Insurance Patrol shows 1132 fires last year involving an estimated loss of $3,500,000 and a loss to the insurance companies of $2,717,444, which is the largest loss of any year since 1869. The total insurance on these properties was $13,209,584. The Patrol attended 284 fires and extinguished thirteen by its own effort. The severest fire was Arrott's, January 10; loss $600,000.

SOME years ago, when Governor Geary was called upon to appoint a notary public in Philadelphia he exclaimed, "What, is there still one man left in Philadelphia who is not a notary public?" Governor Pattison nominated over 500 during his incumbency, all of which except twenty were confirmed. Of the total number 158 were Philadelphians. Governor Beaver has found thirty more citizens of the State who are not notaries public.

AND now another project, or rather resuscitation of an old 1868 project, is heard of in New York. It is to build an underground railroad. Broadway will sooner or later have a new street constructed under it, but tunnels elsewhere will have to wait.

THERE is a splendid opening for the coming Bullitt Bill Mayor in the neighborhood of Race, Eighth, and Vine streets. There are more villainous holes in this vicinity than can be found in the whole length of Alaska street. The worst orgies go on nightly under the very noses of Mayor Smith's policemen, and that too under the bright glare of electric lights. 'Tis singular what healthy analogy there is between the racket and the stick.

WHAT action, if any, has or will our Real Estate Exchange take in reference to the bill now in Harrisburg, which is amendatory of numerous acts relating to the assessment and valuation of real, personal and corporate property for purposes of taxation? The bill proposes some important modifications. There is need of a harmonizing and revising of the various legislative acts on this matter, and the real estate and property interests ought to have something to say.

SOME one proposes to expend $50,000 of the State's money in building monuments, on the battlefield of Gettysburg, to Generals Menden and Hancock. The State can afford to be liberal in this direction. Gettysburg ought to be made a field worth visiting to the people all over the country. Whoever comes to Gettysburg will come to Philadelphia, and that puts money in our purse. New Yorkers understand the art of advertising their city and how to keep people constantly talking about it. Let us make Gettysburg a spot worth visiting and Philadelphia will profit. This is business.

THE Zoological Garden Association of this city, in order that it may meet a deficit of about $5,000 in its yearly expenses, has sent out canvassers with the view of disposing of one thousand yearly membership tickets at five dollars each. It is very evident that the institution is not self-supporting; neither is it likely to become so. The fact is the institution should belong to the city and should be placed under the control of the Park Commissioners, the expenses of running it to be included in the appropriations for the park. Admission free, Sunday and weekday, and a liberal policy exercised in keeping its attractions up to a high standard. It is even now recognised as one of the many attractions of the city, and it involves too much that is both amusing and instructive to permit it to fall into decay for the want of support and protection.

A BILL to remove ambiguities in the collateral inheritance tax law has been presented for the consideration of the State Senate.

MR. T. M. CLARK suggests that the architects should first learn to protect themselves against themselves before they seek protection against their clients.

THE Chicago Builders and Traders' Exchange held their fourth annual meeting on the 17th inst. It has 498 members. We are glad to know that the Philadelphia master builders have awakened.

THE Western architects are a sociable set of fellows. Eight State associations held conventions in January. The last was the Indiana association, which convened last Thursday in Indianapolis. Let us see—when was it that the Pennsylvania association convened? It has slipped our memory!

THERE are 9,000 untried cases in the Court of General Sessions in New York city. The average length of time it takes to try a case in the New Court of Appeals is five years. The law's delay will not be supinely tolerated indefinitely in this age of dashing impetuosity. Business men will shortly find more expeditious methods for ascertaining the right and wrong of matters between themselves.

THE Inland Architect suggests that each State association of architects employ a lawyer to post the members on the law. It says, "The well-known ignorance of lawyers generally on all questions regarding building laws, and the lack of compiled rulings, would suggest that if one lawyer in each State were paid to search for past decisions, become fully posted on existing laws, etc., it would become a great benefit to the entire profession."

THE Secretary of the Treasury in defining the limits of the port of Philadelphia says that the second paragraph of section 2543, revised statutes reads as follows:—"First, The District of Philadelphia; to comprise all the waters and shores of the Delaware River and the rivers and waters connected therewith, within the State of Pennsylvania, and the port of Camden, in New Jersey, in which Philadelphia shall be the port of entry and Camden and Chester ports of delivery"—you are informed that in the opinion of this Department the limits of the port of Philadelphia as a port of entry are those embraced within the corporate limits of the city of Philadelphia.

Respectfully yours
"C. S. FAIRCHILD,
"Assistant Secretary."

THE Master Builders' Exchange of this city has completed its organization by the election of President John S. Stevens; Vice-Presidents, D. A. Woelpper, Stacy Reeves, and George W. Roydhouse; Secretary, William H. Albertson; Treasurer, Charles H. Reeves; Directors for the first three years, David A. Woelpper, Charles H. Reeves, Miles King, William Harkness, Jr., Charles Gillingham, Hugh Copeland and Peter Carigan. The organization starts with a membership of over one hundred, and in announcing its purposes President Stevens stated that it was intended to hold daily sessions, as soon as permanent quarters could be secured; that fully $25,000,000 were annually expended among the building trades of this city, and that the exchange would afford a meeting-place for the builders, contractors and material men; and as a consequence greater harmony and protection could be secured to the advantage and profit of its members.

Communication.

JOHN N. GALLAGHER, Esq.
Dear Sir:—I enclose you ten dollars in payment of subscription to REAL ESTATE RECORD for 1886 and 1887. I note you rejoice in the fact that the "paper is now one year old." My prayer is that the paper may continue for many years, provided, however, the same management may remain with it, and impart to the profession the same quantity and quality of information of which I am, from week to week made the happy recipient.
Yours truly,

W. FREDK. SNYDER.

Recent Decisions in Pennsylvania in Relation to Matters Concerning Real Estate and Building Associations.

Decided by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

COVENANTS.

The assignor of a term agreed to refund to the assignee such sum of money as might be recovered against him "by means of any suit at law brought against him for or on account of his purchase of said leasehold." Held that a recovery in ejectment by the original lessors by reason whereof he was compelled to take a new lease at a higher rent was a breach of the covenant, and conferred a right of action to recover for such increased rent.

DEED.

To constitute a deed, enacted by an agent, the deed of the principal, he and not the agent must appear from the body of the deed to be the grantor, and the deed must be signed with his name and purport to be sealed with his seal.

When a deed has passed from the dominion of the grantor its delivery will be presumed, but if it remains with the grantor the onus of proving delivery rests with the party claiming under it.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.

As no duty rests upon a wife to support her husband, a resulting trust in her favor springs from her husband's purchase of land with her money. There is no presumption of a gift in such a case, and a legal presumption of a trust for her use arises just as if they were strangers to one another.

MORTGAGE.

An absolute conveyance in fee will not be converted into a mortgage by a defeasance executed immediately afterwards, but not part of the contract for the conveyance. Parol evidence may be introduced to rebut the presumption that a defeasance bearing the same date as an absolute deed in fee simple was not part of the contract for the conveyance, but an afterthought.

A creditor who holds a first mortgage and a second mortgage of the same land, and also collateral security for the payment of the first mortgage debt, must apply the proceeds of foreclosure under the first mortgage debt, and if that debt is thereby paid must surrender the collateral.

VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

Under an executory contract for the sale of land in consideration of covenants to be performed in future, the vendee is not entitled to a conveyance before performance. An instrument in writing without acknowledgment or words of inheritance and entitled "an article of agreement," by which in consideration of certain covenants to be performed in future by one party, the other party "agrees to sell and by these presents does sell and convey" a tract of land, is prima facie not a conveyance, but an executory contract of sale.

Such a contract in the absence of positive proof of fraud, accident or mistake, will not be reformed by inserting words of inheritance.

J. R. SHATTUCK,
58 South Third St., Phila.

—The straw-board manufacturers held their annual meeting at Cleveland, Ohio, on the 14th inst. The price of straw-boards was advanced, which makes the third advance within eighteen months equal to 22 per cent. Paper boxes will advance.

Properties Subject to Liens.

List of properties subject to lien for removal of nuisances by the Board of Health, which will be returned to the City Solicitor at the expiration of four months from date.

Hereafter we will publish a list weekly. Next lien day under the following list Feb. 7th, 1887.

BUILDERS' ITEMS.

Building and Real Estate Notes.

A LOT at Lehigh ave and 9th st. brought $39,000.

$25,000 was paid for a lot 80x18 cor. Filbert and Juniper sts.

FRANK KOLBE, of Doylestown, Pa., will build in Doylestown at an early day.

GEO. DE B. KEIM has bought property at 160, 162 and 164 N. Third st. for $29,700.

E. W. SMITH, of Doylestown, Pa., intends to do some building when Spring opens.

DURING 1881 there were 119 houses built in Roanoke, Virginia, and in 1886 there were 1,426 built there.

THE President has signed the bill appropriating $100,000 for a new public building in Camden, N. J.

FROM every quarter the news comes that there will be unusually active building operations this Spring.

JACOB RIDGEWAY will construct a large number of houses in the 28th and 29th Wards in the Spring.

FRIEL & SIMPSON, Nineteenth and Wharton sts., have sold the seven-roomed house at 1933 Reed st. for $2,300.

ALLEN MIDDLETON's personal estate is valued at $89,670 95, John Kridler's at $13,666 36, and John Kahlmus at $20,219 25.

JOSEPH H. LEARY, of Mechanicsville, Bucks county, Pa., intends to build in Doylestown, with the opening of Spring.

CROASDILL & CATANACH, N. W. cor. Twentieth and Tasker sts., have a rental list of about 150 houses, and have only eight vacant.

THE Adams Express Company has leased the building at the South-west corner of Chestnut and Broad streets, which will be fitted up for offices.

COUNCILMAN SHOCH is credited with having expended over $100,000 in building improvements in the 28th and 29th Wards during the past two years.

THE building activity will be as great in Philadelphia this Spring as it was last Spring. Lumber bids fair to be no higher as it is coming in freely from the South.

SAMUEL W. CALLAN, of Samuel M. Wanamaker & Co., has purchased a plot of about two acres at Bala Station, on which he intends to erect a handsome residence this Spring.

B. F. GLENN & SON, Seventeenth and Green sts., are constantly making sales. There is a big demand for medium-sized houses. Rents on large houses are dragging. They expect to build some this Spring.

C. W. CROASDILL, S. W. cor. Twenty-second and Fitzwater sts., out of a rental list of 200 houses they have only four vacant. They have several sales under negotiation which they expect to consummate soon.

THE lot at the South-west corner of Twenty-first street and Fairmount avenue, running through to Wallace street, and extending westward 100 feet on Fairmount avenue and Wallace street, has been sold to Henry R. Shoch.

SAMUEL FOX, Ninth and Callowhill sts., has lately sold No. 1527 Girard ave. for $13,000; the corner of Ninth and Greenfield ave. for $4,500, and 1737 Francis st. for $6,200. Collections are very fair. Out of a very large rental list they have but a small percentage of vacancies.

C. H. HALL, 3944 Lancaster ave., has sold sixty feet of vacant ground on Powelton ave. at $14 a foot. This will be improved in the Spring. There is a good deal of inquiry for vacant ground, and several transactions are under way; not many sales of properties, demand only for bargains; sold a house on Thirty-second st. near Barling at a very cheap price.

THERE has been a bold move made to have the toll-gate moved from Second and Cambria sts. A number of the property owners are in negotiations with the P. R. R. and the P. & R. R. to have the Reading Railroad depress its track so as to have the Pennsylvania Railroad go overhead and the Reading to give up its turnpike franchise on Second st., and in that way have the toll-gate removed, then the street will be improved.

F. W. SNYDER, Fifth and Green sts., reports that Mr. Thomas H. Flood has bought a large tract of ground at Third and Cambria sts. for $55,000, on which he will put up sixty-six stores and dwellings. This is adjoining his old operation, where he has just finished up another lot of buildings; has also just sold a piece of ground from Lehigh ave. to Somerset st., and Ninth to Camden sts.; price $37,500. This will be improved this Spring. Also a piece of land on the west side of Ninth st. below Lehigh ave., running through to Hutchinson st., which will be improved in the Spring. Also another piece which was sold last Fall, but which will be improved this Spring on the west side of Seventh below Lehigh ave.

Architect's Notes.

P. A. WELSH, 429 Walnut street, has on the boards a block of stores, with offices and society halls in upper stories. They will be three stories high, with basement. Material, brick and stone. The front measures 172 ft. These are situated at Bellefonte, Pa. Also, in the same city, an opera house, to seat 1,000 persons. Both the above are the property of the Bush Estate. A brick and stone dwelling at Lock Haven, Pa., for Mr. Moore Frederick, three stories high, to contain 18 rooms, to be finished with all modern improvements. A dwelling at Erie, Pa., for Mr. J. W. Willets, to be built of brick, stone and terra-cotta, finished in modern style. A residence at Ridley Park, for James P. Rowe, to contain 12 rooms. An office building for the Patterson Mill Company, of brick and stone, finished with hardwoods, frescoed, and paneled and wainscoted walls, with fireproof vault. Also armory and opera house for Co. B, Sixth Reg., N. G. P.

From the slight pattering of rain drops of business among the architects, which are elsewhere gathered up, it is evident business has already set in. The appearance of the offices show that new work is crowding. The draughtsmen who were laid off in November for an unwilling vacation, are, many of them at least, back over their boards, hard at work. It is gratifying to be able to state, on the authority of some of the most successful architects, that the prospects for the incoming season are very favorable. The class of work in hand covers almost the entire range of architecture. Much church work is projected in and out of the city. In fact, the out of town work is growing in proportion each year, and as a rule good commissions are willingly paid on it. The builders of residences, costing from $5,000 to $25,000, are showing, by their engagement of the services of reputable architects, that they are appreciative of the value of well planned and executed work. Slip-shod methods of self-wise builders are not quite so acceptable as they have been. Owners are coming to the point when they can discern the difference between system and agglomeration. The architecture of one house or building will not answer for another no more than the same coat will fit two men, even though they be of the same height and weight. We rejoice to see this well earned appreciation of the services of architects, and are glad to convey to the real estate public their views as to the enlarging scope of the incoming year's operations.

Tinkers and Tinkering.

We observe that a good deal of legislation is contemplated at Harrisburg this winter in connection with real estate interests. The laws surrounding and affecting the ownership, occupancy and transfer of real estate have been amended and modified from time to time, until at last we have a mass of laws, or of modifications of, and additions to, the old common laws, which call for pruning and reorganization into something of a system. Every year uncovers some new necessity, and every legislative session brings out new efforts to straighten out what was before crooked, or correct what was before incomplete. Heretofore the lawyers have had their own way, and that class of citizens are not usually credited with a desire to lessen the difficulties which environ real estate exchanges. In other states, and especially in New York, the business element, rather than the professional element, has taken hold of this entire question and have gone to work with a purpose of bringing order out of confusion, and simplifying what was before complex and needlessly so. The necessity for reform in our land-laws is recognized here, and clearly so in the multitude of little patchings undertaken in the Legislature. All this is good enough in its place. Experience has suggested them, and more experience will suggest more. But all this, good as it is, is not sufficient. There is need of system—of a clearing away of rubbish. Every conveyancer and real estate agent and operator knows what some of the difficulties are, but have become so accustomed to things as they are, that they are content to drag along.

The useless verbiage of deeds and mortgages, the costly methods of recording and conveyancing, including tedious and expensive examinations of title are two or three of the least evils. The laws themselves, as well as the practice, need the pruning-knife and common-sense mending that can only be expected from those who have most to gain from such reforms. What is everybody's business is nobody's business, and therefore nothing is attempted. At Harrisburg a committee of lawyers will sit in judgment on the reforms and remedies proposed, and they will be sure to do or advise nothing that will curtail the emoluments of their profession. The outside public have no representation except here and there an isolated individual whose voice could not penetrate the tympanum of the average legislator. The real estate interests need to be organized, and to work intelligently. The reforms to be made should be understood, and instead of putting on some dozen or twenty legislative patches which have been cut out already, the entire system of laws should be subjected to a thorough scrutiny and revision.

For thirty-nine years the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, of this city, has been engaged in active business. During this entire period its record has been honorable both to those intimately connected with it and to the State in which it is located. Its growth has been steady and healthy. It has furnished protection at as low a cost as is consistent with safety. It has been managed with eminent ability as is shown by a low rate of loss; a moderate rate of expense; a good interest income, and an excellent class of investments. It is doing as large a business as is consistent with healthy growth. At the beginning of the present year it had outstanding 22,162 policies, insuring $53,911,873. The new business for the year 1886 was 4,569 policies, insuring $11,469,510. At the end of the year the gross assets were $11,422,615.61, of which $1,648,626.01 was surplus upon a four per cent. basis. The estimated surplus upon a four and one-half per cent. basis (Pennsylvania standard) was $2,287,427.01. During last year it received in premiums $2,062,973.56; for interest, etc., $650,625.25, making a grand total of $2,713,598.81. The amount received as interest is noteworthy when it is remembered that the mean amount of net assets for the year was $10,208,551.62. It is also worthy of remark that the interest, etc., more than paid the claims by death. The policyholders received $1,283,929.55, of which $632,948 were for death claims; $66,615 for matured endowments; $173,547.30 for surrendered policies; $406,014.98 for cash dividends; $4,804.27 for re-insurance, and $973,192 was added to the reserve on policies. The loss rate of this company has during the last twenty years been especially favorable, the gains therefrom, which is the difference between the actual and expected has amounted to nearly $1,700,000. This is a significant item, it indicates that careful management which secures not only stability, but also a good return in the way of dividends to policy-holders. The new and liberal forms of contract which have been recently introduced renders this an exceedingly desirable office in which to secure insurance.—U. S. Review, Philadelphia.

HOW TO SECURE A GOOD ROOF.

ROOFING

E A D^Y why we were obliged to stamp every sheet of our Guaranteed Brands—every box of which we are importing under a positive guarantee.

W I N G To the many cases in which our brands had been estimated upon and inferior brands substituted, we were induced to bring out the sheets stamped, not only with the Name of the Brand, but also the Thickness.

U R action in Stamping and Guaranteeing Roofing Plates exhausts our own means of insuring the use of first-class materials when required. It now, therefore, rests with the Architect and Builder to protect the owner and Roofer by seeing that the sheets on the roof are Stamped.

I R S T class Roofing Plates if properly laid upon the roof, should last thirty to forty years; while the cost of same would be but little more than that of the inferior tin which has caused so much trouble and expense to all concerned.

H E E T S that are Guaranteed and Stamped are the only protection to the Architect, Owner and Roofer against dishonest competition and the use of inferior material. It will cost nothing, however, to obtain full facts and samples, which can be had by addressing

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, FEB. 7, 1887.

PROHIBITION is up in the Legislature, and it is rather surprising how prompt the matter was disposed of in the House.

A MOVEMENT is contemplated to consolidate New York and Brooklyn. New York license people want the saloons to pay $2,000,000 per annum.

THE real estate people of New York are calling for short deeds. About one-tenth the number of words is sufficient. A movement is on foot to abolish the New York health department.

THE rate of wages asked by mechanics for the Spring, when there will be an unusual amount of building, is one that is commanding serious attention. From present indications it does not appear that there will be any material change, unless there should be an agitation among the mechanics which come now-a-days without the least warning.

A BILL has been introduced at Harrisburg to prohibit the issuing of attachments on execution or judgments more than five years old unless revived; also a bill providing that married women may contract the same as unmarried, and that her separate estate shall be liable under such contracts. To all appearances there will be a deluge of legislation bearing upon the rights and interests of builders, contractors, conveyancers, and others interested, both directly and indirectly, in real estate.

THE all-powerful Traction Company has but to snap its whip and a host of cringing partisans are only too ready to do its bidding, regardless of the interest of the people or the sacred nature of their oaths. Councils have been so frequently prostituted in the interest of this monster of iniquity that our citizens submissively wait for the next piece of devilry to develop without even so much as a protest. Nothing can be expected in the way of protection, from the present Legislature, and the Governor's spinal column is in no way equal to the emergency.

PHILADELPHIA ought to profit very largely by the great industrial activity in progress in the South. The estimates of investments are only guessed at, the machinery used there must come largely from the North; and even much building material is brought long distances. The demand for saw-mill machinery and for wood-working machinery is becoming an important item as is the demand for tools and tool making machinery. Two or three large stove foundries are to be built in the South this season and foundries are springing up without number. The monthly list of new enterprises furnished by those interested in Southern developments makes very interesting reading. The South will grow rapidly in its manufacturing capacity but it will be many years before it will be able to make its own supplies excepting in the cruder form.

SOME writers, whether they know any more about the matter than other people who do not write, are trying to make out that a general rise in the value of commodities is near at hand. Cotton is not increasing in supply as rapidly as consumption requirements, we are told. This may be true this year, but not next year, because there are millions of hungry acres waiting for cultivation. The Southern railroad builders have developed much good cotton producing territory, and no less than a million acres will likely be added to the present area next season. All that is wanted is the evidence of a larger demand. So it is in wool and in the iron and steel trades. Capacity is being everywhere extended.

A GOOD many authorities in sea coast cities or in cities which are within reach of hostile fleets are considering the subject of defenses; and in that connection are suggesting how passenger railways should be constructed so as to serve military purposes in the event of a foreign war. The American people are not much given to discussing or thinking on questions of this kind. At the same time this is a question which ought to command more attention than it does. Col.

Church a high military authority in New York, is advising New Yorkers that the railroad system should be so manipulated as to admit of the rapid carriage of troops from the Jersey shore to the Long Island shore and backwards. We, in Philadelphia, feel comparatively safe, since it is next to impossible for a vessel of the usual war pattern to plant itself opposite our city; but, we have seen immense vessels right there. That which we have most to fear is light draught that could sneak up in a night and awaken us from our drowsy slumbers with a hailstorm of shells.

THE insurance journals of the country seem to hold some undefinable grudge against the Philadelphia fire department. At all events the Spectator regards the heavy fire loss of 1886 as an outgrowth of the demoralizing influence of political control over the department. The recent sudden removal, re-instatement and judicial investigation of the removal of several members of the department would indicate that there was even more than a grain of truth in the statement. The Bullitt Bill places the fire department in April next, under the immediate control of the Director of Public Safety, and it remains to be seen whether the change of control will result in strengthening its efficiency. The singular attitude of the fire insurance companies towards matters that should concern them most, so far as their own legitimate business is involved, is absolutely enigmatical. They look upon their increased yearly losses with refreshing equanimity, and move neither hand nor foot in hunting up the cause and remedying it. They seldom take a hand in shaping legislation, and such side-issues as fire department, water supply, overhead wires, etc., are left to the control of politicians. There is no question but that a power of good might be accomplished were the influence of these corporations properly utilized through the Board of Underwriters, or some other representative organization.

IN this age of improvement it is not surprising to hear of something new every week in building material or interior decoration. The market is full of "the best." A new material for the decoration of interior walls and ceilings is made from chemical wood fiber. The sheet or roll of chemical wood fiber of the desired thickness is taken while wet or damp, and any desired raised design or pattern is produced in high relief by means of suitable embossing rolls or dies, after which it is allowed to dry, and may then be colored or bronzed if desired, or it may be colored in the pulp if preferred. Chemical fiber is especially adapted as a material for embossed wall coverings, as its great elasticity permits it to be very deeply embossed without liability of breaking as it is stretched thus enabling designs to be successfully produced in high relief with a smooth and unbroken surface, while after being stretched in the embossing progress the strength and toughness of the fibers will cause the design to permanently retain its form, and effectually resist any pressure to which it might be subjected in the operation of applying the material to a wall or ceiling.

STRANGE rumors get afloat which are in many cases hard to contradict. We have seen in the daily newspapers full accounts of plans and specifications for the new building to be erected by Mr. A. J. Drexel, but in an interview with that gentleman he stated that these reports were not at all true, but mainly fabrications. On top of this comes the report that Mr. Edwin H. Fidler, the Republican candidate for Mayor, has bought a tract of land, and intends to build a number of houses this Spring. The truth of the matter is, as stated to our reporter, that Mr. Fidler did buy a tract of land last July, but has no thoughts of building this Spring.

ACCORDING to the official statistics of 1885, the money expended in the United States in liquor, tobacco, bread, meat, iron and steel, sawed lumber, cotton goods, boots and shoes, sugar and molasses, public education, home and foreign missions, amounted to $3,482,500,000, and the amounts expended range in the order in which we have given the items, the expenditures for liquors being the largest and amounting to $900,000,000, or nearly 25 per cent. of the entire total. Public education comes next to the last, amounting to only $85,000,000, or $1 for education and $10 for whiskey. Home and foreign missions come last, amounting to $5,500,000, but it is a question whether the foreigners on whom this money is expended are any better off for it. The foreigners need work rather than tracts. The expenditure for bread was $505,000,000, or a little over one-half that expended for liquor.

A SYNDICATE has been formed, with a capital stock of $20,000,000, for the purpose of piping gas from the prolific gas centres in Ohio, Cincinnati and other cities in Southern and Western Ohio. Natural gas is already piped 90 miles to Buffalo and Rochester. Engineers and manufacturers at first expressed a good deal of doubt concerning the practicability of transporting natural gas such long distances. The project to invest $20,000,000 in a scheme ought to settle this question. If natural gas can be carried 50, 90 or 150 miles, as it is now intended, it is reasonable to suppose that mechanical ingenuity will prove itself equal to the task of conducting natural gas longer distances. This opens up grand possibilities for manufacturing interests, who need just such service as is herein promised. The industries throughout the country are watching this gas development with keen interest, and in the course of a year the experiments and enterprises will have gone far enough to satisfy all minds as to the practicability of using gas at long distances from wells.

THE strike in and around New York, will likely be adjusted in a short time, because of the possibility that it may extend to other crafts than those directly concerned. The striking spirit is contagious, and it would take a very little further agitation to arouse the spirit of discontent among thousands and in fact tens of thousands of wage workers all over the country. This is an act which employers, generally recognize with regret. The general prosperity of the country, helps or encourages the striking spirit; workmen hear and read of enormous activity and see with their eyes, the evidences of this growth. They see ware houses building, store houses, and dwellings multiplying by the tens and hundreds of thousands; they see railroad building schemes projected and carried out, they hear of enormous production and distribution in all avenues of activity, and they naturally infer that they should have more pay for their work. There is, beneath the smooth surface of labor society a discontent and unrest, which may at any time, break into a gale that will, to carry the figure of speech, dash a great many industrial crafts hither and thither. It is necessary for our prosperity, that these industrial uprisings should be checked, and when they do occur, terminate as soon as possible. It is an erroneous belief to entertain upon the part of employers that they can dictate hereafter as they have done heretofore. The purpose of labor, is to obtain what it terms a just share of the profits of labor. These profits labor asserts have not been sufficient and hereafter, it will direct its attention with organized effort to the righting of these inequalities. It is not necessary that the just division of profits should lead to strikes; we are not familiar with the actual merits and demerits of the coal handlers strike but it is reasonable to infer that something is wrong, where twenty thirty or fifty thousand men will at this season of the year, throw down their shovels and tools, and put their hands in their pockets. No effort has been made, so far as the public has been informed, to settle this matter by arbitration. These men may be defeated in this strike, as other bodies of men have been frequently defeated heretofore. Should this be the outcome, it will not be a matter of congratulation to their employers, nor to employees any where. Defeat simply nerves organized labor to a greater effort, and to a closer study of the requirements for successful effort; it would be the part of wisdom to conciliate rather than to crush, but this policy is one which a great many employers have yet to recognize as wisdom. It is possible to defeat the fifty thousand men around New York, but the results elsewhere may be, that discontented labor will put on it war paint and strike without special cause. Some of the greatest and most bitter strikes in the country have arisen out of sympathy for others who were defeated.

THE legislature is getting down to work; a bill has been favorably reported increasing the limit of real and personal estate which may be held for corporate, religious, and charitable purposes. A bill was also introduced to enforce the study of physiology and hygiene in public schools.

ARCHITECTS report a fair improvement in work during the past few days in Eastern cities. The permit lists make a creditable showing for February. Builders are making contracts for season work, and so far there is every reason for believing that the year will go far ahead of last year. The labor agitation will be very probably eliminated. Material is not much, if any, higher than a year ago.

THE Pennsylvania Legislature proposes to make its servants in Congress vote in favor of the abolition of all internal taxes. Another bill has been introduced to fix rates for telephones. There is certainly some need of legislation in this. The present monopoly charges are unreasonable and the company is blind to its own interests, and by high charges deprives three-fourths of the people who would use the telephone of its advantages. It is rather surprising that such short-sighted business management should control so great an interest, and the Legislature is justified in stepping in to protect the public as far as it can against this conscience monopoly.

THE elevated railroad people are at Harrisburg in strong force to secure necessary legislation that will enable them to prosecute their schemes. A bill now before the House requires that the capital stock shall not be less than $300,000 for every 5,000 feet, and there shall not be less than nine or more than thirteen directors, and that one-fourth of the capital stock shall be subscribed before the charter is granted. The bill contains a number of conditions covering the duties of the company. The first is that one per cent. of the par value stock shall be paid into the city treasury; the second grants the company the privilege to take private property for passenger stations, etc.; the third has reference to the payment of damages; the fourth provides that surface roads shall not be interfered with; the fifth provides that shares shall be $50 each, one-half of which shall be paid in before the work is commenced. It also provides that the capital stock can be increased as the mileage extends. The other provisions are all necessary and reasonable.

THE cost of land transfer will be reduced if the reformers in that new field carry their points. If a $1,000 or $50,000 property is sold twenty times in twenty years an examination is, and must be, made each time at a cost of anywhere from $10 to $100 or more. This is quite an item. It has often occurred to these reformers that a great deal of hard labor is wasted in examining the title of the same property every time a sale is made. They ask why cannot one examination be made, and let that answer for all past time. That is just what our guarantee companies are doing, but it is proposed to do this on a larger scale. If a title is properly examined once, and the title is guaranteed, it ought to be sufficient. The question with which the public has to do is not, will a few real estate lawyers lose some practice, but will the community and our complicated business interests be benefited by a simplification of title examination? Cost is a very important factor. It ought not to cost much more to transfer a house than a horse, and the critical spirit of the laity is at this problem and will solve it, though not so soon as it thinks. Old customs are deeply rooted, and no patent way of passing titles will satisfy the public mind long accustomed to patient examinations under the supervision of its own special attorneys. Yet the desire for a change in our whole land transfer business will grow, and some day assume a formidable attitude unless our lawyers and judges can do something to meet the requirements. The matter has been taken hold of in New York, where the community has been groaning under the load of lawyer's charges. A committee of real estate lawyers has prepared and submitted bills to the Legislature of that State looking to some half-way reforms in these particulars.

It has been suggested that the proprietor of the Public Ledger should be appointed to the place in the Park Commission made vacant by the death of E. Coppee Mitchell. The suggestion should be carried out by all means. The fact is, newspaper men should be in greater demand for positions of this kind. Mr. Singery and Mr. Childs are both practical men who have a warm interest in the Park and the people who enjoy its beauties. A resignation or two would cause vacancies that could also be filled by capable newspaper men to the great benefit of the people generally.

The Julian electric system for street car propulsion comes to us from European countries with many recommendations of excellence. It has been subjected to numerous and severe tests in Paris and Brussels, and has stood the test of the severest requirements. The tests on the Eighth avenue line New York, have been in the main satisfactory. The driver is enabled to call into use as many or as few jars as he likes, and can thus regulate the speed. A shaft beneath the car is made to revolve at the rate of 1000 revolutions per minute. Endless chains connect this shaft with the axles of the car, and by causing the shaft to revolve in this or that direction the engineer can secure either a forward or backward motion as may be desired. To operate a car run under this system would require no additional attaches over the number now employed on each horse car; and a slow or fast speed can be maintained as circumstances or the condition of the street may require. In addition to the freedom from smoke, steam, or the other objectionable features which attend steam and horse-power lines, the electric system has a decided advantage over the cable system in, that no underground well and cable are required; and as there is no cable upon which the motion of an entire line of cars depend, there can be no stoppage and blockade of any entire line of cars, as frequently happens on lines operated by cable-power.

When facilities are established by our new Real Estate Exchange to sell property through the mediumship of "wants" and "offers to sell," it will surprise even the real estate operators themselves what an amount of property is to be had. Heretofore would-be buyers have been at a disadvantage because of having to seek sellers who naturally could insist on the highest price. The Exchange will reverse this order of things and will draw out sellers and enable buyers to select. This is needed and will be productive of excellent results.

WEST PHILADELPHIA will soon again become a howling wilderness unless some more reliable mode of travel is afforded its inhabitants than that provided by the Traction Company. The whole community west of the Schuylkill is not only indignant at the treatment it has received all winter from this soul-destroying monopoly, but it is praying for relief through an elevated railroad that will be equal to the demands of that rapidly growing section of the city. The fact is, houses are not in such demand in West Philadelphia as they use to be, and the question of better travelling facilities is becoming serious. Property owners realize that something must be done, or To Rent will become a rule and not the exception in that very desirable locality. It is this pressure that has driven the Traction Company to Harrisburg to try its mesmeric powers upon the State Legislature.

A CHICAGO paper informs us that 11,000 new buildings were put up in Philadelphia during the past two years, costing $75,000,000. We are much obliged for this advertisement. Chicago is a good place to get Philadelphia news. $75,000,000 is certainly a good deal of money to invest in two years in building and especially in 11,000 buildings which were put up in this city during the past two years. We would not have far to go to find contractors—who would be willing to undertake to put up 11,000 more at the same price. They would be willing to even shade these figures by a few millions, say twenty or so, and then would have enough money left to buy a yacht or two that would put Vanderbilt's to shame. They could also put up a fine winter mansion worth a million or two and a summer mansion, and retire from business and enjoy life. It would be well for the Chicago papers who publish such interesting items of news as this to figure up a little before making such statements.

MARKET street is forsaking its continental simplicity, and is steadily assuming a city look. Two large warehouses have been built and another is in process of erection. The railroad requirements will take up several good sites. Builders who want Market street properties would do well to look after some bargains on that thoroughfare before they are all gone. The new bridge will help to improve property between Broad street and the Schuylkill.

QUITE an interest has been awakened among builders within the past week as to the probable course of lumber in eastern markets. Rumors are rife in Chicago and other Western markets that prices will advance before Spring. Several Philadelphia dealers are in the West and South looking up supplies, and arranging for heavy deliveries. The hard woods, it is claimed by some dealers, are extremely scarce, especially ash and cherry. Prices have been advanced nominally at least. Builders are naturally anxious to secure supplies for the season at last season's prices. Dry hemlock is said to be scarcer, and even good white pine is stronger than usual, although but a minimum of business is being done in it.

A NEW national bank is talked for the up town people. Philadelphia has been run for a century on the "corner grocery" principles, where villagers congregated of evenings to hear and discuss matters. Chestnut, Market and Third streets, that is, a few blocks on those streets, have been the business centers for years, of late there have been signs of decentralization. Two or three banks have been projected, a theatre is talked of on North Broad, fine stores have been built and many others are projected one to two miles north of Market street. Philadelphia is getting to be entirely too unwieldy to do all the business in one center. Columbia Avenue ought to be a center of its own, with its banks, halls, large stores, &c., so of the Southern section of the city and of West Philadelphia. Every village has its one main thoroughfare and Philadelphia has not yet gotten away from that idea altogether.

THE speculation element throughout this country are watching war probabilities with a keen interest. If war is declared, wheat will suddenly advance, because the available supplies are calculated to comfortably meet the requirements of a peace basis. Our own civil war gave prices a sudden upward impulse, and in some directions they have not yet gotten over it. A European war means increased exportation of all kinds of war material, besides wheat, provisions, lumber, etc., to the end of the chapter. The effect on building interests would be, as every one knows, to advance prices. Against this possibility, however near or remote it may be, a good many large interests are now preparing themselves by ordering largely ahead. In one respect a foreign war would be a disadvantage to the producing and building interest by reason of the unsettling of prices, and the consequent intimidation of enterprise which flourishes best when prices of labor and material are reasonably low. Enterprise and capital are always keeping in view the possibility of a reaction.

Correction.

George W. Shook, and not Henry R. Shook, purchased the lot at Twenty-first and Fairmount avenue, Mr. B. F. Glenn & Son so informs us.

Thanks!

Mr. L. B. Ulmer, the Philadelphia manager of the Lawrence Cement Company with his characteristic kindness, has sent us his company's calendar for 1887. It is certainly the handsomest we have seen and reflects credit upon the company's artistic tastes in making its selection. We trust as the months roll by, each new leaf of this pretty calendar will prove a harbinger of continued prosperity to both the company and its energetic Philadelphia manager.

"CHICAGO is considering a $15,000,000 scheme to drain its sewage into the Mississippi, thus keeping Lake Michigan pure." This bit of news comes to us as an evidence of the great energy of our sister city. Unlike the citizens of Philadelphia the citizens of Chicago believe that any reasonable expenditure of money that will secure better water is justifiable. We will get there before long, but how long?

RIDLEY PARK has an improvement association whose object is to make the place more attractive by encouraging planting, cultivating and preservation of shade and ornamental trees, the improvement of streets, side-walks and public buildings, the lighting of streets and in other ways contributing to the convenience, good taste, healthfulness, intelligence, and prosperity of its inhabitants. Its officers are:—W. Curtis Taylor, President; G. W. Marsh and F. N. Woodruff, Vice-Presidents; F. E. Harrison, Secretary, and Robert Craven, Treasurer.

HERE is the way the St. Louis Republic hits the scheme to retire Greenbacks between the eyes.

"To use $346,000,000 gold for the redemption and retirement of the greenbacks would, therefore, be very much like throwing that large amount of money away. A first-rate currency would be annihilated; the country's volume of money would be contracted one-third; all prices would be reduced; all debts would be proportionately enlarged, and nobody would be benefited but the moneyed and creditor classes."

IF this, from the Lumberman, is true, builders had better be on the lookout. "There can be no question that an advance in prices for all kinds of soft wood and building materials will be made at an early date. It is true, perhaps, that the volume of business done during the year just closed has exceeded that of former years, yet there has been scarcely a living profit realized on any deals that have been made. Dealers who have visited the pine districts of the Northwest have been confronted with an advance of at least ten per cent. over quotations of last Fall. This advance will necessarily advance local prices. It is believed, however, that the advance will not be uniform; the lower grades will probably advance 15 to 20 per cent., while the higher grades will range from ten to twelve per cent. over last Fall's prices."

THE New York Spectator, a live paper devoted to the insurance interest of this country, says that it has long been a notorious fact that the fire department of Philadelphia is the worst managed and the least progressive of any among the larger departments of the United States. Run by politicians in their own interest, removals and appointments are made without regard to personal fitness or merit in a manner which would demoralize the finest force in existence, while in both method and equipment the department remains far behind the age. Indeed, all things being considered it is hardly a matter of surprise that Philadelphia's loss ratio should be so large as compared with that of New York or Chicago, but rather that it is not much greater.

JUDGE STERLETT, in delivering an opinion in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, confirming the award made by a jury of view assessing $700 damages against the Schuylkill Valley Railroad, in the case of Centre street, Manayunk, vacated between High and Main streets for the benefit of the Railroad, one property owner having been damaged to that amount, and which award was subsequently set aside by the Quarter Sessions Court of Philadelphia on the ground that the Act of 1853 did not authorize such a provision, said that "the Act of 1853 does, in express terms, authorize the assessment of benefits for the purpose of paying damages occasioned by the vacation of a street, and the only question is whether it was within the scope of legislative power to provide the remedy given by the act. We have no doubt it was."

ONE side of trade unionism not often adverted to, is the fact that the incentive to individual excellence is reduced to a minimum through the leveling agencies constantly at work. A western editor hits the nail on the head this way: "There is but one thing that stands in the way and discourages the young mechanic in his determination to perfect himself in his trade, and having perfected himself, in giving his employer the benefit of such perfected skill, and that is the growing influence, power and control of trades unions with their leveling tendency. It is contrary to the rules and regulations of these unions that one mechanic shall excel another, and more especially that one mechanic shall receive higher wages than another. That is really one of the very strongest objections to the principles of trade unionism. It discourages progress toward perfection of workmanship and the cultivation of industrious habits, because the very best mechanic and the most industrious workman must put himself on a level with the most incompetent workman in his union, both as to wages and consideration."

THE Mobile Register is jealous of Philadelphia. It thinks the secret of our great manufacturing prosperity is due to cheap coal. It says it has plenty of cheap coal cheaper by far than Philadelphia coal and it therefore says it ought to be as prosperous. Or at least, it does not see why prosperity should not come along some of these fine mornings and knock at her doors. It meditates as follows:—

"All kinds of factories follow cheap coal. If Mobile can get coal cheaper than other points in the country she will get all manner of factories and a multitude of them. Look at what cheap coal has done for Philadelphia in the way of encouraging and securing cotton manufactories. Philadelphia is now and has been for a hundred years the great cotton manufacturing centre of the United States. More cotton goods are made there than at any other place in the country. The big mills of New England are scattered here and there one in a town, and the extensive manufactories that have sprung up since the war in the South are far apart and not confined to any centre. It is probably a safe and fair estimate to say that there are in and around Philadelphia 150 cotton manufacturing establishments, employing between 10,000 and 15,000 people and turning out between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 worth of goods a year."

Councils Doing.

Among the ordinances reported from the Finance Committee are the following, to permit the Penn Electric Light Company to lay under ground wires, also one discharging the committee from further consideration of the subject of patent conduits, in which the Cosmopolitan Telephone and Telegraphic Companies are interested. A resolution was introduced to authorize the sale of a plot of ground from Locust to Spruce, and from Thirty-fourth street to the West Chester Railroad, also another to postpone the removal of the market sheds on Girard avenue, east of Third street to April 15th; also resolution to remove the monument at Broad street and Girard avenue, to a suitable place in Fairmount Park, and also a resolution for the appointment of a committee of five members to provide remedies for the prompt removal of garbage, and for immediate opening of Pulaski avenue from Rittenhouse square to Harvey street. In Common Council, Mr. Maloney of the first ward, who is looming up as a man of some consequence, has given the gas lease scheme a parting kick. Mr. Fow introduced a resolution related to the Traction Company as follows:—

"That the Senate and House of Representatives of Pennsylvania be and they are hereby requested to defer action in regard to Senate bills Nos. 9 and 40, and House bills Nos. 18 and 26, until Council can be heard before the proper committees of the Legislature in regard to the same; that a committee of five from each chamber be appointed to appear before the proper committees in Harrisburg in regard to the said bills, and that the City Solicitor be requested to accompany said committee, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent forthwith by the Clerk of this chamber to the Senate and House of Representatives."

The following committee was appointed to proceed to Harrisburg in the interests of the above resolution:—Messrs. Maloney, chairman, Fow, N. A. Williams, Matthews and Beamer, Mr. Matthews declined and George Grim was appointed in his place.

Among the bills passed by Common Council are the following:

To pave Wiota, from Baring to Spring Garden; Ogden, from Union to Fortieth, and Preston, from Westminster avenue to a point 140 feet southward.

To make Seventeenth, from Susquehanna avenue to York, 50 instead of 60 feet wide. To strike from the city plan Moyer street, from Palmer to Montgomery avenue.

To reduce the width of Pacific street, between Twenty-second and Hunting Park avenue, from 50 to 40 feet.

To pave Tyson, from eighth to Ninth, Indiana, from fourth to American, and Hull, from Amber to Evans.

The City Detectives want their force increased and more money. A large number of bills were introduced concerning grading, paving and sewerage, which were properly referred.

Material Market.

The slate roofers of Northampton county have paid sufficiently well to lead to the opening of new manufactories. Competition for roofing material does not seem to interfere very much with the growth of that industry.

Roofing material of all kinds is in abundant supply. The improvements which are being made from time to time keep those who have roofing material and compositions constantly on the alert, lest their project be turned out by something new.

The saw and planing mill industry in the interior of Pennsylvania seems to improve steadily, in spite of the fact that other lumber regions are throwing immense quantities of stuff into Eastern markets. The band saw is whizzing away, and is driving out competition; the manufacturers of it are doing excellent work, and the improvements in saw and planing mill machinery are constantly attracting the attention of lumber manufacturers.

A large amount of money will be expended by the cities and towns throughout the country for all kinds of building improvements.

The builders throughout the city are posted to make purchases of lumber far ahead of their needs. No one is certain that lumber will not advance, and hence quite a liberal distribution of lumber is observable day by day among the wholesalers. The receipts for some days past have ranged from a quarter of a million to nearly one million. An open winter will contribute to the activity of the lumber market. The stocks in the South and West are sufficiently large to counteract any upward tendency that might be developed; at the same time buyers prefer to be on the safe side, and have under their own control moderate supplies.

Points on Ventilation.

In the new building of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where the ventilation is considered as very satisfactory, the inlet and outlet flues are all in the interior partitions, the warm-air registers being located about seven feet from the floor, and the outlet registers in the same partition at the floor.

In the new Library Building of Columbia College, New York, in which the ventilation was under the direction of Prof. Trowbridge, the majority of the hot-air registers are placed ten feet above the floor (the rooms being fifteen feet high) and the outlets are at the outer corners of the room at the floor level.

Of the laws relating to the movement of gases there are but three, in addition to that of their diffusion, which may be mentioned:

1. Currents of air are in most cases due to heat; warm air, expanding, becomes lighter than cold air, which flows in beneath and pushes it up.

2. As a rule, a current of air having a velocity of less than two feet per second is imperceptible, and does not give a sensation of draught.

3. Air in motion has a strong tendency to adhere to and follow the outlines or surfaces along or over which it passes. If a current of air enters a room horizontally near the bottom, it will adhere to and flow over the floor, almost like water, for a considerable distance.

In large halls, theatres, churches, etc., it is almost impossible to secure good ventilation without admitting fresh warm air through a large number of openings in the floor (or risers where the floor is stepped). The total areas of such openings should be such that sufficient air may be admitted with a velocity not exceeding three feet per second, and if the registers or inlets are placed in the risers of the seat platforms, not more than two feet per second.

The Master Builders' Exchange of the City of Philadelphia.

It is a subject for congratulation that the vast building interest of Philadelphia has at last perfected an organization, which must prove of lasting benefit to every person, no matter how remotely connected with the growth and development of the city.

How an interest so extensive and involving so much that represents the solid strength and wealth of the entire community, could thrive and prosper as it has without the necessity for an Exchange being made apparent long ago, is an enigma which cannot be interpreted, unless it is because Philadelphia's builders represent a higher type of men than are found in other cities.

The Master Builders' Exchange is not only intended to correct the few evils that exist within the craft, but its purposes are to elevate and surround the business of building with that influence and prestige which always follow when strong men organize under well defined principles, conclusive of harmony within themselves, and protection and honorable business methods with the public, whom they seek to serve. The fact is the organization is so constituted that a membership is practically a guarantee of business integrity and mechanical ability, and its influences for good will certainly prove co-extensive with its growth and development. We present the names of a few subscribers to the Exchange in order that our readers may better comprehend the strength of the organization: Stacy Reeves, 628 North Sixteenth street; George Vancot, 723 North Eighth street; George W. Roydhouse, 2007 North College avenue; Miles King, 1513 Fairmount avenue; Chas. H. Reeves, 922 North Eighth street; Wm. H. Albertson, 614 North Fortieth street; David A. Woelpper, 426 Franklin street; Wm. Nice, Jr., 433 Christian street; Hugh Copeland, 2051 Fitzwater street; Fred. F. Myhlertz, 730 North Twentieth street; John S. Stevens, 1127 Mt. Vernon street; Samuel J. Creswell, 202 South Thirty-ninth street; John Byrd, 1422 Catharine street; Peter Carrigan, 1523 Wallace street; J. Stein Thorn, 710 North Sixteenth street; Jos. Chapman, 1938 North Twelfth street; John Hunecker, 1711 Race street; John E. Ryanson, 207 South Tenth street; Wm. Harkness, Jr., 1557 South Ninth street; Murrell Dobbin, 1825 Green street; Alfred P. Shannon, 1230 Arch street; Thomas Little, 343 South Twelfth street; John F. Prince, 669 North Fifteenth street; Franklin M. Harris, 1820 North Broad street; Michael B. Andress, 1206 Wallace street.

—The official mortgage list of New York city shows loans amounting to $36,846,285.

—W. W. Smith obtained the contract for the iron girders for the tower of the Public Buildings, price $3,407. Mr. Smith was the only bidder who offered to comply with the specifications.

—The city revenues of last year foot up, according to the report of the Finance Committee, at $15,955,009 62; disbursements, $14,639,759 90. There is a balance of $1,315,249 72, and the surplus of the year is $98,261 25. The total debt of the city during the past year was reduced $2,695,500, and on January 1st was $59,540,045 85.

Recent Decisions in Pennsylvania in Relation to Real Estate and Commercial Law.

Decided by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

ADVERSE POSSESSION.

Title gained by adverse possession cannot be divested by parol declarations. Such statements by one whose title by adverse possession is complete to the owner of the paper title are ineffectual to divest the title by possession.

BANKS.

Where a letter to a bank states that a note is enclosed therein for collection, the neglect of such bank receiving it to give notice that the note was not found enclosed therein is, if unexplained, equivalent to an admission that the note was received.

CONTRACTS.

A contract restraining one of the parties thereto from the exercise of a trade within a limited locality when there is reasonable ground for the restriction is valid.

Inquiry will not be made into the adequacy of the consideration; if it is reasonable, it is enough.

MORTGAGE.

A married woman, her husband joining, contracted with a third person to purchase certain real estate from him at a stipulated sum without any provision as to how deferred payments should be secured. On coming to take possession vendee (the wife) offered vendor her judgment note for the balance of purchase money unpaid. Vendor refused the note and demanded a mortgage upon certain real estate owned by the wife. The vendee with knowledge that she had a remedy against the vendor on the contract and acting in conjunction with her husband gave the desired mortgage. Held that the facts did not show fraud or coercion on the part of the vendor, and therefore did not afford a defense to the mortgage.

QUIETING TITLE.

A recorded deed under a tax sale of land is a cloud upon the title, if it be regular upon its face, although the sale was invalid; and the owner of the lands who is in possession of the same can file a bill to remove such cloud upon his title.

The courts of this State have adopted and recognize the Equity jurisdiction to remove clouds upon title as fully and as broadly as it is described in the equity text-books and decisions.

TRUSTS.

A trust created by deed "for the sole and separate use of A., wife of B., and her heirs," vests in A. an equitable estate in fee simple, which becomes absolute on the death of B.

The Court of Common Pleas has jurisdiction to decree the trust at an end and to order a conveyance by the trustee.

WILLS.

Where a testator gives to his granddaughter a specific legacy, and then proceeds to give his daughters equal shares of his estate, there is no reason to infer that he inadvertently omitted from the latter clause the name of his granddaughter. When a will is executed the natural and reasonable presumption is that the testator does not intend to die intestate as to any part of his property.

In the interpretation of wills the intent of the testator is to be deduced from the language of the will taken as a whole.

Special Notice.

A new and revised edition of Helen's Babies, by John Habberton, has been issued by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, to meet the increased and growing demand for a book that, as a picture of pure child life, has had many imitators but no equal. This book has pleased many thousands, and will continue to please thousands more so long as "one touch of nature makes the whole world kin." It is published in a large square duodecimo volume, paper cover, and will be sent to any address on receipt of price—fifty cents.

BUILDERS' ITEMS.

Building and Real Estate Notes.

PATTERSON, New Jersey, is to have a new $100,000 public building.

JOHN HARRISON, of Norwood, Delaware county, will build this Spring.

KATE L. PATTON, of Philadelphia, has purchased largely of land in Radnor.

SAMUEL GREENWOOD, of Chester, has purchased lots there for building purposes.

A. B. SHEARER, trustee of the De Silver estate, has just sold 1229 Chestnut st. for $76,000. The property is to be improved.

C. B. TRUITT, JR., 418 Walnut st., has just sold a 67 acre farm near Norristown for $16,500. Mr. Truitt reports business looking up, and prospects for Spring trade exceedingly good. He is now negotiating for 17 six-room houses in the north-western part of the city.

A LARGE force of bricklayers are now at work upon Wm. H. Hughes' new house.

SARAH E. GRINNAGE, of Philadelphia, has purchased a building lot in South Chester.

SAMUEL J. ROSE, of Chester, has purchased building lots in Upland, Delaware county.

HUGO WALKER, of Philadelphia, has purchased 28 acres of land in Delaware county near Media.

KERSEY H. DRUMMOND, of Chester, has purchased a number of lots in that city for building purposes.

PREPARATIONS are being made in Reading for unusual activity in building operations this Spring.

I. ENGLE COCHRAN, of Chester, has purchased largely of ground in South Chester for building purposes.

The Government appropriation for the Scranton, Pa., new public building is to be increased to $225,000.

AMOS K. GILMORE has purchased an acre of ground in Centreville, Bucks county, upon which he will build.

MESSRS. NEAFIE & LEVY will soon erect a number of large buildings in connection with their present works.

JACOB HAUBERT has purchased 9 acres of land for building lot purposes in Doylestown township, Bucks county.

NEWARK, New Jersey, is to have a new public building, to cost $120,000, and Chester, Pa., one to cost $75,000.

JOSEPH H. LEARY, of Buckingham, Bucks county, has purchased lots for building purposes in Doylestown.

The town of Rutledge, on the West Chester Railroad, is to witness great strides in its building growth this Spring.

PHILIP TOWNSEND will in the Spring erect a brick cottage on his lot on South High street, near the Normal School.

MRS. ELIZABETH OBERLY, of Limerick Station, Montgomery county, has purchased a number of lots in Pottstown for building purposes.

PRESIDENT ROBERT GARRETT, of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, has become a purchaser of building lots at Ridley.

MERRITT & THORNTON have started operations on eight or ten houses on Columbia avenue, between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets.

SALLIE P. HAINES, of Philadelphia, has purchased a tract of 28 acres in Nether Providence, Delaware county, upon which buildings will be erected.

MR. PETER REIGER, the grocer of Seventh street and Columbia avenue, is about perfecting plans for the erection of seventeen five-room houses at Bridesburg.

AMONG the prospective building operations at Ridley this spring will be houses by John L. Galloway, of Ridley, and James H. McFalls, of Philadelphia.

E. D. VAN BLUNK, 1800 Montgomery avenue, has but few empty houses out of a large rental list. He is receiving inquiries daily for six and eight-roomed houses for investment.

PLANS have been drawn for a three-story Queen Anne cottage, for Thos. H. Williams, Bergen avenue and Emery street, Jersey City. It will be furnished with electric light, elevator, and all modern improvements.

T. F. CORSON, 1212 Montgomery avenue, has sold some small properties, also some seashore properties at Asbury Park, N. J., during the past month. The indications for Spring he considers good.

CHAS. MATTHEWS, JR., Fifteenth and Columbia avenue, is receiving a good many inquiries, but actual sales are somewhat slow. He considers the outlook good. Small houses are in very active demand and are very scarce.

JOHN W. EVERHAM, 2503 Ridge avenue, has much inquiry for vacant lots. Mr. Robert J. Handy will build about twenty houses at the Northwest corner of Twenty-fifth and Columbia avenue. He has already started digging out the cellars.

SAVIDGE & SMITH, 1937 Columbia avenue, report the renting of small houses as starting up lively, and negotiations for building lots for Spring operations as very active. They have a large number of vacant houses renting from $11 to $50.

WILLIAM H. BRUNNER, the contractor, intends building eight handsome houses on Johnson street, corner of Jefferson, and four seven-room houses on Jefferson street, Germantown. The same party has the contract for building the Morris street school-house and other work aggregating nearly $75,000.

C. HARRY SHOWAKER has sold his office at Twenty-first and Columbia avenue for $1,000 and has taken the office at Seventeenth and Oxford streets. He has also sold to Mr. Worrell, the undertaker, 2007 Columbia avenue for $8,500. He reports business as very active for the season.

GEO. W. CARSON, 1916 Columbia avenue, has made two or three sales during the past week, and has more under negotiation. There are more inquiries for properties and a good rental demand. From present indications there will be a good Spring trade. Store properties are in very active demand on the avenue, and they have some very desirable store properties for sale.

TWINING & SON, 2133 Columbia avenue, have lately sold 2400, 2437 and 2439 Redner street; also, 2229 Sharswood street. They have some vacant plots of land for sale in the northern section of the city east of Broad. Business has been unusually good with them since the first of the year and they have never experienced so much activity in business in January, before.

SAMUEL T. FOX, Ninth and Callowhill streets, has lately sold the house at 2323 Jefferson street, for $2,300 and has several more under negotiation. There is a demand for Tioga properties. He has twelve building plots with frontage of 20 to 25 feet and of from 108 to 150 or 160 depth. There is a big demand for centrally situated, medium sized houses.

MR. WM. SHIELDS, near the Star Tavern, West Philadelphia, will shortly give out the contract for the cellars of nine houses to be erected in blocks of two at Second and Chestnut streets, Darby. The lot upon which they are to stand was sold by P. L. Hill, and is 75 feet on Chestnut street and 190 feet on Second street. The cellars are each 16x30 feet, and the houses when completed will sell for about $2,000.

The Keystone Wall Paper Company, Hancock and Putnam streets, contemplate the erection of a new factory. Nothing definite is decided upon. An architect is preparing plans, which will be shortly submitted to the company. The enormous growth of the company's business necessitates the erection of either an entirely new building, or such additions to the old as will equal the requirements.

JOHN M. ERICKSON, 3949 Lancaster avenue, has lately sold the new house North-west corner Holly and Brown streets for $3800; three houses adjoining on Brown street, $2900 each; 3625 Centre street, $2400; 625 North Forty-sixth street, $2,000; 4146 and 4148 Parkish street at $3600 each. Lot on Lancaster avenue, $675. Lot on Marion avenue, $400.

MR. WILLIS P. HAZARD, of West Chester, will widen an alley running from Lacy to Nields street, and will make it a 32-foot street, and will name it "Waverley Place." He will then convert a stable now on the alley into two comfortable residences. He will also erect two handsome modern brick houses on the south side of Lacy street, east of Walnut. Henry C. Baldwin, who has purchased two lots alongside of the above, will erect two more. Plummer E. Jeffers, a prominent builder, says that the prospect for Spring building is exceedingly bright. While there are a large number of buildings talked of, it is too early to tell just how many will go up. He will build four neat three-story brick dwellings on Union street, between Church and Darlington, on the lot purchased of Mrs. Benjamin Green. They will contain nine rooms, and have the modern conveniences, and will make nice homes for small families. He will erect for John Hopkins, of Philadelphia, an eleven-room house at Merion, a house that will cost $8,000.

THE BRISTOL IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.—The most important institution in Bristol, Pa., is its Improvement Company. It was founded ten years ago, having for its primary object the advancement of the interests of the town, while at the same time providing a safe investment and profitable return in the shape of dividends to stockholders. The company's career to the present has been one of universal prosperity. Its work is limited to the erection of buildings for the use of manufacturers. These buildings are all substantial stone structures, and are provided with every safeguard against fire. Leedom's carpet mill, which is the latest addition to the company's property, is the model of its kind, and is regarded as one of the best mill properties in the State. It stands in full view from the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, and its magnificent proportions attract much attention from the traveling public that pass through the town. The Improvement Company now has a capital of over $200,000, and an accumulated fund of over $10,000. It has always declared quarterly dividends amounting to 7 per cent. per annum, and last year the accumulated fund was increased over 25 per cent. The advantage to Bristol of having this company is obvious. One hundred comfortable dwellings, about one-half of which are built of brick, were erected during the year 1886, not one of which would have probably been constructed if the impetus given to Bristol as a manufacturing centre by the Improvement Company had been withheld. The annual meeting of the stockholders took place last Tuesday in the company's rooms at the Livingston mills, at which 2,261 shares were represented.

Among the Architects.

A. E. YARNALL, 4 South Merriek street, has prepared the plans for Jesse M. Baker for three residences at Media, Pa. They will be brick houses and cost about $5000 each. They have a number of plans under way, but not sufficiently matured yet to speak of.

W. H. GEISSINGER, Fifth and Chestnut streets, has under way a new wing for the Keystone Watch Case Company, at Nineteenth and Brown. The building will be 80x35 feet, six stories high, fitted up with a vault on each floor, and all the latest improvements and appliances for protection against fire, etc.

A NEW parochial school-house to be connected with St. Mark's Catholic Church in Bristol is about to be erected under the supervision of Architect J. J. Deery. The structure is to be of Trenton brown-stone. The school-room on the first floor will accommodate 230 pupils. The hall on the floor above will seat 500 persons comfortably.

WILLIAM GETTE, 404 Crown street, will erect a crematory at Germantown, about five minutes walk from Germantown station. It will be built of brick and Ohio sandstone with large cupola and copper cornices, it will have a full frontage of 66 feet and a depth of 103 feet. The chapel will be 40x60 and 45 feet in height. The building, independent of ground or furniture, will cost $40,000.

T. RONEY WILLIAMSON has just won the competition for the new building for the Insurance Company of the State of Pennsylvania, to be built on the lots 144 and 146 South Fourth street, and to cost not less than $50,000. This was won over four competitors. He has under construction at Media, Pa., a residence for John S. Hopkins, to be built of stone and brick at a cost of $9,000.

Also, an alteration to a country house at Oakbourne, Pa., for James C. Smith, which is just started and will cost about $5,000. A new building for the West Chester Horse Company, at West Chester, Pa., which will cost about $4,000. Two residences at Grand Rapids, Michigan, one for J. C. Hall and one for Ph. C. Fuller, to cost $10,000 each.

VOL. II.—NO. 6.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1887.

News Items.

—E. Coppee Mitchell's estate is valued at about $50,000.

—We are sorry to state that George E. Goldbeck is confined to his house by sickness.

—Isaac Lew's estate inventories $175,807.87, and that of Mary Rebecca Darby Smith, $33,736.94.

—Jno. H. Goldbeck, has just returned from Colorado and speaks very highly of that part of the country.

—The Northwestern National Bank has taken possession of its new building at the Southwest corner, of Ridge and Girard avenues.

—Since 1875, 16,302 estates have been settled in the Orphans' Court. Last year the number was 1,721 appraised at nearly thirty-eight million dollars.

—The Board of Real Estate Assessors has re-elected James E. Roche President; Isaac Leach Secretary, and A. A. Dunton Treasurer, for the ensuing year.

—Ridge Avenue footwalks in Roxborough are in a wretched condition. During the recent rains the mud along the walks was from two to six inches deep for a stretch of several miles.

—Nine solemn visages representing the commercial enterprise of this city through the Philadelphia Board of Trade, listened last week to the report of the secretary, which was voluminous.

—The bricklayers and plasterers of Allentown, have asked that their wages be increased fifty cents per day, and they demand that no boss mason shall take any brick work, unless he is promised the plastering of the same house.

—The Philadelphia traction company have been making experiments with electric motors on a small scale for some time past. They are not yet suited, but are preparing to buy as soon as they find something that will answer all the requirements.

—The receipts of the Receiver of Taxes' Office for the month of January were as follows: City taxes, $510,270.90; State tax, $27,839.10, poll tax, $4522.90; search fees, $361.40; making a total of $542,994.30; being an excess of $113,212.22 over the corresponding month of last year.

—An amount of building unprecedented in the history of the city has been in progress in New York during the summer and fall of 1886. This is especially the case in that part of the city lying between Central Park and the North River, and between Fifth Avenue and North River from 110 to 125th streets. Miles of new buildings, almost wholly belonging to the better class of houses and flats are now under way or recently finished in that extensive district, hitherto largely given up to occupancy by "squatters" and browsed upon by the ubiquitous but peaceful goat. Of the 103,000 buildings in New York, 48,780 are used exclusively for dwellings, and 30,500 are dwellings occupied by one family. There are 26,130 tenement houses with stores, and 21,580 tenement houses to contain two to four families. There are 16,800 flats.

—A new safe is out, the product of the inventiveness of a Chicago Yankee. The mechanism is very simple. The dial rests in a magnetic block, from which wires extend, and communicate with magnets which set up the tumblers in the lock, and so permit a throwing back of the bolt-bar. This releases a spring or body of compressed air, as the case may be, which in turn releases the heavy bolt-work. The wires penetrate the top plate of the safe at the jamb of the door and move in a zig zag course through the inner plates to the lock. The wires are so small and their course so crooked that, it is claimed, they cannot be traced by explosives. A current of electricity is obtained from several small batteries by pressing down a key on the vulcanite block that holds the dial. The dial when not in use can be detached from the vulcanite block and carried in the pocket. The door of a safe whose lock is controlled by this electric apparatus will present to the burglar none of the spindles which penetrate the walls of the ordinary safe and yield so conveniently to the influences of the blowpipe, but simply a knob for opening the door, which only penetrates the first plate.

—Alternate freezing and thawing, changes of dryness, and different inside and outside temperatures, all affect the life of building stone. The heat may be 120 degrees outside and 70 inside in Summer, and 20 degrees below zero outside and 70 above inside, all these factors are to be taken into account to determine durability and the degree of economy in choice. Rain, wind and frost act physically and chronically; the action is determined by the solvation of the atmospheric impregnated water, and the oxidizing action of the oxygen of the atmosphere which bleaches and softens carboniferous and bituminous sandstones. In the Carbonate and Ohio sandstones, and limestones, the organic matter disappears in the form of a carbon dioxide.

The acid atmosphere of manufacturing cities is injurious to stones composed largely of carbonate lime. In wet, smoky localities, sulphuric nitric, carbonic, hydrochloric and other acids are taken up from the air, by the rain, and spread over the surface of buildings; therefore, soft porous limestones and sandstones which contain calcareous matter, and more hydrated iron oxide as a cement, are susceptible to their attack.

—Architect etiquette is the subject of society discussion in the West. A critic says: "Architects sometimes intercept work that would fall into the hands of others of the profession by offering to do it for less money or by offering to submit sketches free of charge unless accepted, and this cut-throat business not only robs our profession of the legitimate fees which rightfully belong to it, but prompts the public to place but little value upon our professional services, all from the fact that some members of our order place but little value upon their services. The individual architect needing his daily bread, and unsustained by his fellows, may be at the mercy of the public or his client, but the professional is not."

"Then further architects cut under each other, offering to do work at less than standard rates or offering to furnish drainings free of charge unless adopted. When an architect is engaged on a set of plans for his client and another one goes to him and agrees to do the work for a smaller rate of commissions, and finds response from an unscrupulous client who in many cases places the original architect's plans in the intruder's hands to be worked up, how are we to rescue ourselves against such unprofessional conduct."

"The prevailing custom among some men in our profession of submitting designs and estimates for buildings free of charge unless adopted, has educated the public to feel that architects, as a class, place but small valuation upon their resources, and in fact no valuation unless their designs are executed."

—It was an interesting comment upon the superiority of American elevators, that was developed by a conversation said to have taken place between a prominent architect, from the United States, and a number of English architects at London. The subject of high buildings was discussed, and Hale Elevators were mentioned as being in general use in them. Said an English architect, "Ah, but your lifts, how high do you run them up?" Said the American, "To the second story, we walk the remainder of the distance." "Ah! but really, now: How far do you run them up?" "To the top of the building, of course." "And your buildings are, some of them, over a hundred and sixty feet high?" "Yes, what of it?" "A 'now-I've-got-you' smile wrinkled the face of the Englishman as he said, "Then how do you manage to dig a hole for the counter-balance one hundred and sixty feet deep?" A slight smile was indulged in by the architect when he explained, "Oh, we had such an elevator as you described in Milwaukee or somewhere, twenty years ago, but we haven't seen one since." The Hale Elevator came into general use about that time, or a little later, and in fact the architect might have gone farther into the subject and shown how it was that the elevator had made high building possible.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, FEB. 14, 1887.

To give our readers an idea of the importance of the list of properties published weekly in the REAL ESTATE RECORD, against which the Board of Health has claims for the removal of nuisances, it needs only the statement that on the 7th instant, the last lien day, there was but one property liened. The REAL ESTATE RECORD will continue to present a weekly list of these properties as long as it is possible to obtain it.

THE Philadelphia manufacturing interests at all appearances will do a great deal of shop and factory building this year. The plans of several manufacturers are now in the hands of architects, and they say they will be ready to let the public know in the course of a week or two what they have decided upon. The manufacturers are much more conservative than they have been in years past. Years ago, when business was less prosperous, they pushed extensions and added capacity with a confidence that at that time was surprising to those who were not thoroughly familiar with the situation. Just now, when everything is much more promising, they figure down more closely than ever; and make extensions and build new factories only when there is the least possible risk in so doing. The carpet manufacturers for instance added some 370 looms last year and completed two or three of the finest factories in the city. They will proceed more cautiously this year because the demand for carpets is not such as to call for additional capacity at the present time, excepting in the estimation of those energetic men who are always discounting the future by a year or two. The hosiery manufacturers have, during the past year added a great deal of knitting capacity, but having met with a good sale for their products the, most successful of them are considering schemes of extension. In some cases involving the erection of new factories. In other departments of the textile trade factories and mills are projected, and along with these projections come a demand for both light and heavy machinery and equipments of a hundred kinds. A leading textile manufacturer remarked last week that more improvements would be made this year than last, because the demands of the country at large are growing rapidly and the present manufacturing capacity of Philadelphia is no more than equal to the current requirements.

The machinery and tool making interests of this city will also extend their capacity, although not so much in the way of new buildings as in the way of additional mechanical facilities. The increase of mining in the northwest and southwest, and the development of manufacturing industries throughout the South are helping the machinery manufactures of this city, and whatever helps those interests, directly and indirectly, contributes to the prosperity of the building interests and real estate interests of this city. In short a prosperous country means a prosperous Philadelphia. Philadelphia is a diminutive representative of the entire country. Railroad building in Montana or Texas means work or money to the Philadelphia mechanic and business to the Philadelphia builder and real estate operator. Inactivity one or two thousand miles away is reflected in dullness at home. Our prosperity is greatest when there is a healthy activity in all channels of trade throughout the country. Philadelphia is no longer, if it ever was, an isolated city with the elements of strength and development within itself. It is simply one of the many wheels of an immense chronometer, or rather it may be compared to the hands of a watch whose movements depend upon the correct movements of the delicate machinery within. It is fortunate for us that we have so many business men and manufacturers at the head of our business interests who fully understand the relations of Philadelphia to the outside world. A business policy is now being pursued which will reflect itself in greater activity of all our great industries.

THREE drawbacks are working against West Philadelphia real estate interests. The delays in the Traction cars is one, and not as trifling a difficulty as might be imagined by persons living on this side of the Schuylkill. Another is that a good many people have gone out along the lines of railroads to live.

A third is that old houses, no matter how comfortable, are not wanted; and there are not enough new houses built to meet the demands.

Real estate agents west of the Schuylkill dwell with particular emphasis upon the fact that renters are complaining, and some of them mention numerous cases where the Traction delays lost them tenants. Many tenants will leave that portion of the city next Spring, and seek residences where they can rely upon steam and street-car accommodations. The great bulk of new houses built in West Philadelphia have been small two-story houses, which rent from $16 to $25. Comparatively few have been built to rent from $30 to $50. Builders are discouraged at the prospect. Extensive operations are projected, and it is impossible to say to what extent these drawbacks will interfere with them. Efficient street-car service with West Philadelphia would remove all elements of uncertainty. Many people will continue to purchase homes on the lines of the railroads, and the real estate interests of West Philadelphia will continue to suffer until a better method of reaching the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-seventh Wards is established.

THE executors of the estate of the late James L. Claghorn, in taking his collection of books to New York to be sold at auction, certainly expressed a very poor opinion of the literary tastes of the citizens of Mr. Claghorn's native city.

If the man or woman lives who can foretell how much better off this city will be under a Bullitt Bill Mayor it better be told now. It is better not to expect too much, as disappointments are largely controlled by the measure of expectation. There never were such grand opportunities as this city now presents for a master mind and powerful hand to rescue a long suffering people from the quagmire of bad government. He will be a veritable Moses, who will take us out of this wilderness of mud, poor gas, inefficient ash-gathers and bad legislation, and we have 'nt said a word about the Traction Company, six cent car-fares, badly paved streets, and filthy drinking water.

A MASSACHUSETTS court has awarded damages to a tenant for sickness contracted through the bad sanitary condition of the building he had rented. This is just as it should be, and if some of the landlords in this city were mulcted in heavy damages for the unsanitary condition of their buildings it would be no more than they deserve.

ARE the fire insurance companies of this country equal to the obligations imposed upon them? From a financial standpoint, yes; but from a point involving their moral obligations, positively and emphatically, no; neither will they ever become so until the whole system undergoes a radical change. The science, as it stands, is a matter of mere speculation, the ratio of risk being less than the ratio of earnings, a profit is the result, but not commensurate with what might be the result even at a much less rate of premium than that imposed upon the insured, were a proper espionage exercised by the companies through some representative body endowed with legal powers over the construction of buildings, and their management, whether occupied by owner or tenant. A foundation is now being laid for a building on Arch street, which is intended to be six or seven stories high, and the work thus far has been so poorly done during freezing weather, that, to keep the foundation from falling, it has been propped up with heavy timber. Another large building, situated in the centre of this city, and having a light wood panel ceiling in the cellar, has several gas jets burning all day, the flame of which is not over fifteen inches from the light wood work above, yet an inspector has passed upon these lights as they are at present arranged, and has declared them to be perfectly safe. If a number of fire insurance companies are not called upon to pay heavy losses for this self same building and its contents, before many months we will miss our guess by a jug full. Now we ask, in all earnestness, should not the fire insurance companies, in their own interest, so shape things as to control, in a measure at least, points involving so much of their future prosperity, leaving the matter of waste and collateral loss out of the question altogether? About one hundred and sixteen million dollars represent the fire loss in the United States and Canada during 1886. The expenditure of ten million dollars, properly utilized in a system of weekly or monthly house to house inspection would have prevented at least two-thirds of this immense loss.

FROM our recently gathered reports among the real estate agents of this city it will be noticed that there is a heavy demand for lots for building purposes all over the city. A little investigation shows that the prices are substantially what they were a year ago. Those who have lots in the built-up sections, or who have old buildings on them, show a disposition to take advantage of the present demand for property, and in this they are wise. Long periods have elapsed in the history of Philadelphia, when it has been practically impossible to sell vacant property at anything but a sacrifice. It is not likely that such long periods will re-occur. But it would be well for those who have vacant lots to sell them at once, and use the money in some other way. Then, it would be a wise thing for every property owner who has a tumble-down or old-fashioned house to sell such properties also. "There are hundreds of properties in this city which, if improved, could be made to furnish from four to ten times the floor space they now furnish. It is only necessary to figure up the floor space furnished by a few such buildings as that at Tenth and Filbert, or Seventh and Arch, or in many other places in the city to understand what advantages are to be derived from liberal expenditure of money in the tearing out of old properties and the putting in of new. New buildings have been erected in Cherry, Sansom and Filbert streets, and on some of the smaller down-town streets in the business centres which are paying remarkably well, though at the first start portions of these new buildings remained a good while without tenants. A hundred thousand dollars will put up a good deal of floor space; and another hundred thousand dollars will buy considerable property which just now is covered in many places with shanties, stables, one or two-story warehouses and shops and the like. Merchants and manufacturers in many cases are cramped for room, and wonder how they can help themselves; yet they never for a moment think that the only way out is to clear out a few old rookeries and build a six, seven or eight-story building that will answer their requirements for all time to come. There is a little too much conservatism in this matter. It is a very good answer to say that business necessities regulate these things and that buildings are built as fast as they are wanted. This is not strictly true. The people are at fault in a great measure. They are satisfied with their old surroundings, and permit business to crowd them, rather than leading business themselves. We look for a recognition of these truths in a year or two, and observers will find a marked improvement in building matters in this city before long in this direction.

THE office of High Sheriff will certainly be declared vacant. Mr. John J. Ridgeway has been named as the successor of Mr. Rowan. He is backed by the professional and business men of this city because of his peculiar fitness for the office—he is not only a capable lawyer and business man, but he has practically re-habilitated the office with sound business principles and methods which expedite the settlement of estates to the great satisfaction of those who have such business with that department. The Governor knows the sentiment of the business men, and will undoubtedly act in accordance with it.

It's a pretty how-d'y-e-do that a capable business man, such as Mr. Ridgeway has proven himself to be, and against whom there is not a shadow of opposition, must be shelved because "The Boss" fears that his appointment would make him eligible for the nomination at the expiration of the term.

We know that we voice the sentiment of the lawyers and real estate men of this city in saying that the appointment of Mr. Ridgeway is desired, and General Beaver should at least take into consideration this fact, which should outweigh the fears and preferences of Mr. McManes and other politicians.

AMERICAN manufacturers have themselves to thank for the turbulent condition of the labor element in this country. The importation of thousands of most disturbing and restless spirits of the workmen of foreign countries has brought forth just such fruit as might be justly expected, and now the whole country is agitated as to what the outcome will be. American mechanics are no longer a representative class; they have either died with age or been crowded out, and owing to the difficulty in obtaining trades their sons have been compelled to follow some other calling than that honored by their fathers.

There are factories in this city employing hundreds of mechanics who are entirely foreign, without even a solitary exception. The furniture factories are particularly noted for their exclusiveness in this respect. The native born American mechanic in many of the trades will become obsolete unless some general method is adopted under National and State supervision to educate American boys to trades.

This question involves so much of the future growth and prosperity of the country that it is high time that due consideration was given to it by both the general as well as the State Governments.

Technical schools are the only true solution to the labor problem. The American youth must have an equal chance, and if, as at present, labor trades unions continue to exclude apprentices, necessitating the supply of mechanics needed in this country to be drawn from the foreign born and foreign educated mechanics of the Old World, then we must be able to meet them with the highest type of American intelligence and character, which in former years distinguished the American mechanic.

There are hundreds of thousands of American born boys who would readily jump at such an opportunity as technical trade schools would offer, and if American mechanics were turned out as rapidly as American doctors are at present, the leaven for the loaf would be forthcoming in short order.

THE Land Transfer Reform agitation is taking practical shape in New York. It is a reform which is destined to take shape in Philadelphia sooner or later, and for that matter throughout the country. The people are determined to get away from the old style way of selling property just as they have got away from the old style way of travelling by canal-boats. The lawyers would prefer to hold on to the canal-boat system, but they will find it impossible. The question of improvements in conveyancing and the registration of titles is now advancing in a way that promises to make some practical progress this season. The majority of the Land Transfer Commission have bills before the Legislative Committees, and under attentive consideration. They have been in the hands of the profession long enough to allow of general examination, but the lawyers have to read so many dreary statutes, and so many of them which they have to read are so devoid of any attraction that few "bills" are read by the profession.

The National Master Builders' Association to hold a Convention.

On the 6th of December, 1886, the Master Builders' Association of Boston, Massachusetts, issued an invitation to the various Builders' Associations throughout the United States to assemble in the city of Boston on January 10th, 11th and 12th of this year for the purpose of discussing the feasibility of forming a national association. In response to the invitation the associations at Albany, N. Y., Baltimore, Md., Chicago, Ill., Cincinnati, O., Detroit, Mich., New York city, St. Paul, Minn., Washington, D. C., and Philadelphia, Pa., sent representatives to that conference, the outgrowth of which is that a call has been issued for a convention of the Master Builders of the United States to be held at the city of Chicago on Tuesday, March 29th. The object of the National Master Builders' Association of the United States of America, as set forth in the preamble and resolutions passed at the Boston meeting, when the National Association was organized, is the establishment of uniformity and harmony of action, upon general principles, in all matters that directly affect the interests of contractors, manual workmen, and all concerned in the erection and construction of buildings throughout the United States. The term of Master Builders' Exchange or Association has been defined by resolution to mean any association which represents, collectively, employers in the various trades that have to do with the erection and construction of buildings, provided the said association be duly and properly incorporated. In the absence of such exchange or association in any of the cities then the special building trades, if legally organized as associations, are to be asked to send delegates to the Chicago convention. Mr. John S. Stevens, of this city, is a member of the committee which has issued the call for the convention.

THERE has probably never before been such activity the world over in the preparation and manufacture of war material as at the present time. Twenty-one millions of dollars is a considerable sum of money for a nation possessing the earnest pacific intentions that American diplomacy has heretofore expressed. The Mexican war was inaugurated under a Democratic administration, and future American history may record another. The Senate bill appropriating the above enormous sum for armament is likely to meet with earnest opposition in the House, but a large amount will nevertheless be appropriated.

WESTERN and Northwestern cities are going ahead of Eastern cities, with the exception of New York, in the magnitude of their public buildings. Eastern architects and builders have something to learn from their Western brothers, not only as to the magnitude of the structures, but to the details as regards architecture. Among the large buildings projected is the Chicago auditorium, which will be 362 feet by 187 feet by 160 feet on three streets. It will be the largest building yet erected by private capital in the United States, and probably in the world. The Western architects did the work, but it was necessary to come East for experts to pass upon it. Eight thousand people can be conveniently seated. There will be two extensive balconies for chairs, which can accommodate 2,000. The stage will be 70 feet by 120 feet. It is intended to use this as a place for meetings of National Conventions. Temporary auditoriums were built for six or seven conventions held there within the past six or seven years. Buildings have been erected three times on the Exposition grounds and torn down, which cost from $17,000 to $30,000 each time; then it has built temporary structures for four large musical festivals which cost from $20,000 to $50,000 each. Upwards of $200,000 has been spent in this building up and tearing down process. Capitalists who have been figuring up in this way find that they can make a profitable investment by building the largest pleasure house in the world, and they are going to do it. It would be quite interesting to go through the other Northwestern cities, such as St. Paul and Minneapolis, and some of the smaller ones in order to see just what enterprise is doing, but we will leave that for our architectural papers to do in the future. Here in the East we are pursuing more conservative methods. Capital is slower to move. Necessities must become very urgent before money can be had to prosecute any enterprise. We might profit a good deal with a little of the surplus Western energy.

AN ordinance granting to each property owner or occupant thereof exclusive and separate control over that part of the public highway in front of his premises and extending to the centre of the said highway, the same to be devoted to raising beets, carrots, onions and other garden truck, is now in order. Better this than the present disgraceful condition of the public streets. It is not at all strange that corporations ride rough shod over the rights of our citizens, for when a city government cannot exact full measure from contractors what right have the citizens to expect protection in any sense?

THE Philadelphia Record says:—"There would be as much danger in putting the rates of liquor license too high as there would be in putting them too low. A system that would put licenses excessively high would only be Prohibition in another form. Its results in large cities and towns would be to substitute for license the free traffic in liquor." Will the Record define what it means by "excessively high"? A traffic that costs the citizens of "large cities and towns" so much hard money to provide for the paupers and criminals it produces yearly, not speaking of the misery it entails on helpless women and children, should at least be taxed, in the aggregate, a sum sufficient to meet the annual expenses of the eleemosynary and criminal institutions of the respective counties of the State.

REAL ESTATE men are waiting with considerable interest to see what will be done with the legislative bill giving mechanics' and material liens priority to mortgages upon property. The proposition is so monstrously absurd that only an absurd legislature could possibly pass it. Workingmen and those whose material has been used in the construction of a building, are justly entitled to the greatest possible protection, but it must be based upon some better method than the law suggested, which, in its practical application, will work infinite wrong and injury against innocent holders of mortgages, who may in no way be connected with the transaction involving either the work or the material, and yet who are made to suffer loss in money innocently pledged on mortgage after careful search and certificate from the official records that the mortgage is the first lien.

Such a law would wipe out real estate as a security par excellence, and would open the doors for a hundred-fold more rascality than was ever thought of under the present system.

Where a man has faithfully loaned a dollar of money for a dollar of security, by placing an investment of money on mortgage, which at the time of the loan is pronounced by the law safe in its turn, why should he wake up some day to find that the Legislature of this great commonwealth has said that he has lost his priority, and that another later than he shall step ahead?

IF WORKMEN knew, or rather if they fully appreciated, just how much depends upon them they would enter upon strikes more carefully. Whether strikes come or not, however, a vast amount of work will be done this season. If builders could feel sure that there would be no strikes, more work would be done, possibly an increase of twenty-five per cent. would be undertaken and pushed through. We have been watching the course of events closely in order to draw conclusions as soon as possible. Here is what a prominent Chicago builder said a few days ago after learning of the contemplated action by the building trades:

"The erection of office-buildings has been overdone, and the same is true with reference to residence property of all kinds. I think there is a slight disposition to go a little slower on these two classes of work for the present, in order to let the city have an opportunity to catch up. It is true the population is rapidly increasing, but in the classes of buildings mentioned we are two or three years ahead of the demand. In the business district there are very few vacant lots upon which to erect business blocks, and those who own the vacant property seem to be disinclined to improve it for the present. There are numbers of good blocks which were erected ten years ago which are not what we would now call either convenient or fire-proof. They are substantial structures, and handsome enough in appearance, but they are old style, and must soon give place to the modern idea of building in Chicago. There is talk of tearing down several of the structures and rebuilding greater modern edifices in their place; but whether it will be done this year has not yet been determined. Much of the building this season will be modest business blocks in the smaller centres of trade scattered over the city and on the outskirts. But it is almost too early to make an intelligent prediction in regard to the work of the year."

If this is read between the lines, as it is intended it should be, it simply means that if labor is no higher this year than last more building would be done, and that we know from other reliable sources. In New York city so far a great deal of new work has been projected, but it belongs to the necessary class of work, not to the class which enterprise, pure and simple, maps out. In Boston the matter of wages has been settled, and no trouble is apprehended. Builders there are paying by the hour, and complain at having to pay so much. At home there are some signs of trouble, though it may not be serious. At Pittsburg peace prevails among the building workmen, but the usual complications and rumors of strikes are heard of in some outside industries. The great industrial activity is having a more or less unsettling effect among workmen everywhere, who argue that with advancing prices there should be an advance in wages. Employers are, however, much more able to deal with labor questions this year than last, and workmen are more conservative under this organization of employing interests. One strong incentive to strikes for years has been that employers were unorganized, and never presented a united front to labor's demands. Times have changed, and the two great parties are now united, more or less, compactly. This means a minimum of striking, an equalization of wages between different cities, and a general evening up of diverse conditions. In only two or three points are there apprehensions of eight-hour agitations. Yet it is too soon to say there will be none.

A CONVENTION of the National Master Builders' Association of the United States of America, is to be held at Chicago on March 29th next.

A FEW years ago railroad builders were terrified at the prognostications then made that in certain sections of the country water freights would greatly increase and railroad shipments decline. For awhile the prediction looked reasonable. The Erie Canal proves otherwise. Throughout the Northwest, where water transportation is abundant, the greatest railroad building prevails, and at this time there is from ten to twelve thousand miles of road projected, which will be constructed during the next two years. To take an illustration; water shipments of lumber over the Saginaw river have declined in the ratio of 77:60, while railroad shipments have increased from 27:176. One reason for this has been that the cost of railroad building and the cost of engines and cars has declined. In short, railroad building is cheap now as compared to ten or fifteen years ago. The railroad rates have declined from 4:1. Meanwhile traffic has been increasing, and the railroad owners are making more money now than when rates were higher. Old time Pennsylvanians mourn the selling and destruction of the Pennsylvania Canal. It is a question, if it were in operation to-day, whether it would pay expenses. Canals and mills will do where railroads cannot be built, but where railroads cannot be built the eagle cannot fly.

WITHIN the past two or three years Spring Garden street, or rather a few blocks of it, have been transformed into an attractive avenue. Stone fronts, beautiful in design, have taken the place of brick fronts, and property has improved in value many fold over the cost of the improvements. Mean little iron fences have been taken down, bay windows have been added, and architecture in stonework has transformed what was before a dull unattractive front into a beautiful front. The fever of improvement is extending and ought to. Much of this work is due to the enterprise of one or two bright young architects in this city.

THAT the rigid enforcement of sanitary measures has much to do with the prolongation of human life, there can be no question. Much sickness has already been prevented, both in this country and in Europe, through improved sanitation. Great credit is due to the careful thinking men who have made a special study of this very important element of human existence. Much has yet to be learned, but what is even more essential than subsequent experience is the thorough dissemination of what is already known. The wide awake architect like the wide awake doctor keeps up with the times to the advantage and safety of all who employ him.

GERMANY will shortly be supplied with telephonic service which will extend throughout the empire. The Germans seem to be in some respects a more progressive people than Americans. Of course, their area is not so extensive as ours, but we might at least take the hint the German people have given us, and discuss the practicability of a State telephonic system, although the parental notion of State ownership is not very popular here. Something ought to be done to increase the telephonic service and reduce it in price. The present companies are aiming to see how little service they can furnish and how much they can rob the public for it.

THE New York lawyers are stirring up the question as to whether it would not be the best thing they could do to form a Lawyers' Title Insurance Company. It is proposed to form a company with $500,000 or possibly $1,000,000 capital, which all real estate lawyers in good standing may enter. This course has been rendered necessary by the progress of the title guarantee companies of that city. For a small fee, all titles examined and approved will be insured by a policy bearing the seal of the organization and guaranteed by its ample capital. As all capable realty lawyers will belong to the association, each property owner can have his title examined by his own lawyer, and at the same time secure the guarantee of the company. In short, it is intended to give the lawyers a fresh hold on the business they are now losing. A very able committee of real estate lawyers is working the thing up. The Title Companies now doing business charge $50 and disbursements, with an additional $5 on each $1000 in excess of $5000, whereas, $10 will be sufficient to guarantee the examination of the title of a property worth $10,000 under the Lawyers' Company. Why don't our Philadelphia lawyers obey the scriptural injunction and go and do likewise?

MR. JOSEPH G. PATTERSON, the newly appointed Health Officer, is no stranger to the duties of his new position. He has been a member of the Health Board for a number of years, and is thoroughly acquainted with the details of the workings of this very important branch of the Municipal Government. Major Veale retires with credit to himself and the department over which he has had control.

PHILADELPHIA and New York syndicates are looking after opportunities for heavy investments in the South. The profits there are certainly attractive enough. During the next three months operations will be begun on a large scale in Tennessee and Alabama. Some financiers are apprehensive that this heavy absorption of capital in railroad and other building will have an unfavorable effect upon the money market. Should any stringency occur it would certainly check enterprise for awhile, but the necessities of the country are such that building operations will continue with but little fluctuation. The great body of the people are housing themselves better than ever before, and this is the meaning of the present industrial revival.

If the building interests will bear comparison to the iron and steel interests we will certainly have a very active year. Rail production this year will nearly double last year's production. The importations of foreign iron and steel material will be at least fifty per cent. greater. If these figures mean anything they mean that builders will be busier, more money will be invested and more real estate will be purchased for building purposes. Indications are not wanting of this tendency. It is apparent in large cities and towns, and in fact in villages, throughout the manufacturing sections. The higher rate of wages now prevailing is stimulating mechanics and wage earners of all kinds to purchase and build little properties of their own, and this is why we will have a busy year.

Properties Subject to Liens.

List of properties subject to lien for removal of nuisances by the Board of Health, which will be returned to the City Solicitor at the expiration of four months from date.

Hereafter we will publish a list weekly. Next lien day Feb. 21st, 1887.

Building Facilitated by Natural Gas.

From The Pittsburg Post.

"The quickest work in the building line in this city for some time was done on the new spring and axle factory of Singer & Ninick, on the South Side. During the latter part of December the firm's old building was destroyed by fire. With a large number of orders awaiting immediate attention it was necessary for the firm to rebuild at once. Accordingly they had plans drawn and work began at once. The building was to be a two-story brick, 75x105 feet. The contract was let and work started on January 1, and on the 29th of the same month the building was turned over to the owners by the contractors. The weather was unusually cold, the thermometer at times running down to nearly zero. With the aid of natural gas the bricklayers were enabled to work on the coldest days. The mortar was heated in pans. Gas jets were run along the scaffolds by which the bricks were heated and the work was successfully done without the mortar freezing. The architect says that the job is as good as if it had been done in warm weather.

Nearly all the city architects report the prospects good for a large amount of building being done during the year. Several of them are working on plans for various kinds of buildings to be erected as soon as the weather permits."

FROM the report of the Commissioner of Patents it is very evident that the inventive genius of this country has by no means deteriorated. The total number of applications filed during the last calendar year requiring investigation and action was 41,442, and the number of patents issued was 23,915. The total receipts were $1,154,551, and the expenditures $992,503, leaving a balance of receipts over expenditures of $162,048. The amount to the credit of the Patent fund in the Treasury was $3,107,453.

Labor Matters.

—There are rumors East, West, North and South, of strikes and combinations. Last Saturday we were told the Anthracite miners were on the eve of striking. All last week the leaders examined the books of the Western Pennsylvania operators, to see if a strike should be blocked. There is trouble throughout the block coal regions of the Western cities. This is only a passing storm cloud.

—The Journeymen Plumbers' Association voted 186 out of 218 members to demand $3.50 per day for 9 hours, with 8 hours on Saturday. The building trades council appointed a committee to watch the interest of the council in a bill now before the Legislature, giving mechanics' liens, judgments, mortgages, etc., on real estate. A committee was appointed to wait on the Pennsylvania Railroad people, in order to not lose time. At present those who ride on cars, are obliged to stand at the usual time.

Arnold vs Pennsylvania R. R. Co.

The Supreme Court holds that questions of negligence, and whether plaintiff was a trespasser or not in suit brought for damages for ejection from railroad train, and subsequent injury must go to a jury. The case was Arnold vs. Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Arnold attempted to ride on an expired ticket, and offered to pay cash, which the conductor would not accept. Case was tried in Common Pleas No. 1, where Arnold was non-suited, which decision was reversed by the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court Declares Act of June 27th, 1883, Null and Void.

The Act of Assembly making a writ of scilicet fa on a municipal lien in cities of the first class good for five years has been declared unconstitutional and void by the Supreme Court, the Court holding that the Act (June 27th, 1883,) violates the constitutional provision that the General Assembly shall not pass any local or special law authorizing the creation, extension or impairing of liens. This decision affirms that of Common Pleas No. 4, in a case involving municipal claims against Edward Repper, the Haddington M. E. Church and others.

A Clumsy Scheme to Evade the Law Against Usury.

Uhlinger sued Hartman in Common Pleas No. 1 on a mortgage for $10,000, but the latter proved that the mortgage was given to secure a debt of $10,000 for machinery. Hartman, under agreement, was to pay Uhlinger five cents for every barrel of flour he manufactured, but the royalty must amount to $1,500 per year until the debt was paid. The defendant in his defence alleged that $900 which he had paid the plaintiff was really usurious interest. Uhlinger's caveat was set aside. The Supreme Court holding that the mortgage was a clumsy scheme to evade the law against usury.

BUILDERS' ITEMS.

Building and Real Estate Notes.

A LOT on Morris street, 175 by 163 feet brought $10,541.

EIGHTEEN building lots at 45th and Wyalusing ave., sold for $12,600.

EDWARD WRESTLING, of this city, has purchased several building lots in Ridley.

LOCAL capitalists will erect twenty dwellings in Norristown during the Spring.

HENRY C. LEA will erect three large stores this spring on Arch street, east of Fifth.

THERE will be eighty sleeping rooms in the hotel to be built at 205 Walnut street.

J. A. McCAUGHEY, Long Lane, has a big demand for small houses and none to rent.

STACY REEVES & SON, builders, report the outlook for 1887 as much better than that of 1886.

S. H. AUSTIN, JR., will erect an extensive apartment house at Thirteenth and Clover streets.

HON. R. J. C. WALKER, of Williamsport, will build a handsome block in that city early this Spring.

ELLWOOD BECKER, northwest corner Fourth and Pine streets, reports things as being somewhat quiet.

WILLIAM L. P. SHIELDS, of this city, has purchased 5 acres of land in Upper Providence, Delaware County.

JOHN ADAMS, of this city, has purchased a handsome property at Clifton Heights, which is to be greatly improved.

THE Jacob Jarden Brick Yard property, has been divided up into 260 building lots a large number of which are sold.

MRS. THOMAS A. SCOTT is building a fine new residence at Nineteenth street and Rittenhouse Square. It will contain fifty-two rooms.

LOUIS PLACH, of Altoona, intends erecting a handsome opera house in that place, which will have a seating capacity for 2,500 persons.

NORRISTOWN, PA., anticipates a building boom this Spring. Many new buildings were erected there last year by operators from this city.

THE Albion Hotel at Pen Argyle, Northampton county, which was recently destroyed by fire is to be rebuilt upon a more extended scale.

C. F. HALL, 3944 Lancaster ave., is negotiating some sales which he expects soon to consummate. He has considerable inquiry for vacant lots.

GEO. W. THOMPSON, 807 Union street has made some few sales since the first of the month, and reports small houses in active demand for investment.

THE Market street side of John Wanamaker's Grand Depot is to be increased to six stories, to accommodate increasing requirements of his wholesale business.

MR. JOSEPH SHOEMAKER, has 27 dwellings and 16 stores in course of construction at Long Lane and Wharton streets which he is pushing to completion right lively.

T. J. CARROLL, Eighth street and Passyunk avenue, has a good demand for vacant lots, and prices are away up; has fewer empty houses than he has had for three years.

S. E. GARDINER, corner of Seventh street and Washington avenue, has a large demand for small houses, for investment. Vacant lots are scarce and being held very high.

THE firm of Baldwin & Massey has been dissolved by mutual consent. Mr. Massey retiring from the business. The real estate business will be carried on by E. E. Baldwin.

THE car manufacturing firm of John G. Brill & Co., now at Thirty-first and Chestnut streets, will incorporate their establishment into a stock company, and will erect extensive works in Bridesburg, Pa.

SEVERAL farms have recently been purchased in the out-skirts for building purposes. Eighty-four acres were bought in the 27th ward recently, at a cost of $27,400 by the Improvement Mutual Land Association.

The Girard Estate will erect a six-story building on the Eleventh and Market street property running from Hood & Bonbright's building to Twelfth street. This will be started in the spring. The plans are not completed.

J. WALKER & SON, 1304 South Eighteenth street, reports inquiries as coming in lively for small houses. There will be a good deal of property change hands this spring, and there will be some very extensive building operations in this section of the city this season.

W. H. W. QUICK, 8 S. 40th street, has sold five properties this month all north of Market St. The general idea is that new interest will be taken in West Philadelphia real estate this season. Has several building lots for sale but prices are held so high that builders won't touch them.

E. F. BALDWIN, 3911 Lancaster ave., has recently sold four small houses of which there is a great scarcity, both for investment and rentals. Money is plenty for investment and is freely offered at 4 and 4½ per cent. Collections are good and the constables are complaining of want of work.

EDWIN H. FITLER has sold to Eldridge & Stewart, builders, a lot of ground. The lot fronts on Huntington, 228 ft. 2½ inches, and has a depth, both on Eighth and Ninth streets, of 100 ft. On this they will erect this spring eighteen houses, two on Ninth street, five on Eighth street, and eleven on Huntington street.

MR. CHARLES BROWN, of the Adams' Express Company, Sixteenth and Market streets, is the President of the Spring Mill Mutual Land Improvement Company. The company has purchased the Jones farm at the above place, and has divided it into 250 building sites, the company will begin to build early this Spring.

F. H. McCANN, Lancaster ave., reports that real estate is moving somewhat more lively than it has been. He has sold some small properties since the first of the month. Small houses are in excellent demand. He anticipates a right good Spring. What idle houses he had are filling up, and but one tenant has moved in a month.

WM. B. WEIR, 38 S. 40th street, says that owing to the uncertainty of the cable cars, people will not come to this part of the city either to buy property or to reside. If there was a fair probability of rapid transit West Philadelphia property would advance from 20 to 30 per cent. This refers either to elevated or underground travel.

JOHN W. HART, 2030 Frankford road, has purchased the bank building ground of the Ninth National Bank, south-west corner of Frankford road and Norris street, for $13,600, and will expend $12,000 in improving it. The present building is 36 feet on Frankford road and 36 feet on Norris street. It is to be extended 25 feet and changed from a two-story to a four-story structure. A. T. Richards is the contractor.

MR. F. D. LALANNE, of this city, will build several fine houses on a twenty-seven acre plot which he has purchased at Radnor.

FRIEL & SIMPSON, Nineteenth and Wharton streets, have had several large offers for real estate, amounting from $15,000 to $40,000, during the past few days. As soon as the weather permits they will commence building thirty houses at Jumbo Park. They closed a contract Wednesday for building a three-story store, for a bakery, for $5,000. There is an unusual demand for small houses for investment, for this season of the year.

SWARTHMORE has its local improvement company, and the influence of the organization is being felt in many ways. The walks have been improved and the village is to be lighted with street lamps, besides which a friendly feeling has been cultivated among the neighbours, and concerted action started, tending to the general improvement of the place. The officers of the company are, President Dr. Foster Flagg; Vice-President, James Gaskill; Secretary, William J. Hall; Treasurer, Richard T. Ogden.

J. P. GREEN, 112 S. 40th street. Things are rather quiet at this season of the year. The real estate men in West Philadelphia have several drawbacks to contend with. It has become fashionable for people to go to the Broad St. Station, and go to their homes along the line. Another thing is that people want new houses with all the modern improvements, and no matter how good an old house may be, they will in almost every case prefer to go a few miles further out to procure a new one. Another great obstacle to the advancement of West Philadelphia, is the uncertainty of the traction cars. The most prosperous part of the 27th ward is about 48th and 49th streets, from Baltimore to Woodland avenues.

W. S. KIMBALL, 41st and Chestnut streets, will erect, as soon as the weather permits, a row of ten houses with towers at each end and two towers in the centre. Each will contain twelve rooms, have front porches, open fire grates and all modern improvements. They will set back from the line of the street about twenty feet, which practically makes the street 120 feet wide. These houses will be situated on the west side of 42d street, between Spruce and Pine streets. The operation on 42d street, below Pine, is closed, all but one house having been sold. He has also built 43 houses on 42d street below Chestnut avenue, known as Desert Square; one half of these have already been taken. There is a very strong movement being made for rapid transit by West Philadelphia Real Estate men, and there is a probability of getting it. The plan which seems to be meeting with the most favor is the subway, and a meeting in support of this plan was held last Thursday night. The projectors seem to be very much in earnest, and there are ample means at the back of them.

Architect Notes.

CHAS. BURNS, JR., 717 Walnut street, has on the boards the plans for a chapel and parish buildings of the Memorial Church of the Advocate. The property is on the North-west corner of Diamond and Eighteenth streets, bounded on the east by Eighteenth street, on the west by Gratz street, and south by Diamond street. The lot is 173x222. On the north end of it will be built this Spring a chapel and parish building, the chapel will be 48 feet on Eighteenth street and 90 feet to the westward, and will hold, when completed, 450 people. It will consist of nave and chancel, organ and vestry rooms, also a choir room. The entrance will be at the west end of the chapel through a cloister, leaving the chancel on Eighteenth street. The cloister will be 7 feet inside measurement, running the whole length of the western end. It will also have a covered way to the parish building. The chapel will be built of light gray stone, with darker stone for trimming in the Gothic style of architecture. It will have an open timber roof covered with slate, three main trusses on the inside spanning the whole width, are to be of hammer-beam construction, the hammer beams resting on top of plates 21 feet from the floor line, thus making the ridge of the roof 56 feet from the floor. It will have an apsidal chancel and belfry on the east end of the nave. The approach on Eighteenth street will be through a stone archway. The windows are 8 feet up from the floor line and the walls up to the sills are to be lined with dressed stone capped with a moulding of cut stone. The laves of the windows and the spaces between the windows will be plastered. The chancel arch will be of cut moulded stone up to within 4 or 5 feet of the spring line, above that a carved corbel will carry a small polished column, which in its turn will receive the skewback of the arch, the crown of which is 36 feet above the floor. The parish building will be 53x82, built of the same stone as the chapel, on the first floor there will be seven rooms for Sunday school purposes, on the second floor a lecture room with elevated platform and gallery with a seating capacity of 600. The third floor will contain janitors apartments and store rooms. The Sunday school will easily accommodate 650 and the rooms are so arranged that they can be thrown into one room by balanced sashes which compose the partitions. The janitors apartments are on the third floor in the roof, the partitions of the rooms are made on the roof trusses and the floor is suspended on the trusses so as to avoid obstruction by supporting columns in the lecture room. The buildings will be supplied with the latest sanitary improvements and will be heated with steam. The space for the church is very much the largest portion of the ground. It is anticipated that this church, when completed, will be capable of seating 1000 people. It will have a large chancel vestry and organ rooms and will be placed at a slight angle to the street. The feature of the church will be its massive and imposing tower which will be a 110 feet high and 25 feet square with turrets, it will be right on the corner of Eighteenth and Diamond streets, standing just inside the paving line, square with the street.

 Where there are no figures to indicate the amount of the judgment, the damages have not been assessed.

The first name in each line is that of the judgment debtor.

An asterisk (*) denotes judgment confessed or bond and warrant conditioned.

The figures 1 2 3 and 4 immediately after the name of the plaintiff indicates the number of the Court. The letters D. M. J. and S. after the number of the Court indicate the Term as D, December Term, M., March Term, as J, June term and S., September Term.

An examination as to the nature of judgments and suits will be made for subscribers without extra charge on application

CONVEYANCES.

E A D: why we were obliged to stamp every sheet of our Guaranteed Brands—every box of which we are importing under a positive guarantee.

W I N G: to the many cases in which our brands had been estimated upon and inferior brands substituted, we were induced to bring out the sheets stamped, not only with the Name of the Brand, but also the Thickness.

U R action in Stamping and Guaranteeing Roofing Plates exhausts our own means of insuring the use of first-class materials when required. It now, therefore, rests with the Architect and Builder to protect the owner and Roofer by seeing that the sheets on the roof are Stamped.

I R S T class Roofing Plates if properly laid upon the roof, should last thirty to forty years; while the cost of same would be but little more than that of the inferior tin which has caused so much trouble and expense to all concerned.

S H E E T S that are Guaranteed and Stamped are the only protection to the Architect, Owner and Roofer against dishonest competition and the use of inferior material. It will cost nothing, however, to obtain full facts and samples, which can be had by addressing

VOL. II.—NO. 7.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1887.

PRICE 15 CENTS

News Items.

—The Girard sheds have to come down at once.

—And now we have another strike among the coopers at New York.

—The sum of $10,000 is to be expended in repairing the East Park drive.

—City Councils have appropriated $25,000 for the location of 155 electric lights.

—The brickmakers and the brick manufacturers will meet some day this week and fix up wages for the coming season. All of the yards will be run to their fullest capacity.

—Philadelphia is accommodated with over 6000 saloons, about 600 churches, and has about 140,000 voters who do not know how to get rid of the liquor incubus.

—The New Haven Connecticut carpenters have informed their employers that they will not work longer than 9 hours after May 1st, and that they will not work with non-union men, nor for less than $3 per day.

—In India 25,000 convicts were released to commemorate the jubilee of Queen Victoria. There are two or three million Irishmen just across from George's Channel who are much worse off from point of fact and condition than these 25,000 comfortably housed and fed East Indians. A little charity in that direction would be appreciated.

—The Master Builders Association of Philadelphia refuses to grant the demand of their workmen for $3.50 per day of nine hours, and eight hours on Saturday. The employers will individually confer with their workmen, and establish such wages, and hours of labor, as can be agreed upon. Four hundred workmen are employed.

—The garment cutters of Philadelphia propose to enjoy a mid-winter holiday. If the motive behind a good many strikes could be arrived at, it would be found that it was an instinct of human nature, which demanded a little leisure from hard and constant work. Thousands of men, sometimes strike, because they are tired and need a rest, and the question of hours of labor is simply taken advantage of, or made an excuse of, and it looks like it in this case.

—The carpenters' and joiners' association in this city are endeavoring to form a more perfect union, as our forefathers did over a hundred years ago. It is intended to take in all the carpenters of Philadelphia, Germantown and Camden. Until within a recent period only twenty-five per cent. of the number were in the organization, the other three-fourths were satisfied with the wages and remained outside. The building Trades' Council met on Thursday night, and received reports from all the trades represented. Matters of trade interest were discussed. The Carpenter's Protective Association will join this Council.

—It may be all very nice for manufacturers to meet in a convention and form pools and syndicates, of one kind or another, and advance prices on consumers 5, 10 and 20 per cent; and feel that they are that much the richer in consequence. It looks like a short way of making money and improving business; there are inducements of an urgent character in some industries to pursue this course, as labor and material have been advanced. There is an excuse for higher prices in some industries but some of the advances which are being made, are without sufficient reason; the iron manufacturers in Pittsburgh were wise enough to decline to advance prices on iron last week, but in other industries advances have been decreed; a conservative course is the wisest. Prices have reached a dangerous point, and further advances will involve numerous undesirable consequences. One of these is the temptation which higher prices will afford to stimulate undue production. But nothing that can be said is likely to influence the manufacturing interests in their struggle for trade and better prices; if wisdom in this matter is lost sight of, it will only be a question of time when prices will go tumbling down.

Stone quarried in summer will lose its quarry water by evaporation, and stand better in a wall. When carbonate of lime is the cement, a quantity of it is held in solution by the quarry water. As the stone looses the quarry water by evaporation, or dries out, the carbonate of lime, which is held in solution, is deposited in the stone as additional cementing material, and, therefore, makes it more compact. Freestone containing oxides of iron as a cement, sometimes hardens by exposure to weather; this is supposed to be caused by the oxides of iron passing to a higher degree of oxidation by absorbing oxygen from the atmosphere. When silica is the cement, and held in solution by quarry water, and once crystallized it then becomes insoluble, and the stone will not be softened by exposure. This is the reason of the durability of a silicious sandstone.

The disintegrating ingredients of a stone should be the first consideration. The principal agents of destruction to a granite are epidote kaolin, calcite, pyrite and iron oxides. They are all readily detected by the microscope, and if existing in quantities by the eye. Epidote gives it a green color; its crystals are always green.

Charters Granted.

Charters were issued at the State Department last Wednesday to the following corporations; Fayette Brewing Company, Philadelphia; capital stock, $300,000. The Directors are Frederick A. Poth, Louis C. Knecht and Frederick J. Poth, Edward A. Schmidt is the Treasurer. The York Level Ferry Company, of York county; capital stock, $500. The Westinghouse Electric Light Company, of Pittsburgh, has filed notice of an increase of capital stock from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000 stock to the value of $1,000,000 being for sale at par, and $3,000,000 being issued to George Westinghouse, Jr., in payment for inventions. The J. M. Schomaker Coke Company, of Allegheny county, has also filed notice of an increase of capital stock from $500,000 to $1,300,000 additional stock being issued for real and personal estate.

"Section 1.—The dog is hereby declared to be a domestic animal.

"Section 2.—This act shall go into force when approved."

The above act was regularly put upon its passage in the Maine Legislature last Thursday.

It is no joke. It is the affirmation of a fact which has been questioned by the courts of that State.

The thief of a dog was arrested, and it was questioned by the court as to whether he could be held for larceny.

The court seems to have been in doubt as to whether a dog is in the law term "Domus," that is, domestic or tame, which gives absolute property, or "Fera Nature," which is of a wild nature, and to which man has only a qualified or limited property. Black, xxv, § 390, etc.

How in this late day of centralized civilization any court of the United States can doubt the right to ownership of a dog is remarkable. Such, however, has been the case in Maine.

This question will be shortly and clearly settled in that State, as it should be.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, FEB. 21, 1887.

BUSINESS men and peaceable citizens of all grades are anxiously inquiring, "Are we to have another season of labor troubles?" It is believed that a careful analysis of the signs of the times, which are much more readable than the meteorological elements, will afford a decided answer in the negative! The elements relied upon for this prediction are these: 1st. There is really very little cause for strikes, now, in this country, on account of inadequate wages. Until some philosophical adjustment of industrial relations shall give to the producer an equitable proportion of the wealth which he creates, the laborer must be contented with the most comfortable subsistence, and the highest wages, found anywhere on the globe! To nine tenths of our loudest mouthed strikers, one half their present despised wages would have been a God-send to them in the old country!

With all their improved conditions of living, with their miraculous political privileges, and with the very best free education for their children, nothing but the sophistry of political jugglers could prevent our laboring classes from singing psalms of thanksgiving and praise! And nothing but pure diabolism could array them every few months against the peace and welfare of society! 2nd. The Government and the people are getting more and more out of patience with the senseless and pernicious methods of these incipient riots called "Strikes," a name whose only propriety is in the fact that they strike at every real interest of society, and at none more cruelly than the interests of the "Striker" himself. 3rd. The more intelligent of our wage-workers are beginning to see that such an expensive and unnatural method tends on the whole to depress rather than elevate wages, as alcoholic stimulants tend to diminish the enduring and producing power of the vital system. 4th. The commercial world will not submit longer to the frequent interruptions and needless damages of a lawless spirit, wholly belligerent and reckless in its nature! 5th. Sociologists and Philanthropists are becoming alarmed at the extent to which labor "Organizations" (?) and excitements are diverting young mechanics from their most important work of personal self-improvement and self-culture. These signs inspire the prediction that 1887 is to witness no serious suicidal labor troubles! 6th. Employers now, all over the country, are effecting a closer organization, which backed by wealth, and barricaded by a strong public opinion, nothing but the silliest fool hardness would continue to attack, in the mere wantonness of War! It wholly ignores the spirit and policy of wise diplomacy which is the world's real ruler!

It might be as well if a little more architectural effect would be given to the new building to be erected by the Girard Trust on the block which adjoins the present building at Eleventh and Market. The building already erected is Puritanic in its simplicity. There is no need for such rigidity, if the term is admissible. It might be as well to put a little money into good looks. The building however, recognizes Girard's characteristics, millions for business but nothing for show.

PHILADELPHIA is, in many respects, fully abreast with larger cities in municipal laws, improvements and organizations. And in some important respects it is years in advance of them. We have, in good working order, a Master Builders' Association, and its beneficial influence is felt in every branch of the business of building. New York is now moving in the same direction. At a general meeting of employers, held in that city a couple of weeks since, a succinct report was considered and adopted, looking to the union of "employers in the building trades, architects, property-owners, and all interested in building," for "the defense of law, order and individual liberty, and their common interests." The report set forth that such an organization was necessary, as well to promote the interests of employees, as to protect those of employers. It makes these points: That the great majority of workmen are industrious, peaceful, well-disposed and averse to strikes; that they have been influenced into unions, placed under authority and rendered powerless to free themselves; that the great power of unions is one relentless rule; that every workman must join the union, or be deprived of the right to earn a living; that no union man is permitted to work with non-union men; that this rule has resulted in numberless strikes without just cause, deprived employers of the proper control of their business, destroyed confidence, delayed work, and caused serious loss to both parties; that the sole remedy for these evils is to uphold the right of every individual to control his own business. There is every prospect of a successful and strong organization of the classes above named.

Some one may ask, in a whisper, "Where are the architects?" We shall see. When ancient Syracuse needed his aid the cry went not forth in vain, "Where is Archimedes?" He came at the call and saved the city. If the architects are not here they will come from other cities.

The finest openings for profitable investment lie on the surface all over town. Tumble-down fire traps waiting for modern common sense eyes to see them; vacant lots and vacant squares waiting for the architect. Unopened streets and unsurveyed suburbs waiting for the architect's influence on capital and on the city authorities.

It is true that some of the proprietors are dead and the key to their land titles buried with them. But it is equally true that some who have the reputation of being still above ground are even dead than they; for it will be the longer for their tardiness before their keys can be exhumed.

THOSE who are coming to recognize architecture as a profession are beginning to inquire why its members should not be licensed. If in legal and medical practice it is found necessary to protect the public against incompetency, why should not a license be required of those who direct the expenditure of so many millions of money upon public and private buildings; who are to shape monstrosities to distort popular tastes, or erect adornments that shall help to educate many rising generations; and who are to determine the question of health or disease for so many thousands outside the hygiene of medical practice. There is a strong current of public opinion in favor of it, and it would be difficult to conceive of a single objection to it. The principle is so well established that those who solicit from the public the privilege of performing important functions should be provided with the proper guarantees of faithfulness and competency.

THE outcome of a good many strikes during the past few weeks is calculated to dampen the ardor of Labor organizations. The latest instance at home is that of Hoopes and Townsend, the bolt manufacturers on Buttonwood street, who reported, last Thursday that they had 400 hands employed. All the old hands are standing on the pavement. There is at this season of the year a larger number than usual of idle men. Hundreds are in the habit of congregating in cities during the winter months, waiting the opportunity of picking up a few days or a few months' work. The workmen could not have chosen a worse time than the present to strike. If they have no wise leaders they ought to have; and the leaders who ever they are, wise, or unwise, ought to be deposed. There used to be a saying among the Indians that when an Indian doctor failed to cure a patient, and the patient died, the doctor was killed. It used to be said also, that when a Carthaginian general lost a battle he was beheaded. It might be well if some similarly strict discipline were enforced among the labor organizations with their leaders. It is safe to say that there would be fewer strikes and fewer failures. It is very easy for a committee composed of a tinker, a tailor and a candlestick-maker to order out a body of men whose trade they know nothing of. This is the defective point of a great deal of trades-union management. Employers will stubbornly fight against recognizing what they term "outsiders" interfering with their affairs. It would be a good thing if the workmen could have better advisers than they seem to have. The coal handlers' strike at New York for instance, was taken in hand at a time when there were thousands of hungry men waiting, and when consumers of coal could best afford to wait. The coal miners of this State have been in the habit of striking just when their employers wanted them to, and it sometimes looks as though these strikes were instigated by employers themselves. Labor organizations have much to learn yet, and the first thing is, that mere numbers, avail nothing, in fact, the greater the number engaged in the strike, the more probability there is of its early termination.

PHILADELPHIA, needs more office buildings. Nine-tenths of our offices are in the dwellings erected from twenty to one hundred years ago by the well-to-do citizens of those days. Kitchen, garrets, dining-rooms, parlor, bed-rooms, servants' quarters are all utilized to meet the urgent demands of the business men of to-day. Boston, New York and Chicago are climbing ahead of us, but we stand still, and are content to put up with the old fashioned way of keeping shop, and keeping office. The few fine buildings which have been erected, are only sufficient to show our people how far behind they are, to-day in the way of office building. Double and triple office floor space could be supplied, and comfort and convenience could be subserved. The feeble attempts that have been made on Chestnut and Walnut streets, and one or two other streets, show that our business men are beginning to make demands for improvements, and for better offices. The projected building at Fourth and Chestnut street, will when completed show us what we ought to have. Other buildings are projected, one on Juniper and Chestnut, which will be occupied by a Bank and an Insurance Company. Parties who have money to invest and who do not exactly like the idea of building block after block, of two and three story houses in the outskirts, are considering the propriety of putting up some metropolitan office buildings near the business centers.

THE slips along the Delaware river front have already been neglected too long. City Councils should make an appropriation for the removal of the vast accumulation of mud which has become an embargo upon our shipping. The Port Wardens should at least make an effort to have something done as soon as the river is free from ice.

THE special Committee of Councils on street cleaning, collection of garbage, etc., submitted its report on Wednesday of last week, concerning the cause of the filthy condition of the streets. The Committee finds that $200,000 is not sufficient to keep 700, miles of streets clean and remove the ashes and garbage. They say that amount is much less than is paid by other cities for the same service. The Committee says that the Chief Commissioner of Highways has been unable to find any person willing to do the work according to specifications for the money paid, especially in the thickly settled portions of the city. The report winds up as follows:—

"Your committee is unable, in consequence of the meagre appropriations for the current year, to suggest any remedy other than a rigid enforcement of the terms of existing contracts. It is, however, suggested that before the appropriations are made for the year 1888 an intelligent inquiry should be made as to the cost of cleaning the streets and removing the ashes and garbage, at a price fixed which would entitle the city to good work and the contractor to a fair profit from the result of his labor instead of from its neglect. In the opinion of your committee it is desirable that before the appropriations are made for the year 1888 the advantages and disadvantages of the contract system, in contrast with work by the municipality itself should be considered, and if in the opinion of Councils the contract system is preferable, it is submitted that the advantages and disadvantages of contracts for long and short terms, should also be inquired into.

"Your committee do further recommend that in all cases parties bidding for the work in question should be required to accompany their bids with a certified check of at least 25 per cent. of the amount of their bid. Under the present system if a successful bidder repudiates his contract the city has no remedy other than a suit upon his bond. If bids were accompanied by certified checks a sufficient sum of money would be placed at the disposal of the Chief Commissioner of Highways to enable that official to carry on the work in question pending the time which must elapse before the contract can be re-awarded."

THE great Metropolis has a grand new scheme in hand that will involve the largest structure of its kind in the world. It is to form a reservoir capable of containing 32,000,000,000 gallons of water by building a dam across the mouth of the whole Croton Valley to be known as the Quaker Bridge Dam. Its top will be 34 feet higher than the present Croton dam, and be in the middle 200 feet from top to bottom. Its cost is estimated at from seven to ten million dollars.

THE Standard Oil Company with its capital of $70,000,000 is down on its knees begging to be relieved of the extortion charged for the piping of oil. Hats ought to be passed around to raise a little money to keep the Standard Oil Company managers from going to bed hungry.

HORSE sense is the secret of business success. Without it the college graduate in business is of little account. A man may be perfectly ignorant as to the elementary principles of education and yet outstrip his learned competitor, because of his good judgment or horse-sense. The term may be an inelegant one, but horses are generally level-headed, and that's more than a great many men are. The newly elected Mayor is said to be full of it.

UNLESS Mr. Henry R. Shoch's recently elected successor as a member of Select Councils for the Twenty-ninth Ward possesses the same push and enterprise that has characterized Mr. Shoch's business and public life, the citizens of the Ward will be particularly unfortunate in his defeat. Mr. Shoch is credited with having by his councilmanic work, contributed largely to the growth and development of the Ward. His building enterprises will certainly be benefited by his absence from Councils.

THE purchase of Mrs. Baird's palatial residence, 814 North Broad street, for $45,000, by the Knights of Labor for a permanent Philadelphia headquarters expresses a degree of aesthetic culture only consistent with the ten dollar lunch recently indulged in by two of the walking overseers of the order. We are gratified that Mrs. Baird was so extremely fortunate as to find so good a customer for her property, but to the thinking workman the elegant and ambitious tastes of his leaders must present a singular contrast to his own shriveled purse and scanty larder.

THE important subject of fire escapes is the basis of several new patents. S. A. Anderson, a pully and rope supporting a car, the fixed end attached to a hook, and a lever friction cam to control the descent. G. Larkins the arms of a lazy-tong frame bent and pivoted to blocks sliding in grooves; shaft, ropes and pulleys connected with a ladder. Also a method of laying hollow, concrete, fire-proof floors, with ribs between the beams, and plates over the ribs, upon which the concrete arch is formed, the plates being afterward removed. Such fire preventives make the best fire escapes.

WHILE New York is giving us, up north of the Harlem, impressive hints as to the improvement of suburban property, why can't we take it for granted that we are going to be a city of enormous size and manufacturing capacity, having all needed underground and elevated railroads for getting expeditiously in and out of town. With these how long would it be before not only the vacant lots and squares would be improved, but the large suburban corn-fields and potato patches would be in demand for squares of tenements, grand residences, factories, public drives, mills, boulevards and parks? No proposition is more practically demonstrable than that "Enterprise Pays." It is true of individual enterprise. It is a hundred fold truer of public enterprise, for then the increase of value is in geometrical proportion.

There is no grander sight on earth than to see a city council intelligently, wisely, hopefully and earnestly conferring together as to how best to promote the material, moral and social interests of a growing, modern city. Such a class of men, worthy of such an exalted office, entitled to the honor and gratitude of every citizen, rich or poor, ignorant or cultured.

Three things are to be observed in respect to such a city council. First, they must come from an intelligent and moral constituency. Streams do not rise above their sources. Second, under the continued guidance of such councils cities always thrive. It is simply in the direct line of cause and effect. The people feel that their interests are in safe hands, and that day and night, summer and winter all values are being enhanced. They are cheerful, hopeful, become habitually generous, and are at their highest pitch of efficiency in every capacity. Of course, the city prospers. This is prosperity. Third, the men composing such councils should be fairly—nay, liberally paid. Five dollars a session is none too much, especially for those serving on committees. A lawyer spends an hour arguing a case, and his ordinary fee is from $10 to $50.

Laying all partisan feeling aside our own City Councils have deserved great praise and better appreciation than they have always received at the hands of their constituents. They have freely devoted their time, sacrificed their own business interests, labored assiduously to harmonize apparently conflicting interests, and to promote public enterprises. The people should learn to lay aside their little schismatic bickerings to unite for the public welfare, and stay up the hands of their public servants.

And still it is desirable to know what other cities are doing. Allusion was made to the region north of the Harlem. That wild country was annexed to the city of New York in 1876. Now that region has a population of 70,000. Its streets are paved and lighted, water and sewerage in good supply, and the real estate of its two Wards (23d and 24th) is valued at $35,000,000. What magical agency has wrought this wonderful transformation? Chiefly the Manhattan Elevated Roads. Instead of the hour and a half formerly occu-pled, the lower part of the city can now be reached in forty minutes. Public schools have sprung up in this region, even more rapidly than educational funds could equip them. Within two years much building has been done about Kingsbridge, Highbridge and Morris Dock. And now note this important feature. Well known builders of the city are buying up large lots and erecting blocks of dwellings upon them. This is sagacious enterprise.

PROHIBITION, stands a poor show in Philadelphia. The "no license" men in six wards, polled 9,867 votes

THE President of the New York Real Estate Exchange is urging immediate action in regard to Transfer Reform. At a recent meeting a dozen or fifteen real estate lawyers made up the attendance. After a half hour's informal discussion of the relative merits of the "lot" and "block" systems, Henry L. Clinton made a long address, in the course of which he compared the corresponding sections of the bills introduced last year and this year. Mr. Dwight H. Olmstead, who is an expert on these questions, made a long and well-prepared defence of the system of "block" indexing. Among other things he said:

"The State is indexing now under counties, thereby having true local indices having permanent and legally-defined boundaries. The notice of any record is given by an inspection of the index itself; the nominal indices, being used merely in aid of the indices in chief, are not notices by law. What we now require, on account of the large number of transfers, is to reduce the county local indices to smaller local indices of similar defined lines, the areas of which are fixed by law, and thus are a matter of public record.

"The only amendment to the law required to accomplish this in cities is a provision that title deeds may be recorded under city blocks in the same manner and with like legal effect as they are now indexed under counties. Now, in order to make recording effective for the purpose of notice, the principle must be retained that the notice shall be given by the record itself and not by a separate instrument. It is immaterial what kind of nominal or lot indices are used in connection with the local block indices. The lot system contemplates merely a file index which is of no value for the purpose of a reform in land transfer, the great reform to be achieved being in the certainty and convenience of the mode of giving public notice of the instruments recorded. The method of land indexing in Syracuse by local block and lot indices can be carried on by lots where the lots have always been conveyed by the original patent numbers or otherwise by blocks.

"If the proposed lot indices could be operated at all in this city, they are so complicated as to preclude not only the general public from their use but would also confine searching and examination of titles to a few real estate firms who would have expert persons constantly employed to attend to this business. The plan could not be more effectively devised to this end if it were devised for the purpose. All needed reforms could readily be secured by means of the "block" index, and the system of land indexing would thus be enormously cheapened and simplified."

THE Supreme Court decides that the city is not responsible for loss of business incurred through bad condition of roads. This was the case of Mrs. Ann Gold, who kept a hotel on Germantown road near Chestnut Hill, the business of which was ruined, owing to the condition of the road and its consequent abandonment by the travelling public. The case was tried before a referee and decided against Mrs. Gold. In affirming the judgment, Judge Paxson says:—

"The pivotal question in this case is whether a municipal corporation charged with the duty of keeping the highways in repair is liable to the owner and occupier of property fronting thereon for the loss to his business resulting from neglect of such duty. When a duty is imposed upon a municipal corporation for the benefit of the public, no consideration or benefit is received by such municipality, as in the case of a trading corporation, hence no implication arises of liability to the individual citizen for which she has suffered in common with other citizens resulting from a neglect of such duty. To sustain a contrary doctrine would be disastrous to municipalities, and consequently to the general public."

NO MAN more than Mr. Fitter can possibly realize the importance of the grave responsibilities that will rest upon him as the Chief Magistrate of this city, coming as he does from the business ranks, and having borne heavy mercantile responsibilities for many years, he should be mentally capable of great things. If he will bring to bear upon all the ramifications of the City Government the same mental force that has characterized him as a business man, and exact from his subordinates the self-same allegiance to duty that has as a principle contributed to his own great business success, there can be no question as to the results. For Mr. Fitter's sake we wish the work cut out for him was much easier than it promises to be, for it is but natural to suppose that those who named him and engineered his nomination and election will seek to influence his motives and actions. If he permits himself to be hampered by those who have their own selfish interests to serve, his power for good must be proportionately impaired. If he can rise above his political surroundings, and say No as firmly and determinedly as he has said it a thousand times in his business life, he will have little trouble, but failing in this he will fail in all things.

WE are told by a daily paper that "every proposition to substitute an underground railroad for an elevated road means opposition to rapid transit. The difficulties to be met and overcome are insuperable. The capital to be required for an underground road must be enormous, even were such a road practicable otherwise."

This sounds too much like the old tirade a couple of generations ago against the introduction of gas in this city. What the people want here is rapid transit, whether it is through a long hole in the ground or in the air. Engineers will laugh at the statement that the difficulties to be overcome are insuperable. Has not London an underground system, where the obstacles are more serious? As to the capital, whether it be immense or trifling, that has nothing to do with the case. It is simply a matter as to whether the investment, large or small, will pay. If it pays to invest ten millions of capital, the capital can be had as readily as though only $100,000 are required. Besides, seven years are to be taken up in the construction, and the estimated cost is from $6,000,000 to $10,000,000. That is a mere bagatelle for the enormous interests concerned. If this terrified paper can show that the road is not practicable, it knows better than some of the ablest engineers in the land, who after patient investigation have declared it is practicable.

The aforesaid paper goes on to say, "But health, comfort and pleasure demand transit above ground, and there are no serious objections to such roads in this city." Health, comfort and pleasure demand nothing of the kind. The very opposite is true.

The Gas Trustees, are hurrying up to buy 400,000 tons of coal in one lump before the new city officials can take hold. If anything was needed to show Gas Trust crookedness this will do it. The public will some day know all about how the "divide" is made, and they would not shed tears, if the dividers came to the same unhappy condition as have three of the famous "combes" in New York.

THE Electrical Light Association which held a convention in this city last week threw a flood of light upon the much talked of, but little understood question of electric lighting. The most interesting report submitted was that by Wm. Baxter, Jr., of Baltimore, who presented a report on electric motors. In his report he reviewed the progress which the steam engine had made, and showed that it was impossible for that engine to utilize the latent heat except in a small way. The electric motor has been known in a more or less crude form for fifty years, and to-day it is far more efficient than a steam engine possibly can be. The laws of electrical science, in so far as they relate to the action of an electric motor, are so thoroughly understood that it is possible to obtain as perfect results as is within the limits of possibility. In explanation of this statement, he said there is no such thing as creating energy, and it was no more possible to create the latter than to create matter, and it will never be possible to make a much more perfect motor than is made at present. A theoretically perfect motor would be one that converted all the electric energy passing through it into mechanical energy, available outside of the machine. Practically, such a result is impossible. A motor can be made to convert nine-tenths of the energy of the electric current into power, without going to any unreasonable expense, but it is doubtful whether the increased cost of construction necessary to attain a higher result would be compensated for by the additional gain in efficiency.

It is a bad charge the Englishmen make against our much petted Pennsylvania Railroad Company. "Forged entry" are too serious words to be uttered in haste. Besides the amount involved is so heavy that serious complications may ensue. The managers of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company have too much at stake either to ignore the charge or to pass it over lightly. As it stands at present the public and stockholders naturally look for an explanation. The fact is, full light should have been thrown upon the subject when Mr. Taylor was in this country. Enigmas are but weak subterfuges and should have no place in the counting-room.

THE recent roasting to death of passengers on railroad cars has started the managers on a hunt for some better and safer method of heating. It is claimed that the old method of heating by stoves must be abandoned, and that steam or some safer method adopted. It is singular that asbestos has never been thought of as a preventive against fire in case of accident. The construction of iron chambers with automatic doors and a thick covering of asbestos on the top, sides and bottom, with suitable heating stoves, securely fastened within them, would make about as complete a safety heating apparatus for railroad cars as could be desired. Small holes for the distribution of heat could be so arranged that the heating powers of the stoves would not be impaired, and yet the escape of hot coals would be entirely prevented.

It is very evident that the Public Buildings are far from being fire-proof.

A TAX BILL has been introduced in the Legislature which requires that assessors fix the cash value of all taxable real estate and all visible personal property. It provides that obligations and evidences of debt not assessed shall not be collectable at law. The Courts would soon dispose of this latter piece of legislation, if it ever got so far. It is a roundabout way of bringing about a needed reform; and the roundabout way in this case is not the shortest, way home. Real estate in Pennsylvania is taxed to the extent of $30,000,000. Other property of equal value pays $8,000,000. The bill spoken of aims to correct this inequality, but we fear the name of the originator of this bill will rattle down the ages and make about as much noise as a putty ball. The presentation of a bill of this character simply shows that there is need of some statesmanship, and honesty at Harrisburg, and at the same time, it proves conclusively that there is none there. At least, that there is none heard from. The Blackstones are quiet. The value of real estate is very frequently fixed by the tax rate. This may not be a just value, but it is enforced as a market value. We apprehend another session or two will pass, before this very important problem is solved. It is a question which everybody will try to run away from, because it is impossible to please everybody.

OUR cable line managers should make a note of the effect, of the reduction of fares to 5 cents on the Manhattan elevated rail road. Despite all the predictions to the contrary there is an actual increase in net earnings for the past quarter and this too in face of the fact, that there was an expenditure of over $200,000 in operating expenses. The President of the company says that the traffic will be very remunerative in a short time and that the travel will grow up to the railroads sooner than many now expect. Our Traction people would rather antagonize the whole community than reduce the fare to five cents. They would look upon it as throwing half a million dollars a year into a hole. Business men who look impartially at this question feel satisfied the earnings of the company would more likely increase that amount, than fall that much below present receipts but the monopoly must be defended, no matter what follows.

THE European rulers are anxious for a war which will distract the attention of the people from economic and social reforms. There is a strong element in this country in favor of such a war, because they think it will create a market for breadstuffs, lumber, machinery, guns and other products.

TO REALIZE, how cities grow, suppose 7,000 dwellings are built annually for 10 years. That makes 70,000 dwellings, which, at 20 feet front each, means 1,400,000 feet of house frontage, or 280 miles in length, or 70 streets each four miles long. Then, if these streets are 200 feet apart, they represent an area of 3 miles by 4 miles of solid house-occupancy. And all this means an enormous amount of sewerage, paving, lighting, piping, &c., &c. Could this part of what ought to be done here, from this time forward, be actually accomplished it would practically double the area of Philadelphia, affording a large increase, after all fair discounts, of the manufacturing and store-keeping requirements for such an increase of habitable area. But how about actual values? In five years it would produce five times the wealth that now exists here.

There is a popular superstition that meat killed in the wane of the moon, shrinks in cooking. This is true of wealth in a waning town. All values shrink, and much property becomes idle and valueless! It is better to live in a city where a dollars worth of property will be worth $1.25 or $1.50, next year. Our City's moon should always be waxing fuller and fuller, brighter, and brighter!

A TWENTY-FIVE mile road is to be built by the Norfolk and Western railroad in Virginia which will open up lands rich in coal, iron, lead, zinc and other minerals. If some of our labor organizations would put a few hundred thousand dollars into some of the cheap lands in Virginia, and pay the trifling taxes upon it, for a few years they would be able to shake hands with corporations like the Standard Oil Company, or sit at the same table with Jay Gould, or C. P. Huntington.

They would, however, prefer to strike for two cents per hour more and stay idle six weeks and go back at two cents an hour less. There are scores and even hundreds of excellent opportunities for profitable investments throughout the United States, and yet not the slightest attention is being paid to these opportunities, but the working men are wearing themselves out in strikes, and agitations and leaving it to capital to gobble up and hold the richest opportunities for money-making which were ever presented. It is no use to point out such opportunities or to show where our labor organizations are making mistakes. Even were the opportunity offered, there is not sufficient harmony between the widespread membership to allow investments for that purpose to be made. It is surprising however, that the numerous opportunities are permitted to pass. Sooner or later organized labor will enter upon this very programme and purchase real estate which promises the best results in the appreciation of value.

THE appointment of John J. Ridgway to succeed Ellwood Rowan, as Sheriff of this County is a matter of earnest congratulation for those having business with the office. Mr. Ridgway during the illness of Mr. Rowan has labored earnestly in the interests of the public, and his practical business methods have been commended on all sides.

THE insurance companies are endeavoring to bring about needed reforms and will succeed in doing so. They should have thought of these reforms sooner. Their neglect has led to the multiplication of mutual companies and to the intrusion of a multitude of "laymen" who have found a good field for the exercise of business judgment and prudence in building up cheaper systems of insurance. An unusual amount of property has been destroyed lately. The companies are going about in a business way to reduce expenses and commissions and to come to some sort of an understanding by which competition will be kept within moderate bounds. This effort which originated in New York City will be made in many other cities. The aid of the architects has been secured to carry out needed reforms. There are hundreds of millions of dollars worth of badly constructed buildings throughout the United States. From this out architects will make better plans and builders will do better building because owners will insist upon it, and the insurance companies will make it an object by charging less insurance for well constructed buildings. The interest on the additional cost, will be more than compensated by the saving in insurance and this is where the reform will come in.

WHILE the Girard Trust has not entered into contracts for the material for the new building it is to erect at Twelfth and Market streets, yet it is intimated that the iron work will be furnished, as was that for the Hood, Bonbright & Co.'s building, by a New York firm. The gentlemen of the Trust, while professing to be strongly and earnestly interested in the business prosperity of Philadelphia, seem to forget that there are several firms in this city engaged in the manufacture of architectural iron who are fully capable of performing even larger contracts for iron work than the Trust can offer.

It seems a shame that such large quantities of Philadelphia money must go to New York manufacturers and workmen when such architectural iron works as that of Samuel J. Cresswell, Royer Bros., C. Hitzeroth, Mitchell & Sheppard, Pencoyd Iron Works, Phoenix Iron Works and others, employing as they do hundreds of Philadelphia workmen, have their doors wide open, inviting just such work in any quantity.

THOSE in charge of the New York building interests are just now busily at work amending their building laws. It is often found that legal restrictions, apparently necessary to guard against apprehended evils, prove to be barriers in the way of promoting the general objects contemplated; or that the natural latitude required for the easy working of a plan affords many an opening for the admission of dangers and frauds. A Board of Examiners appointed to determine what amendments were needed, could not agree, but submitted that troublesome straddle—a majority and a minority report. These being submitted to a committee of the Real Estate Exchange, it decided in favor of the majority, just as the Examiners should have done. The differences in question related to the height of buildings; to the constructive repeal of portions of the old law; to the arrest sections, which means the arresting of landlords for violating the building laws; to bay windows; to appeals; to a representation of the Real Estate Exchange in the Board of Examiners; to favoritism in the City Surveys; and to examinations for determining the qualifications of inspectors. It is believed that the outcome of this movement will be conducive to the comfort, health and safety of citizens, and it is to be hoped that the example may react and awaken similar interests in other cities, particularly our own.

BOTH the Senate and Assembly of New York have before them bills for the better regulation of tenement-houses. In communities where nine-tenths of the people live in rented buildings and apartments, their proper regulation by law, as to health and safety, becomes a very important question. It seems strange that laws should be necessary to compel landlords to study their own interests; but such has long been proven to be the fact. Miserly vagabonds will destroy themselves and imperil the lives of their tenants, to avoid an outlay which would increase their ultimate profit, and the State authority is obliged to step in and enforce true economy upon them. The new provisions called for are—Additional policemen to enforce the laws; two thorough inspections annually; at least forty-five per cent. of open ground area on the lot; detailed reports by landlords to the Board of Health; halls opening to the external air; increased power to compel landlords; and water-tight cellar floors.

WHAT a splendid opportunity that aspiring though unrenowned disciple of Esculapius has had during the past week for illustrating his theory for purifying our drinking water, by the introduction of Alum. The remedy although suggested in sober earnestness is infinitely worse than the filth it is intended to remove.

That an M.D. of the nineteenth century could, in sober earnestness, recommend the use of one of the most powerful astringents known to science, for such a purpose is only equalled by that other genius of the medical profession who cured all diseases by first throwing his patients into fits.

EDITOR McCURE's warnings to Sheriff Ridgway against the sins of omission and commission which, according to the Times, have been characteristic of the incumbents of that office for years past, is neither dignified nor timely. Would the manager of the Times—because of suspicion of some former employee—give warning to a gentleman who had been selected to fill a position of trust on that journal? A full share of faithful service from Mr. Ridgway the public have a right to expect, but he is entitled to the consideration a gentleman should receive, to say the least.

Judge Paxson Places the Fault Where it Belongs.

THE Supreme Court in affirming the judgment of Common Pleas, No. 1, in refusing an injunction restraining the Schuylkill River East Side Railroad Company from building its Delaware River branch through the lands of Matthew Volmer, Judge Paxson said:

"The people of this State, through their Representatives in the Legislature, have, from time to time, conferred vast powers upon corporations, and especially upon railroad corporations. Where this power has been conferred this Court, in a long line of decisions, has sustained the grant, neither more nor less, as it was our duty to do. These grants of power and this line of decisions have called forth from the learned and able President Judge of the Court below the remark that in view of them there seemed but little for the citizen whose property is taken for railroad purposes to do but submit to, and if needs be suffer, this authorized spoliation of his property, for which he seldom or never receives an adequate compensation. I can best supplement these remarks by saying that it is idle for the people who confer these immense powers upon corporations to expect this Court to wrest such powers from them, except when they have been conferred in violation of the organic law. And however much we may doubt the wisdom of such legislation it is not our province to set it aside. It is our duty to sustain vested rights which the lawmaking power has conferred. In doing so we are but carrying out the will of the people lawfully expressed. The judgment is affirmed."

and Tioga streets, will erect twenty-five small houses on Tioga street below Richmond Street.

NEW Public Buildings are to be built at Allentown and Scranton, Pa. The House Committee will report favorably the bills appropriating $250,000 each for the purchase of land and the construction of the buildings.

BUILDING operations promise to be somewhat active in and about Hattboro this spring. S. R. Lenhart is planning to build four or five houses. Joseph Brown will build two brick houses, and perhaps a separate building to be used as a laundry.

A BRISTOL, Pa., paper says: "The prospects of a brisk building trade in our town, as soon as the weather permits, is promising in the extreme. In fact, in every part of our town houses will be erected, so that the carpenters and bricklayers can look forward to having plenty of work."

THERE is a new town starting at Jenkintown station to be known as Wyncose. They have already a post-office, and fifty trains pass the town daily. There are about a dozen buildings in course of construction and more will be added. Mr. M. L. Kohler, who is a member of the bar, has opened an office there for the transaction of real estate business, and will erect several houses himself.

GEORGE L. PARKER, 2019 Fairmount avenue, reports that since January 1st he has sold two new 8-room houses, 2533 and 2535 Swain street, for $6,400; also farm at Ridge avenue and Domino lane, Roxborough, for $5,000; also dwelling, 807 North Nineteenth street, for $3,500; also dwelling, 780 North Twenty-seventh street, for $2,100; also dwelling, 2515 Master street, for $3,000; also dwelling and lot, 1330 Greenhill street, for $1,250; also dwelling, 2031 North Eighteenth street, $4,500; also dwellings, 317 and 319 Newbold street, for $3,000.

Architects' Notes.

P. A. WELSH, 429 Walnut st., has several plans under way, but not sufficiently matured to speak about. He is working up the plans previously reported.

WILSON EYRE, JR., 506 Walnut st., has the plans for two residences at Chestnut Hill on the boards, and one at Fort Washington.

WILSON BROS., 435 Chestnut st., are rapidly preparing the plans previously reported and have several matters under way, but not sufficiently matured to speak of.

MOSES & KING, 226 Walnut st., have the plans out for the Epiphany Lutheran church of Camden, N. J. This will be commenced right away, and will be built of brick, with stone trimmings, and will cost about $3,000, not including the ground; also a frame residence at Merchantville, N. J., to cost about $5,000.

ADDITION HUTTON, 400 Chestnut st., is preparing the plans for a large hotel on the west side of Broadway and 36th st., New York, for Mr. Louis L. Todd, Hotel Vendome New York. It will be a six-story building, 145 feet front on Broadway and 139 feet front on 36th st. On Broadway the ground floor will be occupied by stores; the dining-room will be on 36th st., and there will be 65 suites of apartments in the building, and it will cost $250,000.

C. F. COLLOM, 909 Walnut st., has just closed the contract for five frame cottages at Norwood, Delaware county, Pa. The prices will range from $2,000 to $2,500; also preparing the plans for three cottages at Bustleton for Mr. John Fisher; first story stone, frame and weather-boarding above, at a cost from $2,800 to $3,600; also just taken off the boards a factory for Samuel Wood of Germantown. The building is of brick, three stories high, 55x240, and will cost $32,000.

PAUL BRANDNER, 532 Walnut st., has prepared the plans for a three-story furniture factory for Frederick Knapp. This will be a rear building on South 5th st., 20x50, and will cost about $5,000; also the front alteration of Mr. Newman's cottage at Atlantic City. The rear building of the same having just been finished, the front building is to receive a new roof with gables and dormer windows. Mr. Brandner has lately got out a number of competition drawings for art metal work manufacturers.

W. H. DECKER, 1407 Chestnut st., has under way at 27 North Seventh st., a five-story store and warehouse for Ford & Kendig, dealers in plumbers supplies. It will be 189x132. The first floor will be iron front with pressed brick above, and granite and terra cotta trimmings, the style of architecture will be modern Romanesque. It will cost over $500,00. Also under contract a store at 1231 Girard avenue, which will be 18x72, three stories built of brick with gables and dormer trimmings, and will cost about $500,00.

T. P. CHANDLER, JR., 302 Walnut st. An alteration and addition to the property at the N. W. cor. Broad and Brown sts. for John Wanamaker, to be known as the Hotel Walton, and to be occupied by the lady employees of the Wanamaker stores. It is to be of pressed brick with brown stone trimmings, finished with hard woods; all the latest sanitary improvements, including a large marble swimming bath in the basement. It will be heated by steam, and will consist of a large basement and four stories, with handsome marble staircase, marble bath-rooms, &c. Judging from the drawings the building will cost in the neighborhood of $50,000. A. Catnach & Son are the builders.

T. FRANK MILLER, 515 Walnut st., has on the boards a new Sunday-school building for the Baptist denomination at Rising Sun, Philadelphia; a residence at Fort Washington, Pa., for Mr. N. Van Horn, Passenger Agent of Erie Railroad, first story of stone, shingles and ornamental weather-boarding above, to cost about $3,500; also a large, handsome brick and stone dwelling at 12th and Lehigh ave., for Mr. H. Fritz, the plans for which are under way; also a large enterprise to be started at Louisville, Ky.; operation of 28 houses to be built for Col. A. Wilson Norris, Auditor General of the State of Pennsylvania. These houses are to be built of Philadelphia pressed bricks and will be of ornamental and unique designs. Mr. Miller has a large amount of work on hand, but the plans are not yet fully consummated.

JACKSON & REED, 804 Walnut st., have the plans ready for a bakery, storehouse, and place of business on 13th and between Willow and Hamilton sts., 185.6x50, to be built of brick. The end on Hamilton st., running 85 feet on 13th st., will be three stories in height. The Hamilton st. end will be used by Mr. Stewart, the owner; the first floor being used for a stable and the upper part for a cracker bakery. The part facing on 13th st. will be stores, and the Willow st. end will be occupied by the P. P. Mast Co., who will have a track running into the building; the first floor will be used for offices and show room, the upper part for storerooms. There will be two freight elevators put in; also a cottage at Ray Head, N. J., for a New York party, to cost about $3,000; also a residence at Germantown for Mahlon Bryan, to be built of grey stone in the Gothic style of architecture to cost $22,000.

HAZELHURST & HUCKEL, 508 Walnut st., have on their boards plans for a four-story city residence to be erected on the south side of Walnut near Broad, the front will be of brown stone. They have just made a set of plans for re-modeling also an additional building for the Wenonah Hotel, a Wenonah Station West Jersey R.R. It will be a four-story frame, hardwood finish, heated by steam. Also a bachelor apartment house to be located on Thirteenth above Chestnut st., basement and first floor stores, etc., upper apartments, front of Indiana stone and Perth Amboy brick. Romanesque style of architecture, inside finish hardwood, heated by steam, owner Samuel T. Austin, Esq. Also hotel at Farnville, Va., for the Farnville Lithia Water Springs Co., of New York. The building is to be L shape of brick and frame four stories, and basement, with a main tower at the angle, and secondary towers at the ends in colonial style of architecture. Alteration and re-modeling of the hotel property at 6 North Delaware avenue for Geo. Pfeiffer & Son, new front, to be used as a restaurant. Alteration of a residence at Shoemakertown for Mr. Irving. Also a residence for Mr. G. W. Buzby at Willow Grove Pa. Also two sea shore cottages at Longport, Atlantic Co. N. J. Also a residence at Ridley Park for Arthur Boswell Esq.

RADICAL changes are proposed in New York building laws. One point is to limit the dimensions of tenements to be erected in New York city to 65 feet by 22 feet, except corners. Twenty feet is to be maintained between front and rear buildings on the ground; 25 feet for two-story buildings; 30 feet for three-story buildings, and 35 feet for four-story buildings.

VOL. II.—NO. 8.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1887.

PRICE 15 CENTS

News Items.

—Last Monday, Brooklyn began her new elevated railways.

—John J. Davis' estate inventoried at $52,220.71.

—John Scanlan's personal estate is appraised at $122,341.71.

—Maurice J. Power, of N. Y. is promoting aesthetics and his fortunes, in his "National Fine-Art Foundry."

—Elmira, N. Y., is advertising for sealed proposals for the erection of a complete plant of electric lighting for that city.

—A new era for Bleeker street, New York, is anticipated from the Stewart and King estates now coming into the market.

—The shipments of lumber from Williamsport in 1886 amounted to 230,044,000 feet, an increase of 22,628,000 feet over the previous year.

—Albert Komp, of New York, is developing a good business in Natural Wood Ornamentation, with patent papyrus centre-pieces.

—Legislators are divided in opinion as to whether 65 or 75 per cent. should be the maximum restriction for the proportion of building to lot area.

—Wheat is selling at a price lower than at any time within the past 20 years. The price is still slowly declining, and there appears to be no near prospect of a reaction.

—An outlying tract of 10,000 acres, as large as New York city, known as Garden City, and containing the water works and several religious institutions, is to be sold for suburban improvement.

—The Board of County Commissioners, at Cincinnati, O., advertise for freestone work, terra-cotta work, brick-work, iron work, and all other items comprised in an addition to Long View Insane Asylum, in Hamilton Co., Ohio.

—The present unparalleled "horridness" of the city streets, between Vine and South, and from the Delaware to the Schuylkill, is leading to wholesome reflections upon the comparative merits of different paving materials.

—It is claimed that the new revenue bill which has been suggested so as to cover securities amounting to about $100,000,000 held by corporations and which now avoid taxation will increase the annual revenue to about $2,500,000.

—It is stated that in some cases the hogs of the landlord enjoy better accommodations than his tenants. Public opinion and legislators seem determined that the homes of the poor shall be well ventilated and free from danger and nuisances.

—An "Old London Street," with a double row of houses, built at South Kensington for about $30,000, has been purchased and is to be erected on Broadway, New York. This unique branch of the import trade is not likely to assume very large proportions.

—In the New York Tenement House Bill the enforced improvements provided, are to be deemed the taking of private property for the public benefit, and hence made at public expense. But all changes required to give the building lawful character must be at the expense of the owner.

—A bill is to be brought before the New York Legislature for an iron viaduct 1,700 feet long, to extend from Harlem river to the bluffs at Washington Heights, 105 feet above the river. It will have a roadway 60 feet wide, with two 10 feet sidewalks, and cost $335,000.

—The Philadelphia merchants are bringing their influence to bear on railway corporations, for better service and lower charges. These reforms, if such they are, must be brought about, because Philadelphia cannot afford to remain a way station on the trunk lines leading out of New York.

—The amount of the cotton crop, which was estimated at 6,250,000 bales, is now placed by the Washington Bureau at 6,460,000; and present receipts indicate even a higher figure. While "King Cotton" has lost his crown, it is pleasing to see him thriving as a good common citizen.

—The Lowe Manufacturing Company of Norristown, Pa., whose specialty is Lowe's Incandescent Gas-light, produce a water-gas, as a fuel for cooking, baking, heating, &c., in restaurants and dwellings. Its constituents are hydrogen and carbonic oxide; produced by the interaction of steam and carbon at a high temperature.

—The terrible conflagrations following railroad accidents have led a Boston syndicate to undertake the manufacture of malleable iron cars with compressible platforms. It is claimed that they will also be free from the usual liability to telescoping, which so enhances the fatal effects of railroad collisions. But if it objected that England's experience with nickel-plated cars should warn us of the danger of alternate freezing and roasting in such metallic structures.

—When in 1814, the British, under Gen. Ross, destroyed the National Capitol, its library and all the public offices; the total cost of the Capitol had been but $787,168. Since then the rebuilding, additions, &c., have been as follows: the old wing and central building, $1,614,240; new wings, $8,805,332; new dome, $926,290; improvements, $968,224; water from Smith's springs, $55,945; land, $971,883; improving ground, $1,596,725; marble terrace, $200,093;—total, $15,925,810.

—The strongest temptation besetting builders and architects appears to be the omission of danger precautions, because they frequently impose unprofitable difficulties and expenditures. A Berlin builder has found in a recent case that the omission was more expensive than the investment would have been. In the process of construction three iron beams were laid in the walls without bondstones or iron plates. Before the floor boards were nailed down the beam ends started, the green walls gave way, and the whole structure fell.

—The English Lord Shrewsbury case, as touching the question of the mutual obligation in an architect's contract, and the proprietors right to dismiss an architect without legal cause, is looked upon with interest as a precedent. To restore Ingestre Hall, architect Birch was employed. When the work was nearly complete Mr. Birch was dismissed with no reason assigned. The action was on a bill for services up to the completion of the job. After the testimony of one witness, a reputable architect, the Hon. Lord agreed to pay the claim with costs.

—A new substitute for magnesium gas-lights is that of Dro Ariers of Vienna. It consists of two cylinders with perforated sides and unknown contents, through which the gas flows; rising from the lower to the higher, where the combination emits a light of dazzling whiteness. The cylinders do not need replenishing oftener than once a year. A light of 24-candle power is produced by the consumption of one-fourth the ordinary amount of gas for a 12-candle power. And the incandescent lamps burn hydrogen, which costs only one-fourth as much as coal gas.

—The Cambria Iron Company have proposed to take all its employees into a partnership in their Johnstown store, which has been in existence for thirty years. They have been paying out there $1,000,000 annually to the store; and they are eagerly accepting the offer to take stock in it as a co-operative concern. Its $200,000 capital stock is divided into $10 shares, half-payable at the time of organization; the balance, $2 in thirty days, $2 in sixty days, and $1 in ninety days. No one allowed to take more than ten shares, within any period of thirty days. Ten per cent of the profits are to be set apart as a reserve guaranty fund, until that amounts to twenty-five per cent. of the stock. Of the remaining profits, not less than six nor more than ten per cent per annum shall be divided to members. After ten per cent to members, the surplus is to be divided to customers pro-rata upon the several amounts of their trade. This will prove an anti-strike specific.

One Year, in advance, . . . $5.00

JOHN N. GALLAGHER, Prop'r.

Refers with permission to William M. Singerly,
Proprietor of Phila. "Record."

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, FEB. 28, 1887.

THE present movements in city Real Estate though fully up to the usual business of February, are of the more quiet, unexcitable sort.

There is no speculative spirit abroad, and all purchases are made either in the city's habitual way of making "Homes," or for safe investment. The two facts that money is plenty, and interests low, together with the causal fact that the current Stocks and Bonds, usually offering the best safe investments, are ruling high and steady, lead capitalists to put their money into real estate, where 6 per cent. income can be safely relied upon.

We are informed by one of the largest dealers whose experience and judgment are safe guides, that although no heavy enterprises are yet developed, the outlook for the spring is on the whole cheering to those who are content with healthful activity. The summer of 1887 will be no period of stagnation in the Real Estate market.

The "City of Homes" is preparing to perpetuate its name by building medium grade, modern dwellings, during the coming season. Rents are so stiff, that both economy and the staid instincts of the people are encouraging the old desire, transmitted from sire to son, to own their houses. In the northwestern portion of the city there is a prospect of a considerable addition to its respectable residences; and the new structures will be characterized by greatly improved architecture. Proprietors, Builders and Architects, are a unit in the wish that Philadelphia shall wake up on this point, and catch the step in the grand march of architectural progress, so marked in other great cities.

In the old southeastern section, where the city was most nearly "finished," a half a century ago, there is neither much opportunity nor inducement for better buildings. The northeastern and southwestern portion, so largely given up to mills, and factories, will build quite a number of comfortable dwellings for the operatives, some additions and improvements to mills, and not much besides.

It is expected that many of the old rubbish piles in sight of the Public Buildings, will soon give place to those new structures that are to be in keeping with that massive embodiment of modern liberality, taste and enterprise, which the year '92 should see completed.

Every Real Estate man of mark is alive to the glorious possibilities of Philadelphia's inviting suburbs. The splendid examples of other large cities must prove a potent inspiration to our own. The right men, the true practical prophets, do not yet appear; but embryo enterprises of magnitude, big with public weal, are taking shape in many sagacious minds.

Here as elsewhere, the vital problem of rapid transit as a means of suburban development, is squarely before the people. The Pennsylvania railroad is gradually extending increased facilities for reaching Chestnut Hill, Tioga, etc., where values are increasing, and will probably reach a solution of the problem in that direction. The 5-cent city fare will greatly aid the general movement. And if the Traction Company could but have the wisdom to buy up large tracts of suburban territory, it will have no cause to regret the reduction of its fare.

The example of the half-dozen men like Henry Cary Lee, Elkins, Drexel, etc., must prove contagious, 1887 can hardly close without a regular boom in Real Estate improvements in Philadelphia.

On Wednesday evening last, a meeting of citizens was held in Lincoln Hall of this city, to consider the six-cent fare question, which was then pending before the Pennsylvania Legislature. It was explained that the Bills under consideration were really for the purpose of securing additional privileges to the Traction Company. Mr. Clinton Rhoads said the lack of interest manifested by the citizens of Philadelphia, arose from not understanding the state of affairs; nor the objects aimed at. He said that in June, 1881, Councils passed a special ordinance, deliberately enacting that "the consideration of all future grants of passenger railway privileges, in the city, should be the establishment of five-cent fares on such roads." It was only under prior laws, and this special ordinance, that the Traction Company had any right to use cable motive power.

He proceeded to detail the history of introducing the cable, and showed that the ordinance referred to had been violated at every step since, by the six-cent fares. The Company knowing that they are persistently violating the ordinance, now seek the passage of these bills,—House Bill No. 18, and Senate Bills Nos. 9 and 40, for the express purpose of legalizing this crime! He claimed that the Bills were unconstitutional, interfering as they do with existing municipal rights now under litigation. Under these laws, if passed, the Traction Company could buy up stock of all other companies, and over-ride the law, which forbids the consolidation of competing lines.

The following Resolutions were considered and adopted:

"Resolved, That this meeting express its disapproval of the present bills pending before the Legislature, namely: Senate Bills No. 9 and 40, and House Bill No. 18, and that it respectfully requests the members of the Philadelphia delegation to use all their power to resist the enactment of these bills.

"Resolved, That it is the opinion of this meeting that no further street railway or Traction Company privileges should be granted, except on the condition that five-cent fares shall be charged.

"Resolved, That the thanks of this meeting be hereby extended to those Representatives and Senators who have bravely withstood the Traction forces."

These resolutions express the public sentiment on Traction Legislation, and the people of Philadelphia now await the progress of the contest between the Traction monopolists and the city.

THE proposed radical observance of the Interstate Commerce Law and the consequent abrogation of the pass system by the railroad companies will have a tendency to confine our legislative statesmen more closely to their duties for awhile anyhow, but he who thinks that the ingenuity of the average legislator is not equal to such emergencies don't understand the animal nor his wonderful versatility. To be sure the law is intended to kick out of the way the evils arising from the pass system, but what law can prevent a corporation from giving away its trip tickets if they are the same tickets as are sold to other passengers? The law will no doubt rid the companies of a host of parasites, but those whose votes and services are valuable to railroad companies will get their hats chalked somehow or another, and as often as their necessities demand it.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL KIRKPATRICK says that the suits started by General Cassidy against the railroad pools and coal combinations will be pushed.

THE community is greatly indebted to murderer Wilson for his kind consideration in not throwing the dismembered fragments of his colored victim into the Schuylkill above Fairmount dam instead of below it.

WHO are we going to war with after all these hard earned millions of the people's money have been spent in useless fortifications and steel cruisers? The money in the United States Treasury seems to burn the pockets of a great many people.

HIGH license, and so high that every characterless raganuffin will not be able to reach it, is what we greatly need and must have to make the thing equal between the people and the rum-seller. As it stands now the latter holds a full hand of clubs, and his victims include men, women and children as the physical and mental sufferers, while the taxpayer foots the bills of cost for the well-filled almshouses, prisons and other architectural monuments which are neither creditable nor pleasing to any community.

THE Employing Builders' Associations have a much higher mission than merely to check-mate the organizations of employees. Their influence should mainly be brought to bear upon matters outside the labor wrangles; upon the character of the structures in which the comfort, health and safety of so many people are to be involved for many generations. It is believed that boss builders have themselves a more immediate interest in good wages, than all of them appreciate; for good wages lead to the occupancy of good tenements, and a demand for these helps the Builders.

A BILL introduced by Mr. Barnes, is before the House at Harrisburg, for the erection of a new capital building. It requires advertisements in 25 papers or less, for plans and specifications, that it shall accommodate all State departments; to cover not less than 100,000 square feet of surface. Advertisements shall also be made for specifications for a State Library Building, covering not less than 80,000 square feet. The Commissioners under the law, are to select the site, and immediately commence the erection of the building. $300,000 is to be immediately appropriated, as a beginning. The bill also provides for the erection of an executive mansion.

THE great success of the cheap places of amusement is noticeable everywhere. Crowds throng them nightly, and their proprietors are piling up wealth rapidly. Man is so constituted that he needs diversion, and no matter how much it may be regretted, yet the fact exists that the number of men who find rest and relaxation in the reading of Greek and the classics is growing less with each generation. These cheap places of amusement are patronized by a very respectable class of working people, and although the highest grade of histrionic art is seldom exemplified in them, yet they fill a want in amusing thousands of poor men and their families who are excluded from the more fashionable theatres by reason of their high prices.

THE great laws of enterprise are alike applicable to all cities. The relation of Rapid Transit to suburban improvement is now patent to the commonest laborer. The forcible examples presented to the entire country by Boston and New York, were not lost upon Chicago or St. Louis, and must yet be heeded by our own and other cities.

Trains leave and arrive at the Chicago Wells St. depot, every five minutes, all day long. A large number of these are for the accommodation of residents at the close succession of clean, bright, rich-looking little hamlets that begem the prairies like a string of pearls for thirty or forty miles out. Where a few years ago the city cartman stacked his prairie hay, until he had time to haul it in, now the steam engine rushes up like a cyclone with its two, three or four cars, drops its ten, fifty or one hundred passengers, and again darts away to other incorporated villages, upon the beautiful expanse that is a prairie no longer!

SENATOR MACFARLANE—"Are the people of Philadelphia asking for five-cent fares or not?"

Senator Grady—"I have no way of answering that."

Macfarlane—"Is there not a public sentiment in favor of five-cent fares?"

Grady—"I believe there is a certain sort of sentiment, but it is our duty to protect vested interests. We ought to protect the money invested in the stock of this corporation."

Macfarlane—"What, is this Senate to bull the market on passenger railway stock?"

Grady—"No; but we're not here to rob the widows and orphans who hold Traction stock. I do not believe that the people are clamoring for five-cent fares. I will admit that there may be a certain class who would like to pay only five cents."

And this is the sort of a Senator, Grady is. It is certain now that the Traction Company is composed almost entirely of widows and orphans, and that Senator Grady is the chivalrous defender of their monied and corporate interests.

What will the many widows and orphans of this city who do not own Traction stock, think of Senator Grady's defense of this six-cent car fare extortion in the face of the thousands of laboring men from whom this extra cent will take nearly a full week's wages every year? The barefaced impudence of the Philadelphia members of the Senate who voted for this bill is only equalled by the childish simplicity of those who cheerfully vote at election year after year for the same old gang. The real estate owners of West Philadelphia could have made themselves felt on this question, but they didn't.

BOTH masters and men in the building trades are now strongly organized in a dozen cities; and fortunately in that department the mutual recognition of strength has developed mutual respect.

A LAW fixing licenses for the sale of liquor in this city at $500 each would yield such a round sum annually that in five years, with the present $1.85 tax rate, the whole city could be rehabilitated. We need many improvements, and why not make the rum-sellers pay for them?

AN important decision has just been made by the Supreme Court in relation to building association mortgages; to the effect that the mortgage can hold only the defendant's real interest, ascertained by crediting him with payments and interest, and charging him with money actually received on his mortgage. The principle announced by the Court, as the basis of this decision, was an equalization of burdens between borrower and lender.

HAS the city gone to the dogs, or has the Mayor turned it over in its entirety to the sluggers and proprietors of concert dives and brothel keepers. The daily papers not only afford delectable reading, but the space devoted to slugging matches, prize fights, drunken policemen, and other innocent and refining amusements would lead a stranger to think that the free-and-easy way our laws are enforced surpasses even the palmy days of the gambler's supremacy in Chicago. The looseness with which this city is at present governed discounts that of a border city filled with reckless cowboys, drunken Indians, and rampant courtzans.

IT is observed that the Sixth street asphalt pavement, laid eight or ten years ago, and that about the Public Buildings, three years old, are in good condition; while the cobblestone streets, besides being effective filth accumulators, are in constant need of repairs. The Bullitt charter is expected to cure many municipal ills; but it cannot supply wisdom and integrity to officials, nor change the nature of pavement materials. It should be assumed that Philadelphia has outgrown the village disabilities, and is now in possession of adult judgment and means for availing itself of the laws of ordinary economy.

THE new law prohibiting the importation of foreigners and aliens under contract or agreement to perform labor in the United States is not only just and proper, but it will enforce a healthy restriction on the few unprincipled American capitalists who are entirely indifferent to both the interests of American labor or the moral status of the American workingman so long as they can serve their own selfish purposes. It has been settled beyond controversy that a great part of the labor disturbances which have occurred in this country have originated with imported laborers fresh from European centres, where the spirit, and sentiments of anarchy imbued them with a burning and unreasonable hatred against law and legal and social restriction of every kind.

Good citizens in New York are hoping for faithful and wise action by the Legislature upon the Tenement House Bill now before it. The point to be specially aimed at should be a just combination of sanitary and economic conditions favorable to tenants, and fair privileges of freedom and profit to capitalists. The New York Real Estate Exchange has need of care to avoid so-called humanitarian whims on the one side, and virtually pandering to the cupidity of landlords on the other. Undoubtedly many of the new tenement houses there are characterized by far better sanitary conditions than the dwellings of many wealthy citizens. Unfortunately the Board of Estimates has voted only a miserly pittance to the Health Department. All progressive action in one State must influence all others. So that every community is interested in the outcome of this important question.

AS ONE looks about our own, after visiting other large cities, the question must force itself upon the mind, "What have the architects yet to do for Philadelphia?" This is not a merely speculative question. It goes rather to the time of doing than to the question of the future fact. When we examine the buildings from centre to suburbs, noting what has been done at certain points, not the most favorable for architectural development, and see the magnificent openings for improvement and profitable investment on every side, every intelligent person must feel that it is only a question of time when we will progress as rapidly as our sister cities in architecture. As Chicago has been often complimented on first building a city, and then making a place to put it on, it will yet be said of our own good town, that after the carpenters and masons had finished it the architects followed and built the city.

Many circumstances have combined to give to our houses and blocks a monotonous aspect of box-like simplicity and plainness; chief of which was, of course, the plain tastes of the early settlers, whose blood still runs in the veins of many of our best well-to-do people. But quite a number of these have shown us that staid demeanor and steady habits are not at all inconsistent with progressive tastes and modern enterprise; and some of them, under the influence of architects possessing both tact and talent, have erected most elegant buildings. Still, much as has been done in that direction, in view of all there is yet to do, one frequently feels, on returning from New York, Boston, Chicago or St. Louis, as though he were a denizen of Sleepy Hollow! And now we repeat, our hope is in the architects. When our men of means awake to the necessity of employing those who are competent to plan a respectable modern structure; and when our architects comprehend that there is something more needed than ability to execute the crude ideas of their employers, the work of modernizing our city will begin.

The real architect must be the leader, the interpreter and teacher under the inspiration of this spirit of grace and symmetry which is now abreast in the land, doubling utility by wedding it to beauty. Modern architecture stands among the fine arts in which Christian civilization is blossoming into a glorious style of life that lives and expends for the public welfare. And as Raphael, Correggio, Murillo and Canova left the lasting impress of their genius upon the world, even in the twilight of the dark ages, establishing types and laws of beauty, by which many generations shall find their tastes baptized. So the real architectural geniuses are now everywhere impressing and shaping the popular tastes of their day. Ask a Bostonian who built South Boston and covered the new made land with princely palaces and created the Public Gardens, and the answer will be, "The architects." Ask an intelligent observer in Chicago who constructed Wabash avenue, and the famous unfinished semicircular about the city Boulevard, and his reply will be, "The architect." Then inquire who first conceived these great enterprises, and wrought upon the public taste and understanding until the work was authorized and the money appropriated, and the same answer will greet you, "The architects." Men thoroughly educated in their grand profession; men of broad culture; men of strong personal influence.

Now, will not the architects ride all over Philadelphia, through its thousands of miles of streets, and take careful notes in and near the suburbs, and then go to their quiet studios and figure all out how to make a modern, worthy city of our noble, slow old town? And then will they not take a few straws, clear showings of the sure net profits, and tickle the ears until they wake up some of the Rip Van Winkles?

AN examination of the expenses of the United States Senate and House of Representatives reveals a few interesting facts. The total amount appropriated for the Senate is $808,369, which does not include $41,000 asked for to pay private secretaries to senators who are not chairmen of committees, and which amount the Senate will certainly add. The salaries of seventy-six senators amount to $380,000. To wait upon these seventy-six senators the services of 216 officers and employees are required, at an annual cost of $300,889. These figures show that the services of three attendants are necessary to each senator, the average annual pay of the attendants being $1391. The attendants are employed not more than ten months of the twenty-four months included in a session of Congress, which would give each of them a salary of $278 per month for the time actually employed.

To pay salaries to 325 representatives and eight delegates, $1,695,000 is required, and to pay 904 officers and employees, $895,133. The difference between these figures and those representing the aggregate required to pay Senate officials, is worthy of notice, as it will explain in some measure the annual squabble between the two branches on this question. The average paid the House officials is $1241 per annum, which is $147 less than that paid by the Senate. The Senate force is equal to three attendants to each senator, while that of the House is less than one for each member. The mileage of senators cost $33,000 per annum, that of representatives $110,624. The Senate mileage divided per capita, would give every senator over $434, a sum sufficient to furnish each of them with first-class passage from San Francisco to London or Paris.

The House mileage foots up $110,624, which is equivalent to $332.20 per cent capita. The allowance per mile is twenty cents each way. At the last session the mileage of officers of the army and navy, when traveling under orders, was fixed at eight cents per mile. At the present session, in the Sundry Civil bill, this allowance was fixed at actual expenses, exclusive of sleeping and parlor car charges, and four cents per mile. Able arguments were made in the House to show that this allowance was ample. If ample to cover the traveling expenses of all other Government officials, why not apply to members of Congress? Here is a good opportunity to save $75,000 per annum. For contingent expenses the bill provides for the Senate $69,980, and for the House $113,367. These sums, divided per capita, would give each senator from the contingent fund $921, and each representative $342. Summarizing the incidental expense of congressmen, exclusive of their annual salary of $5000, each senator costs the Government to provide him with attendance, over $5307 per annum, and the cost of each representative and delegate is $1840. The Senate's total for personal attendance is $408,369; that of the House $612,674.—New York Times.

THE year 1700 is the extreme limit of antiquity, for according to the Secretary of the Treasury any article manufactured after that year will not be admitted into the United States, free of duty under the classification of collections of antiquity.

THE Railway Age gives statistics showing that more railroad track was constructed in 1886 than in any year during the past twenty, save 1881 and 1882. In 1881 the number of miles of track constructed was 9786, in 1882 it was 11,578, and in 1886 it was 8010. This mileage of new railroads in 1886 was distributed as follows: New England, 31 miles; Middle States, 399; South and Southwest, 3332; West and Northwest, 3671, and Pacific coast, 557 miles. Kansas leads with 1520 miles of new railroad, Nebraska comes next with 737 miles, Minnesota with 587 and Texas with 543 miles. The comparative cheapness of steel rails, in greatly lessening the cost of construction, had much to do with the railroad boom of the last year. The result shows that it is not in the interest, though largely in the power, of the steel-rail manufacturers to maintain unduly high prices.

ALTHOUGH the recent convention of the American Institute of Architects held in New York city was small in point of numbers, and the first one that has been held for seven years, yet it turned out to be one of the most important that has been held in the history of that organization. The convention was presided over by Thos. U. Walter, of Philadelphia. Architects were present from Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, and a few cities West and South, besides the New York membership. The meeting was held in the Directors' room of the New York Mutual Life Insurance Company's Building. The President noted the progress of architectural improvement throughout the United States during recent years, and referred to the remarkable spread of architectural societies in the West, and suggested that arrangements might be made with all such existing or prospective organizations to communicate annually with the American Institute of Architects such information as might enable the Institute to mother all of them, and to furnish the entire confederate fraternity with succinct accounts of the status of the profession throughout the country. The Board held seventeen meetings during the year, and transacted business on a wide range of subjects belonging to the Institute. The members expressed themselves as greatly pleased at the springing up of architectural organization throughout the West.

The Philadelphia Chapter, Arthur Truscott, Secretary, reported that monthly social meetings at the members' residences had been held during the past winter. The meetings were well attended and were successful; questions of professional interest and matters of business being discussed during the evening.

The report went on to say that "the prestige of the Chapter has been recognized or acknowledged by the municipal authorities in the matter of the threatened repeal of the bay-window ordinance. This ordinance permits the erection of bay or oriel windows above the first story, of any shape or plan inscribed within an angle of twenty degrees intersecting the party line, the projection being limited to four feet. The ordinance was repealed by Councils, but on objection being urged and arguments advanced by members of the Chapter the Mayor vetoed it. The veto was sustained by Councils, no efforts being made by them to pass an ordinance over it.

Our Chapter has appointed a committee to confer with the carpenters' and master-bricklayers' association, at their request, in regard to the framing and presenting to the Legislature of new and more suitable building-laws for this city.

The discussions in which the Chapter took part, some years ago, in regard to "rules and regulations for the performing of plumbing and drainage," have at last resulted in the enactment of the rules and regulations proposed into an ordinance which now governs this class of work in the city.

Councils Doings.

Bills passed at the special meeting of Common Councils on Thursday last:

To construct sewers in Charlotte street, from George to Canal; Cumberland, from Emerald to Jasper; Fifth, from Columbia avenue 177 feet northward; Kensington avenue, from 340 feet southwest of Tioga street to Venango; Orianna, from Susquehanna avenue to Dauphin; Townsend, from Memphis to Cedar; Turner, from Erie avenue to Butler; Susquehanna avenue, from Third to Orianna; Bright street, from Germantown avenue to Mercer; Mercer, from Brighthouse to Ashmead; Carlton and French, from Fifteenth to Sixteenth; Eleventh, from Susquehanna avenue to Nevada; Nevada, from Eleventh 180 feet eastward; Jefferson and Thompson, from Twenty-eighth to Thirtieth; Reese, from Clearfield to Indiana; Twenty-ninth, from Stiles to Jefferson; Twenty-sixth, from Poplar to Girard avenue; Frankford, from Paul to about 135 feet southeast of Foulkrod; South College avenue, from Twentieth 140 feet westward; Arrott, from Frankford avenue to Franklin; Franklin, from Arrott to Allen; Allen, from Franklin to Penn; Penn, from Allen 130 feet southward; Carlisle, from York to Cumberland; McClellan, from Vienna to Montgomery avenue; Randolph, from Poplar to Girard avenue; Waterloo, from Montgomery to Columbia; Wakefield, from Germantown avenue to Wakefield; Lyceum from Pechin to Mitchell; Ann, from Nineteenth to Twentieth; Thirty-fourth and Duval, to connect the Duval street sewer with the Thirty-fourth street sewer; Turner, from Twentieth to Twenty-first; Baltimore avenue, from Forty-third to Forty-fifth; Preston, from Lancaster avenue to Fairmount avenue; Thirty-fifth, from Haverford to Spring Garden; Budd, from Haverford to Wallace; Fortieth, from Fairmount avenue to Aspen; Woodland, from Forty-third to Forty-seventh; Twenty-eighth, from Mount Pleasant to Jefferson; Thirty-ninth, from Aspen to Fairmount avenue; Atlanta, from Thirtieth to 75 feet east of Union; Fifteenth, from Tasker to Morris; Third, from Spruce to Union; Currant alley, from Spruce to Locust; Watkins, from Seventh to Eighth; Sigel, from Front to Second; Woodstock, from Norris to Diamond; Seventeenth, from Diamond to Susquehanna avenue; Seventeenth, from Venango to Erie; Twenty-ninth and Thirty-first, from Susquehanna avenue to Ridge avenue; Thirty-first, from Susquehanna to Dauphin; Twenty-sixth, from York to Cumberland; Palethorp, from York to Dauphin; Fifth, from Bainbridge to Passyunk avenue; Passyunk avenue, from Fifth to Monroe; Susquehanna avenue, from Sixteenth to Seventeenth, and Arch, from Third to Fifth.

Col. Waring on Sanitation.

Colonel George C. Waring in his lecture recently delivered in this city, said that he believed that unless a sewer was very foul it was better not to have a trap on the main drain, as they were liable to prove ineffective through accumulations of sewage. A proper ventilation of the drain would be preferable. Neither did he believe it necessary to ventilate traps. The soil pipe should be ventilated instead. He regarded the simplest form of house drainage to be the best and most efficient, and that the use of complicated contrivances was neither advisable nor desirable. The principal points to be observed, he said, free movements of both air and water, and thorough flushing of the drainage system.

A Valuable Discovery.

It is a well known fact that many of the mechanical arts belonging to the ancients have been lost, the tempering of copper tools and the welding of copper are among the number. The announcement has been made that James Burns, a Scotch blacksmith, hailing from the shops of the Alleghany Valley Railroad has after many years of patient investigation, succeeded in discovering a process by which copper can be welded as easily as iron, and without any additional facilities except a small bottle containing the necessary chemical, the nature of which is of course kept a profound secret by the discoverer.

Burns has not only given a public exhibition of his work, but claims that the welding process can be accomplished with an ordinary stone and a tack hammer. The importance of this discovery may be better appreciated when it is understood that heretofore it has been necessary to use in the manufacture of steam pipes and other parts of machinery requiring great strength, a solid mass of copper, which by boring and hammering was worked up into the shape desired, this of course increased the cost, and precluded its use in many cases. In the case of the breaking of a pipe or vessel brazing has heretofore been the only method of repairing that could be adopted, this was done by the use of brass as a solder, but should an intense heat strike the repaired part at any time the brass would melt, and the joint destroyed. This discovery is of great value, not only in lessening the cost of producing many articles of copper that are indispensable, but it will also permit the use of old copper in their manufacture, making a difference in the cost of material alone, about three hundred per cent.

The Master Builders' Exchange.

The Master Builders' Exchange is to be located in the rotunda of the Philadelphia Exchange Building Third and Dock street. A lease of the premises has been secured, and suitable alterations will be made during the latter part of March, as soon as the arrangements are completed, a formal opening will take place the membership now amounts to over 200.

A New Method for Tempering Steel.

W. F. Miles, Jr., formerly of Milltown, Ind., but now of Louisville, Ky., it is claimed has discovered a method of tempering steel by means of a bath which renders it so hard that nothing except the diamond equals it. An account is given of experiments having been made on chilled safe steel which was invulnerable against ordinary tools, but which yielded to those experimented with by Mr. Miles in a few minutes. It is claimed that thousands of dozens of small tools can be tempered at the same time in a single bath, and that no single tool will differ from another in the matter of temper in the slightest particular. With a small cold chisel made from soft tire steel, and tempered by Mr. Miles' process, and which although only making a slight impression on the test plate remained uninjured, while a fine imported steel cold chisel failed entirely in making an impression, besides being badly broken and gapped on its edge.

Another Fine Building to be Erected on Chestnut Street.

Mr. C. F. Hazeltine, dealer in fine pictures, whose gallery is now at 1516 and 1518 Chestnut street, has just received plans prepared by the architect Wm. N. Lockington for a fine building which he will erect this spring at 1416 and 1418 Chestnut. The new building will have a front on Chestnut street of 50 feet, and the first and second floors will extend back to a street in the rear which will give a continuous depth of 235 feet. The front building will be composed of stone and brick with terra-cotta trimmings, it will present an imposing appearance, and will be seven stories high, the rear building will be eight stories high. There will be two elevators, and the buildings will be heated by steam. The first floor will be occupied as stores, while the second floor will be arranged as an art gallery and will be occupied by Mr. Hazeltine. Contracts have not been given out either for material or construction work, as the specifications are not finished.

The Supreme Court Decides an Important Question Involving Building and Loan Associations.

Michael Strohm was sued by a Building and Loan Association in Common Pleas No. 3, to recover the principal and arrears of interest of a mortgage for $1,240. Strohm had received only $1932, the difference or $2,268 being the amount of the premium he paid for the loan. In the lower court Strohm claimed as a set-off against the mortgage, the premium and the amounts which he had paid on his twenty-one shares of stock, both of these items were ruled out, and judgment was given for the full amount of the mortgages. Judge Paxson said the damages should be assessed by charging the defendant with the sum actually received on his mortgage, with interest for the same, and crediting him with all actual payments of interest but his payments upon his stock are not to be credited on the mortgage as payments of either principal or interest.

Look after your Cellars.

THE neglect of cellars, is the frequent and unquestionable cause of disease. People of the wealthier class who delegate the entire control of cellar and kitchen to unreliable servants frequently pay a heavy penalty for their indifference and inattention to the most important part of the whole household. A solitary ray of sunshine entering into an open cellar window is of far greater worth to the occupants of a house than all the airing a favorite parlor could get in a year of Sundays.

The father of a family who considers it beneath his dignity to go down the cellar once a week, at least just to see what's going on, is not fit to have a family. Order the cellar windows to be kept open a full half hour every day, go nosing around every chance you get for sewer gas, decayed vegetables, and heaps of rubbish, that should be removed at once, and take our word for it the bloom will return to your child's cheeks, your wife will lose her languid manner and that worst of all diseases diphtheria will not be likely to visit your house no matter where else it goes.

BUILDERS' ITEMS.

Building and Real Estate Notes.

MR. MATHIAS MOYER will erect two frame houses at Lebanon Pa.

ALEX. BALFOUR will erect twenty-four houses on Tioga street.

DANIEL DE TURK will erect a 2-story brick building on Elm street, Reading, Pa.

SAMUEL B. SHOCK, Elkview, Chester Co., will build a new farm house.

DR. H. D. HELLER, of Allentown, Pa., will build several houses this Spring.

OXFORD, Chester County Pa., is to have a new post office building, 27x30 feet.

FORNEY BROTHERS, will erect a large store room at 428 Market street, Bethlehem Pa.

A new brick church is to be built on West Princess street, near Penn street, York, Pa.

DR. COPE, Hatfield, Montgomery county, will build an elegant brick dwelling at once.

A new shoe factory building is under way at Bethlehem Pa., foundation is already laid.

A BUSINESS block, 185x80 feet, will be erected on 13th street, between Willow and Hamilton.

EDWARD A. WEITZEL, is building a two-story brick house on Washington street Reading, Pa.

WILSON REICHARD, will erect a large double brick dwelling on Northampton st., Allentown Pa.

SADSBURYVILLE Chester County Pa., is to have a new school house with all the latest improvements.

CHARLES HENRY, Mt. Airy, expects to build several dwellings on Musgrove street early in the spring.

FRANK JOHNSTON, West Grove, Chester county, has bought a lot and will build a brick house this Spring.

A STONE chapel is to be erected by the Baptists at Lansdowne, a lot having been purchased for that purpose.

WM. H. BOYER, Pottstown Pa., has purchased a building lot 30x140 feet, and will erect a dwelling this spring.

WILLIAM PENN Building Association Reading Pa., has made an appropriation for the erection of four new houses.

MRS. WHARTON, of Germantown has bought a property on Evergreen avenue and will erect two dwelling houses thereon.

THE school directors of Heidelberg, Lehigh county, Pa., have decided upon building four new school houses next season.

H. S. KENT & SON, Hockessin, Del., will build three new houses as soon as spring opens, at Toughkenamon, Chester Co., Pa.

A TEN THOUSAND DOLLAR parish building for the church of the Crucifixion, Bainbridge above Eighth streets, is under consideration.

THE Olivet Baptist Congregation at Lancaster, Pa., will erect a church building to be located at 110 and 112 East Vine street, that city.

THE Phoenix iron company, is preparing to build a steel mill at Phoenixville, and has ordered 1,000,000 bricks to construct the furnaces.

THE proposed enlargement of Broad Street station is the natural result of increasing business. The company owns ground enough already.

MESSRS. WIDENER & ELKIN are building two fine dwellings on North Broad St., in which the Pinkham Electric Lighting apparatus is to cost $3,000.

WORK has been commenced on the new dwelling to be erected by Mr. James C. McGonagle, on First avenue, near Fayette street, Conshohocken, Pa.

MRS. W. F. P. DAVIS, will build four three-story brick houses on Schuylkill avenue, and five two-story houses on Buttonwood street, Reading Pa.

EDWARD WARNER, the well-known tin-roofer of Germantown, will, in a couple of weeks, commence the erection of two houses on Musgrove street, Mt. Airy.

THE property at Broad and Brown streets will be transformed into a four-story hotel for John Wanamaker's female employees, and will be known as Hotel Walton.

RICHARD MCCANN will build eight four-room houses on a new street that is to be opened off of Hancock st., Germantown, Pa. There is a great demand for four-room houses in Germantown.

FRANK IRWIN, in the office of the General Passenger Agent, Philadelphia, has purchased a lot at the corner of Powellton and Monumental avenues, Malvern, West Chester, and will in the Spring erect a new house thereon.

TWO BLOCKS of building lots situated on Fifth and Buttonwood streets, Reading, Pa., have been purchased by Messrs. Fricker, Rehr & Co., of that city, who will erect 20 fine 3-story houses this spring.

THE Philadelphia Press, of the 25th inst., contains a "special" which says that $400,000 are to be expended in the construction of a Theatre to be built at the corner of 50th street and Madison avenue, New York.

JOHN MACONAGHY, 1822 Wharton st., out of 23 new houses on Bancroft st., West side, between Tasker and Morris streets, has already sold 21 of them and houses not yet finished.

JEFFERSON Building Association, No. 2, of Reading Pa., has decided to build 7 two-story brick houses on Green street between Locust and Twelfth. Six of the buildings will be 14 feet and one 16 feet with open front.

THE Pelpher Line Company, of Bethlehem Pa., will erect an extensive warehouse on Walnut street in that city near the Pennsylvania Rail Road. Plans and specifications are being made, contracts have not yet been made.

THE "Poetsch Freezing Process" is a German invention for solidifying soft materials, by artificial freezing, for more convenient removal in large excavations.

AN editorial in Oil City Derrick, says: The bill providing for the erection of 300 houses in Oil City should be taken from the table and railroad through under a suspension of the rules, if necessary. We are suffering for these houses.

MRS. JOHN PAINE, has awarded a contract to Kramer & Pauls for twelve new dwelling houses on North Second street near Linden, Columbia Pa., and Mr. Wm. H. Hougendobler will erect twelve more on the lots adjoining those of Mrs. Paine.

AS soon as the subscriptions to the building fund for the purchase of the lot at the corner of Ninth street and Lehigh avenue amount to $17,300 a new mission building will be erected by the Northeast Convocation of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Pennsylvania. About half of the amount has been subscribed.

EVERY hint upon floor defensing is welcomed by school building committees and town authorities, as well as by all intelligent builders. Many of the more common methods are ineffectual and dangerous in case of fire. In New York immense quantities of locomotive cinders are used between double floors, the ashes having been blown out by steam blast, to allow circulation of air, making the floor lighter and dry.

THE parties who have been so long looking for a sight for a grand hotel somewhere near the Public Buildings are looking at the Protestant Episcopal church property at 15th and Chestnut street. The Dundas property at Broad and Walnut was wanted; one or two other sites were considered and rejected. Those having the matter in hand find it next to impossible to obtain sufficient ground in one piece in the desired locality.

THOMAS GARRITY has purchased the property at the northeast corner of Fourth and Lombard streets, the property being part of the Heriges Estate. Mr. Garrity will demolish the rookeries and erect on the site two handsonestores and three dwellings. Mr. Garrity has also secured the property adjoining the above, and extending to St. Peter's Churchyard. This he will also improve when he gets possession.

D. B. WENDEL, real estate agent, 2452 Frankford avenue, is now engaged in building up the old Fair Hill Mansion grounds. This property is bounded by York, Cumberland, Sixth, and Marshall streets. There are about 500 feet which have not yet been built upon, on which Mr. Wendle will erect this Spring two stores and three private dwellings, fronting on York street, East of Seventh street, and fourteen side-yard houses on Seventh street. These will be thirteen room houses, three stories, hard finish, stone fronts, all modern improvements, and will be heated by steam.

Architects' Notes.

E. L. RICE, JR., an architect at Wilmington, Del., is preparing plans for a new brick building for the Olivet Presbyterian Church, to be located at Third and Franklin streets, in that city.

THE American Institute of Architects, in their secondary session on December 2, in New York, listened to some valuable suggestions from Charles F. Wingate, Sanitary engineer, upon ventilation. He recommends that expensive stained-glass skylights should have open sides for ventilation; and that the downward draught be prevented by wing ventilators, propelled by a cheap electromotor, which has just come into use.

Recent Decisions in Pennsylvania in Relation to Matters Concerning Real Estate and Commercial Law.

Decided by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

BANKS AND BANKING.

Where an owner of a note endorsed it in blank and placed it for collection in a bank which indorsed it payable to its account and transmitted it to its correspondent for collection, who collected it without notice as to who was the real owner, the correspondent bank is liable to the owner for the amount collected, unless they have purchased the note or made advances or given credit upon it in ignorance of the true owner.

In this case the first bank failed before the note was paid and the correspondents sought to offset the proceeds of this note against the debt due by the first bank to them.

DEED.

A deed of land described as being composed of the land inherited by the said Jane E. under the will of her father, Samuel M., deceased, (excepting about thirty acres, more or less sold to J. S.), and also a small piece off the mountain surveys purchased from W. B., passes both the land inherited and the land purchased, except the thirty acres sold out of the land inherited. Such language shows a manifest intention to convey more than one tract of land.

DOWER.

In an action in equity by a widow for an account of the rents, issues and profits of lands to one-third of which she was entitled by the will of her husband, brought against the heirs in possession, held that a decree in partition proceedings instituted by her would not deprive her of her share of such rents, issues and profits accruing between the death of her husband and the date of the decree, and that her right to her share of the proceeds of coal mined on the land would cease only when approved security had been given for the amount of owelty awarded to her on the partition.

FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES.

Where for the purpose of making partition of lands of a decedent among his heirs, the portion thereof allotted to one of the heirs was with his consent and procurement deeded to his wife, to defraud his creditors, a terretenant under the subsequent assignee in bankruptcy of the husband has no standing to defend against a mortgage given by the wife thereon.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.

A married woman may receive as a gift her husband's property from one who has purchased it at a bona fide sheriff's sale on execution against him, and may hold it against the husband's creditors.

MORTGAGE.

The right to retain and deduct usury from the amount of the mortgaged debt under the Act of 1853 is strictly personal to the mortgagor and cannot be exercised by terretenants of the mortgaged premises.

PARTNERSHIP.

Where a banking firm gave its certificate for money deposited with it, and one of the partners subsequently died, the payment of the interest from year to year on the certificate by the survivors who continued the business, is not an assumption of the debt by the new and a release of the old firm, and the estate of the deceased partner continues liable for it.

VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

In an agreement for the sale of the vendor's interest without warranty, express or implied, as to quantity in property described as known by a certain name, situate in certain township, "and the same property conveyed" to the vendor by a certain deed, the reference to the deed is not a covenant that the quantity and the boundaries shall be as therein set forth, but is merely for the purpose of identifying the land in which the vendor owns the interest he is selling.

J. R. SHATTUCK,
Attorney at Law,
58 South Third St., Phila.

—For every 67 kegs of nails made in 1885, 81 kegs were made in 1886. The total output last year being 8,160,973 kegs of 100 pounds each.

—The late John C. Darrah left an estate which is inventoried at $65,926.54.

Properties Subject to Liens.

List of properties subject to lien for removal of nuisances by the Board of Health, which will be returned to the City Solicitor at the expiration of four months from date.

Mortgages filed for week ending Feb. 23, 1887, by days:—21, $83,715 48; 23, $119,079 08; 24, $106,400; 25, $143,400; 26, $268,573, of which one mortgage of $175,000 was on building lots for their immediate improvement.

To those who remember the financial conditions of that period, the following comparative view of monthly mortgage records, during the past seven years, will be interesting and instructive. Although exceptional items disturb the general law of variation, from year to year, there is still visible beneath them the effects of the current financial changes. During those seven years there were fourteen days scattered here and there, on each of which mortgages to exceed $1,000,000 were recorded. There was one day, (August 31, 1882,) on which the record was $160,021,118; there were two of over $10,000,000 each; one $4,000,000; one $3,000,000; two of $2,000,000 each; and six over $1,000,000 each. The total for the seven years was $388,751,280; and the annual average $55,535,897. The mortgages that reached the millions were on railroads, telegraph lines and other corporate and stock property. There was no month with a record less than $1,000,000. The largest, $161,373,119, was recorded in August, 1882. The least, $1,039,825, was August, 1880. Excluding the above largest referred to we see in the totals for '80, '81 and '82 evidence of the steady increase of investment that characterized those booming years. In the jump of '83 there is manifest the increase of mortgage loans to pull through that year of depression and calamities. The loans of '84 were fewer and smaller from caution and general retrenchment. Those of '85 and '86 were largely for investment, as the result of returning confidence and enterprise. Could we easily distinguish between loans from necessity, as the results of extravagance and those for prudent investment, the Monthly Mortgage Records would be a legible and significant chapter of current history. The average for the first six months of last year was $4,531,746; for the last six months, $3,283,209. The average of 1886 shows $12,408,175; January of 1887, $13,414,723.

The total amount of mortgages placed upon city real estate during February, up to Saturday evening, the 19th, was $1,908,202 44. We shall hereafter report the amount of city mortgages weekly, giving monthly and annual summaries.

The total for January was $13,414,723 59. The weeks totals were as follows:—Week ending January 8th, $710,158; 15th, $901,563; 22d, $10,861,805; 31st, $955,201. A mortgage was filed January 20th for $10,056,800.

—A bill to cover elevated railway legislation has been sent to Harrisburg.

—The Board of Health has recently adopted a resolution requesting the Chief Engineer and Surveyor not to issue any permit to make connections with the public sewers until the plumber applying for said permit presents a printed certificate of the approval of the plan he has submitted to the Department. Uniformity of practice and efficient work are to be subserved by this resolution. The experience of recent years has shown clearly that "approval" of some kind was the missing link.

TO MAKE THE OUTSIDE BETTER.

An architect must of necessity be a learned man, and must know many things that he can't find in books. The quality of building material changes faster than books.

The architect knows how to specify for a good tin roof. Does he know how to obtain it? He wants the owner to be satisfied and to know that he gets the roof he pays for.

There is just one way; only one way—if it is the best tin he is after—and that is to specify—"every sheet stamped with the BRAND and THICKNESS."

The brand is "GILBERTSON'S OLD METHOD." The thickness is IC or IX.

If the tin is not stamped, you may or you may not get it. How are you to know after the roof is on? You may say it is not the proper tin. The roofer may say it is.

Our tin is a sheet of steel, covered with all the coating it will carry. You can't see through it—you can't even guess the thickness after the roof is laid.

The brand we have mentioned is guaranteed in all respects to do anything required of a first class roof—guaranteed by us to our customers, and to us by the maker—that it will stand all the tests claimed for it—and more too.

No similar guarantees are offered today by other importers with their plates—that is, guarantees that are so direct, positive or convincing.

A guarantee "equal to something else" is no guarantee at all.

A good roof should last thirty to forty years, without any other expense than painting.

Inferior tin may last five years—often does not last that long—then the expense begins and keeps on.

The first cost of a good roof is but a trifle more than that of inferior tin—in the long run much less.

The above facts cannot be contradicted.

Real Estate Record

BUILDERS' GUIDE.

[ENTERED AT THE PHILADELPHIA POST OFFICE AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.]

VOL. II.—NO. 9.

PRICE 15 CENTS

News Items.

—Joseph Escherick's estate is valued at 121,876.72.

—The New York Academy of Music has been sold at auction for $300,000.

—The number of registered plumbers in the city is officially reported as 520.

—Slatington, Pa., shipped nearly a half-million dollars worth of slate during 1886.

—For approved plans, the one architect furnishing all, shall be paid, for the Capitol, $15,000; for the Library, $1000; for the Executive Mansion, $1000.

—There appears to be no creditable authority for the report that Atlantic City is about to connect itself by an elevated road with its western suburb, Philadelphia.

—The earnings of the West Jersey Railroad Company for 1886 amounted to $1,352,455.06. Its expenses amounted to $849,184.13, making its net earnings $503,273.93. It paid $379,790.50 in interest and dividends, leaving a net balance of $123,483.43 to be transferred to the credit of its profit and loss account.

—The proposed reduction of street car fares from six to five cents, is made in obedience to public opinion, and to conciliate the powerful opposition rather unexpectedly developed at Harrisburgh through the efforts of a few public spirited citizens of Philadelphia. The meeting at the Academy of Music afforded an opportunity to the people to express themselves in a way that will not be lost sight of on the legislature.

A Contract of a Married Woman Void.

“At common law any contract of a married woman is void, and the only modification of this rule is the act providing that judgment may be rendered against a wife in a joint action against her and her husband, when the debt sued for is contracted by the wife or incurred for articles necessary for the support of her family. Neither common law nor statute warrants this action. The object of the act was to enable the married woman to procure food, clothing and other things of necessity, but while that contract is productive of nothing that will subserve that use it is neither within the spirit and meaning nor letter of the act.”

This is the decision of the Superior Court in the case of Henry H. Brown vs. Mrs. Ella G. Fell. The case was tried in Common Pleas, No. 3, where Brown obtained a verdict. The suit was for household goods purchased by Mrs. Fell through an agent from Brown.

Property Owners Want More Protection Against Fire.

The fire fiend is doing grand work all over the country, the waste of millions of valuable property goes on unchecked. The fire insurance companies remain perfectly happy so long as the insured will stand just a little more tariff, and there's enough left after paying losses to make the regular dividends. Property owners will realize ere long that there are two sides to the question, and the companies will realize it also, when they are brought face to face in competition with mutual companies composed of property owners who will take their own risks. The fact is, a feeling of dissatisfaction is creeping into the minds of the owners of large properties who realize that no matter how substantial the companies may be in which their insurance is placed, the present system of inspection affords little or no protection, and is entirely too inadequate to guarantee the security desired. A fraction of the enormous sum the companies are compelled to pay from year to year for the national fire loss, would support a system of inspection which would prevent, at least, fifty per cent. of the fires that occur yearly. The REAL ESTATE RECORD would suggest, that a meeting of the Presidents of the Fire Insurance Companies be called at an early day for the purpose of giving this question due consideration, and no better man could be found than Major Veale, who as health officer, has displayed wonderful ability to formulate and carry out in the interest of the fire insurance companies of this city, a system of espionage which would result in great saving to them, and which would be shortly followed by the companies of every city in the whole country, after which the system could be made a national one.

Its Effect on Real Estate.

The Interstate Commerce Law may produce some phenomenal results. One of the possibilities spoken of is the shipment of grain from California by water to New York—a rather extreme supposition. Yet a heavy export trade in California is maintained with Great Britain, and why, therefore, not with some Atlantic ports. The business interests everywhere, large and small, will watch the operations of this law with deep interest. The railroad managers who have for years predicted an unsettling of legitimate traffic and trade conditions under such a law now bend to the supreme law making power, but with muttering predictions of damaging results. The law is in the nature of an experiment. What the railroad managers fear is that they may lose considerable percentage of their long hauls, and what some business interests fear is that they will be deprived of far-away customers by reason of the increased freights which long hauls at proportionately higher freight rates involve. But on the other hand, the short-haul interests will be correspondingly benefited. If buyers can be supplied with material carried one hundred miles, instead of one thousand miles, they are that much better off, even though the seller, one thousand miles away, should lose his one thousand mile distant customer. The harm that the old system of railway management has done has been to restrict the natural development of near-by resources, and artificially develop the resources of far-off sources of supply; and all this simply to increase the freight fund of railroads. That is to say, the community has lost, to continue the numerical illustration, $5 for instance, in higher prices, in order that the railway system may pocket $1 more for freight than they will now probably be able to do.

The new system means the legitimate development of nearer resources, if there is any soundness in the position maintained by the successful reformers. They assert, and no doubt correctly, that railway traffic has been abnormally developed, and that the business interests have been subordinated to mere traffic interests. If the law is good for anything it will, besides equalizing freight rates, give increased real estate value to property through the substitution of natural for artificial conditions, and by the abrogation of arbitrary, instead of business rules, for the exchange of products. Millions of dollars worth of real estate, mines, timber tracts and agricultural lands are depreciated by arbitrary and unnatural traffic rates. Even our Berks and Delaware county farmers have, for the last two or three years, been trying to get away from farms and farming, and our industries, big and little all over the country, have been obliged to first, and last, and all the time study railroad freight schedules and the autocrats of the freight schedules, rather than the legitimate conditions affecting their industries. Property is worth what it yields, and railroad freights, which reduce the demand for products of any sort manufactured or agricultural, depreciate the value of the property out of or by which they are produced.

But there are two sides to all this. The mass of the people along the Atlantic coast live by shop and office and mill industry, and want Chicago wheat, and Michigan lumber, and Lake Superior ore and copper, and Alabama iron and cotton, and Colorado wool, just as cheap as they can get them. Will they get them as cheap when the new law gets its grip on.

The Keystone Trust, Safe Deposit and Insurance Company.

Among the charters granted at the State Department of Pennsylvania, was one to the above company on Thursday last. The field is still open for a good company, and the harvest seems ripe for those whose officers and board of directors guarantee security, fidelity and intelligence. We understand that this new company has as its progenitors and active members, men of the most assured record from well-earned labor and life service. Among the directors is Hon. Robert E. Pattison, ex-Governor of Pennsylvania. It is rumored that he is to be the President of the company. He was the watch and ward of the city treasury, and his fidelity to every trust in the past is the guarantee for the future of this company.

Refers with permission to William M. Singerly,

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, MARCH 7, 1887.

THE thirty large cotton seed mills to be erected through the South by the Phil. Armour corporation in opposition to the American Cotton Oil Trust Company which now practically monopolizes the business of making cotton seed oil, will make a lively demand for building material in the sections where the new mills are located.

THE day after the Traction Company announced the reduction of fares to five cents, with all transfers unchanged, their stock sold higher than at any time within a month. The same effect was produced when the New York Elevated lines reduced their fares to five cents straight; their stock advancing $30 per share. Though corporations are said to have "no souls," they do absorb a little wisdom now and then, on the endomose principle.

THE Supreme Court on the appeal of the Pennsylvania Schuylkill Valley R. R. Co., from a heavy assessment of damages, for taking ice dam and ice house property near Reading, reserved its decision. The ice house had a storage capacity of 5,000 tons; and the pond tank afforded ice sufficient to fill it. The franchise was a very valuable one on account of the quality of the ice, and the proximity to Reading. The jury upon a view, awarded the plaintiff $15,000 damages; and the Common Pleas increased the amount to $17,000.

A MAN that will sell rum would lie, consequently any law based upon a system of taxation according to the amount of annual sales is simply absurd, it is even worse; for it would prove to be a solid premium to the best liar. What we need is a good round sum from each dealer in liquor amounting in the aggregate to what it costs the good citizens of this city to keep its Almshouse and corrective institutions. If the people have the nerve to let the legislative widows at Harrisburg know that they mean business on this high-license question they can get just the law needed to make the liquor interest of the State bear a large share of the cost imposed upon them through its influences.

THE question as to whether the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has the power to contract its accommodations to business men because of their opposition to its pet measures of street stealing, etc., is one which involves so much of the vital interest of this city, that it is better that the issue be met at once in the courts if necessary, in order that it may be settled for all times. The letter of General Agent Latta in behalf of his company, to F. R. Pemberton, President Pennsylvania Warehouse and Safe Deposit Company to the effect that the success of the latter's siding on North Penn street, as well as its connections on Delaware avenue depends entirely upon the Warehouse Company's co-operation with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's scheme to lay its tracks on Penn street, expresses an intent to persecute where it cannot command. It is high time that the wings of this high flying corporation were clipped, or its arrogance may lead it beyond its powers of flight.

It's quite a pity that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company was not included as part of the subject matter for discussion at the recent indignation meeting at the Academy, between the arrogance of this company and the prostituting influences of the widows of the Traction Company on the one hand and the sycophants that are sent to the State Legislature on the other, our citizens and business men have a hard road to travel. The fact of a resurrection day coming is a comforting assurance anyhow.

IN view of all that is expected of them, it may be proper to inquire whether our home architects are really keeping pace with the times. This query is no disrespect to them. The "times" in this important department are exceedingly fleet-footed. And the steps are so short and quick that only the smart stepper will keep pace. Schlegel, a celebrated German writer, has styled architecture "frozen music." He must have been at once an admirer of architecture and a devotee of music. And he must also either have ignored the necessarily fluid or plastic condition of the general art, or have contemplated the finished and fixed products of that art. If architecture had remained purely Arabian, Egyptian, Indian, Greek or Gothic it would have been quite an easy task for a modern architect to keep pace with the slow and slight changes which marked its progress. But with progressive taste and invention came the fondness for variety, and so our almost infinitely varied modern composite style. To keep pace with progress—and especially Yankee progress—in this, as has been said, requires the nimble stepping of a thoroughly enterprising architect. For, not only must he "move on," in the aesthetic spirit of his profession, but be intellectually and mechanically apt in "catching on" to the rapid multiplication of contributions to comfort. The enterprising and ingenious architect will frequently visit other cities, study the best products of his profession—the most select pieces of "frozen music," and confer freely with other architects. One should not forget the valuable and voluminous literature of the profession; but it is indispensable to read the living books, which, being not yet "frozen," can explain and revise themselves.

AN illustration of the tendency of itemizers to snap up fancies, and retail them as facts, occurred recently in a communication from the suburbs, to the effect that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company had purchased a piece of property in that vicinity for a suburban depot, and that a track was to be laid connecting with the New York line.

An interview being kindly accorded by the Company's Real Estate Manager, Mr. Wilson, we learned that the statement was erroneous in one particular, which is that there was no foundation whatever for the statement.

Some news-gathers possess wonderful facilities for learning the plans of railroads long before they are known to railroad managers themselves. Such unfounded reports never could get abroad if the writers better understood the methods pursued by corporations. If property required for so important a work as establishing a depot and constructing a branch was to be bought, agents or officers would be instructed to purchase the requisite lands, without themselves knowing, as a rule, the purpose for which they were bought. In no other way could a corporation protect itself from extortion, and keep its interests in its own hands.

A NEW YORK paper instances a case where mortgages for $151,000 were recorded the other day against lots which had been sold only a few days before for $135,000. The same paper in commenting on this fact, says that the use of "dummies" is now very common in real-estate transactions in New York. It is strange that financial institutions can be found which are willing to engage in such questionable transactions.

THERE are over eleven million dollars worth of property and corporate assets in this city belonging to corporations which pay no State tax. The suits pending which are to decide whether this property is liable for taxes to the State, ought to be decided with as much promptitude as circumstances will allow. Municipal taxation at best is a grievous burden to the people and their industries, and all forms of wealth should bear their just share. If it be true that there are legal reasons why over eleven million dollars worth of property and corporation assets in this city should go untaxed, then the fact should be made known. If it is a matter of legislative neglect that so much wealth is unproductive of taxes, then the oversight should be rectified. A matter of $200,000 in the way of taxes is worth looking after.

Municipalities should guard themselves in the matter of taxation. There is too great a tendency already among manufacturers to seek quarters outside of our large cities. The advantages of city location are becoming fewer every year. Labor agitations add to the anxiety to escape city surroundings, but the prime cause is to be found in excessive taxation, relatively speaking, at least. Corporations have ways of escaping taxation which individuals have not, and therefore, they should be the object of closer scrutiny. There should be no question as to the right of the State to tax corporate assets. But for the many other smaller matters constantly engaging the attention of the law-makers, this would have received attention long ago, even in spite of the powerful influences always at work to protect corporations from sharing their just burdens.

THIS week the New York Bar Association discusses both the majority and minority reports on the block system of indexing property. The discussions which have been had, have been of an exciting character. The lawyers, as a rule, cling to the old cumbrous and costly system.

THE people of Frankford and their friends and sympathizers down town, are determined to have an elevated railroad. The discrimination against them by the city companies, in adhering to the ten-cent rate, instead of dropping in proportion to the other reduced rates, has given a fresh impetus to this revival of last fall's movement; and under the prospective State law, removing some disabilities from Passenger Elevated Roads, they feel sanguine of speedy success.

It appears that the opponents of elevated roads in the city, have their minds on the greater thoroughfares, like Chestnut and Market streets; while the Frankford enterprise has a feasible route all planned, steering entirely clear of such streets.

Their projected line contemplates Front street via Venango to Frankford.

The West Philadelphians are also clamoring for rapid transit, if so undignified a term can be applied to a strong, deep determination based upon an intelligent appreciation of all the advantages, as well as of the difficulties in the way. But their preference will probably settle upon an underground road.

Beyond all question, these two enterprises should be immediately authorized by the city. It would put in practical comparison the two great competitive plans, and enable capital, the people and the authorities, to compare results, year by year, from the same starting point, for the benefit of future projects.

THE amount of money at interest controlled by Philadelphia money lenders is something over one hundred and thirty million dollars. Within the past few months considerable capital has been attracted here by the liberal earnings which investments secure. Philadelphia financiers are proverbially conservative and prudent, and lend no encouragement to wild cat schemes, and as a consequence, capital is attracted to the channels which our financial judgment recommends.

HEALTH OFFICER M. VEALE, on retiring from the Board, made some valuable suggestions. The number of deaths in 1886 were less than those of 1885, by 1387. Neglect to register births according to law, gives an incorrect record testimony that there were 73,255 more deaths than births in the city during the past 25 years;—while during 1886, the births exceeded the deaths by 2,216. There is at present no small-pox in the city; and a low average of deaths from diphtheria, scarlet and typhoid fevers. He believes that health conditions may be greatly increased by attention to water supply and the sewers; and that although the Board of Health has no appropriations by which to promote this object, it may accomplish great good by compelling the proper authorities to do so. Major Veale recommended a house-to-house inspection, to be continued until every cellar, cess-pool, lane and alley should be thoroughly viewed and reported on. He stated that many of the larger buildings occupied for offices and store-rooms have cellars that demand the immediate attention of the Board of Health. Their occupants get accustomed to their unsanitary condition, and do not take the hint even when their employees go home sick with typhoid symptoms. From May 5th, 1884, to Dec. 31st, 1886, a little over two years and a half, the receipts of his office were $130,689.70;—from Sept. 9th, 1881, to May 5th, 1884, an equal period, they were $75,123.40;—an increase of $55,566.30. The receipts for February were $1,913.57; disbursements, $498.10;—the balance paid into the City Treasury, $1,415.47.

THE Board of Health received a protest from Peter E. Scheetz, against the construction of the projected sewer on Kensington avenue from Venango street, to 340 feet below Tioga, on the ground that, as there is no possible outlet near the point of termination, except on his property, it will result in great danger and damage to him, and he threatens to institute a suit against the city, if the proposed sewer is built.

A NUMBER of Philadelphia capitalists, including the United Gas Improvement Company, George Philler, of the First National Bank, President, have formed a syndicate, and acquired a controlling interest in the Chicago Gas-light and Coke Company, whose capital is $5,000,000, and its out-put exceeding that of our own city's gas works. While we admire the enterprise and sagacity of these gentlemen, and wonder that Chicago should allow the scepter to go abroad, it is to be regretted that capital should be permitted to leave Philadelphia!

OUR city is becoming more and more cosmopolitan, but we lack many of the facilities demanded by our location. There is a demand for nicely fitted up, moderate sized apartments. There are now numerous partially occupied houses—centrally situated—poorly tenanted because very much out of order. These are now used as offices. Why do not the owners of such properties—particularly those around our public squares—remodel them, and procure steady tenants? We feel confident that such would bring to their owners better rents. This demand for apartments is most probably caused by the poor services rendered by the passenger cars, and we ask when that service will be rendered as it should be to our dissatisfied citizens?

THE building up of the new parts of the city without a square here and there being devoted to trees and grass and walks, is a mistake that is too serious to be continued. The importance of these squares to the working people is little understood by the majority of our citizens. There are thousands of workingmen's families in this city to whom the beauties of Fairmount are as strange as though it never existed; the struggle for bread is with them a problem involving too close calculation to permit of even the expenditure of a single car fare, and a tired workingman has little appetite for a long walk even to Fairmount.

These squares are breathing places for the poor who on hot summer nights come from the sweltering courts and alleys and breathe the air perfumed with the fragrance of grass and trees. It is all they see of nature, yet to them this diminutive area yields the self-same soothing, softening, restful, refreshing influences which the rich man seeks and pays for with unstinted hand.

These squares are the poor man's acre, and many a poor man's darling would have died were it not for the evenings spent beneath their trees.

Jumbo Park should have been purchased by the city and devoted to the people's use. The northeastern part of the city needs several of these squares even now, and the money would be well spent in securing them.

Real Estate Exchange Located.

John A. Purcell has been elected Superintendent of the Real Estate Exchange. The Exchange has located at 435 Chestnut street, People's Bank building.

Recent Decisions in Pennsylvania in Relation to Matters Concerning Real Estate and Commercial Law.

Decided by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

ASSIGNMENTS FOR BENEFIT OF CREDITORS.

While a man retains dominion over his property, he may pay whom he pleases, or secure whom he pleases; he may encumber or convey his property, and may prefer creditors as he chooses by payment or transfer.

It is only when a man loses dominion over his property, and transfers that dominion to another, that the right of a creditor to a pro rata dividend attaches.

COVENANTS.

Under a deed of general warranty in the ordinary form, containing the words "grant, bargain and sell," the grantee has a right to recover of the administrator of his grantor, the money paid by him as collateral inheritance tax, which was a lien upon the property when conveyed by said deed.

The words "grant, bargain and sell" in the deed, under the act of May 28th, 1715, created a covenant against encumbrances, which was broken as soon as made by this lien, and plaintiff being compelled to pay it to save his property, has a right to recover it.

GIFT.

Where a parol gift of land is executory, and to be consummated by a deed which was not executed until after the owner conveyed the land to a third person, as against the latter's title, the gift is invalid, although evidenced by letters from the owner, and although the one to whom the parol gift was made, and deed promised, has taken, and is in possession at the time, of the conveyance.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.

Where a wife purchased property after her husband became insolvent, she must show that she bought it on the credit of her separate estate, or paid for it therefrom, or it will be liable for his debts.

The act of 1872 protects a wife's separate earnings and property from liability for the debts of her husband, yet it does not permit her to buy property for him under cover of her name, nor to fraudulently conceal his property to the injury of his creditors.

PARTNERSHIP.

A surviving partner may by confession of judgments, which bind his individual real estate, prefer the creditors of the firm to his individual creditors. Such a preference is not inconsistent with or impaired by his subsequent assignment of all his individual property, real and personal, and the real and personal property of the firm to a trustee for the benefit of creditors. The assignee takes his real estate subject to the lien of the judgments.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

A judgment of a justice of the peace in favor of a lessor and against the tenant, that the latter deliver up possession of the demised premises to the former, in proceedings regularly instituted, is binding and conclusive between the parties, unless reversed on appeal duly taken, and is a defense in an action of trespass against the lessor brought to recover damages suffered by the tenant's wife from the legal execution of the writ of possession.

MECHANICS' LIEN.

A mechanics' claim sets forth with sufficient particularity the items, amounts and time of the work done and materials furnished, which alleges a certain amount due for work done and materials furnished within six months past, and refers to a bill thereof annexed, which sets out a specific amount due for a specified number of yards of plastering done on a house, and materials therefor furnished within certain dates.

TWO LARGE brick stores and dwellings will be erected by Patrick McGrath, of Conshohocken, next to the Market House Hotel in that city.

THE personal estate of Wm. S. Crother is appraised at $100,089 50, of Matilda Crother at $43,891.37, and of Margaret A. West at $34,772.97.

DR. PAUL MARKLEY, Hathboro', Montgomery county, will build a fine house this Spring, on a lot he has just purchased, on Byberry avenue.

CHAS. H. WESTLAR, residing near the corner of Cumberland and Eighth streets, is to build thirty or forty 8-room houses at Twelfth and Huntingdon streets.

THE Seibert property at Jenkintown, Pa., is to have a large college or Technical School erected on it this Spring, together with cottages for teachers and professors.

ROBERT WETHERELL & Co., Chester, Pa., will erect a new machine shop at the northeast corner of Sixth and Upland streets, Chester, Pa. It will be two stories high.

FRANK DE LA LANE, 2201 Trinity Place, Philadelphia, has purchased 27 acres adjoining the property of Geo. W. Childs, at Wootton, and will erect a fine residence.

ISAAC GROSS, Plumstead township, Bucks county, Pa., will build one of the largest barns in the township. Tobias Keller will also build a barn in New Britain township.

S. A. R. COX will build four 2 story brick houses, 12x40 feet, at Pine and Perry streets, and two more, 12x20, on Gold street, between Line and Pine, Camden, New Jersey.

A MR. MULLIGAN, of this city, will erect a 3-story brick store and dwelling on First avenue below Fayette street, Conshohocken. He bought the lot from Samuel Tinkler, of that place.

It is reported that the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company will erect a new depot on the West side of Broad street at Callowhill street, when the old depot will be abandoned.

BENJAMIN HILT, Esq., of Frankford, has purchased the Hahnemann Medical College building on Filbert street, this city, and will alter it into a hotel, with ninety rooms. Hazelhurst & Huckel are the architects.

A BIG building boom is promised for Chester, Pa. The merchants are crying for larger stores. Many new dwellings are promised for Chester, North Chester and South Chester this Spring.

DIXON & HALLOWELL, S. W. cor. Ridge and Fairmount avenues, report business as looking up and renting much better. They have just sold the property at the S. W. cor. Ridge ave. and Broad st. for $18,000.

DR. W. P. KISTLER, Allentown, Pa., will build twelve 2-story brick houses on Liberty street, between Eighth and Ninth streets, and five more on Lumber street, between Gordon and Liberty streets, at the above place.

MR. WM. BOOTHBY, the wholesale oyster dealer, 303 South Water street, was the purchaser of the property at 1229 Chestnut street, for $76,000. It has a frontage of 21 feet on Chestnut street, and extends back to Clover street.

THE Weiss Farm, Washington Lane, near Stetson avenue, Germantown, Pa., has been selected as the site for a national crematory. $30,000 will be expended in new buildings. Horace M. Royal, Germantown, is the secretary of the company.

THE Marshall street front of the long vacant lot on the corner of Lehigh avenue and Sixth street, is to be covered by 316 feet of 2-story 6-room dwellings, brick, with marble basement. Mr. Bowers, of 709 Sanson street, has charge of the whole property.

THE KEYSTONE NATIONAL BANK will erect a 7-story building at the southwest corner of Chestnut and Juniper streets. It will have an ornamental tower reaching 120 feet from the ground. The building will be 32x111 feet, and will cost $100,000. Willis G. Hale is the architect.

JOHN LOCKLIN, on Eighth street, between Cumberland and Huntingdon, who built 95 houses last year in that vicinity, is commencing the erection of a still larger number this year. For two years past he has been recognized as the heaviest builder in Northern Philadelphia.

CHESTER, Pa., capitalists are considering a proposition to join the heirs of the Abraham Blakeley estate in forming a company, to be known as the North Ward Corporation, for the purpose of erecting buildings on several acres belonging to the estate, which are to be cut up into building lots.

MR. HOUSEKEEPER, of the firm of Heisse & Housekeeper, builders, who have done a large business in the way of building and selling, is said to have erected within the past 8 years more houses in that northern region than any other two firms. They are busy as ever this Spring, and 1887 will add materially to their laurels.

ARCH STREET, of this city, below Fifth street, is to be still further improved and adorned, at Nos. 429, 431 and 433, by three fine 6-story stores, to be immediately erected by Mr. Henry C. Lea, of No. 2000 Walnut street, and the same gentleman is preparing to build a 7-story structure, to occupy two lots on the north side of Market street, above Twelfth street, to be devoted to the wholesale trade.

MESSRS. LEVI BROS., S. W. cor. Sixth and South streets, have purchased the adjoining properties, 602, 604 and 616 South street; price $17,000. These buildings will not be disturbed until the leases held by the present occupants expire, but the firm will this Spring make extensive alterations, and will make an addition of 20x40 feet to their building at 6th and South sts.; they will also improve the properties at 606 and 608 South 6th street, which are also owned by the firm.

CONSIDERABLE improvement is being made just now in the pleasant little hamlet of Marion Junction, five miles out on the Pennsylvania Railroad. Quite a number of small and medium houses are going up, and some very fine ones. Among the latter is an elegant mansion being erected by the widow of Matthew Balrd. This is considered a very desirable location for those who wish a healthy rural residence while doing business in town. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company issue commutation tickets, running three months, two rides daily, for $10. This is 5¢ cents a ride, only a shaving above present city car-fare rates.

NEW BUILDINGS FOR WILMINGTON, DEL.

CLEAVER & HOLLIS will erect a store west side of Market street, between Second and Third streets.

GIDEON B. SNYDER will erect a store west side of Wilson street, between Ninth and Tenth streets.

EDWARD C. HANNA will erect a dwelling west side of Jefferson street, between Eighth and Ninth streets.

ELEN GRUBB will erect three dwellings north side of Second street, between Walnut and Poplar streets.

THOMAS H. MELVIN will erect five dwellings east side of Spruce street, between Ninth and Tenth streets.

JORDAN A. WILSON will build a store and dwelling south side Seventh street, between King and French streets.

JOHN C. & THOMAS B. BRISON will erect a store and dwelling south side of Seventh street, between Shipley and Orange streets.

DANIEL BUBENGER will build a coffee-roasting establishment on the south side of Front street, between West and Washington streets.

Architects' Notes.

Geo. PLOWMAN, 1013 Chestnut street, is working on plans for new houses at Fernwood, and at Ardmore.

MR. P. A. WALSH, of 429 Walnut st., says it will take at least two weeks to get present work off the board—to begin new work.

J. F. STUCKERT prepared plans for the stone basements of thirty-four small houses on 31st and Styles streets, for which Mr. B. Larkin is the contractor.

WM. H. DECKER, 1401 Chestnut street, is working on plans for 10 houses at 39th and Walnut streets, two of stone and eight of brick; also three new houses at 42d and Fairmount avenues, and 6 on Forty-third street, near Aspen street.

DRAWINGS ready for contract are now in the hands of I. Hobbs & Son for seven tenement houses on Callowhill above Twenty-fifth street. They are to be constructed in brick, with cheap finish inside. They are intended for cheap dwellings, and are owned by James I. Ryan, who was contractor for a section of the B. & O. tunnel.

CHAS. M. BURR, JR., 717 Walnut street, has drawings for a fine brick house now being erected at Bethlehem, Pa. It has three stories, 45x65, with slate roof, and finished within in hardwoods, oak and cherry principally. It will have a large hall, with elaborate fireplace at the end. Mantles of ornamental brickwork, and a triple stained-glass window in stairway. Mr. Thos. Hunst, of Bethlehem, is the builder.

A. J. BAYDEN, 413 Walnut st., has plans for the remodeling of Col. McClure's city house, 1825 Spruce street. Among the improvements will be a brown-stone front, and a library extension in the rear. Also drawings for the remodeling of the old Nice House at Lawnton into two tenements with stone first story, and shingle and frame work above, and several country houses of two and-half stories.

FRANK L. PRICE, has drawings prepared for two pairs of houses at Lansdowne; one pair to be entirely of brick, and the other to be brick to second story, and frame and shingle work above, and three stories high, and both pairs to be finished with white pine within. And also drawings for a pair of houses at Mt. Airy, to be constructed of Germantown stone to second story, and frame and shingles two stories above, finished in oak and white pine, and beautiful stained-glass windows in vestibule and hall. The buildings are quite large—50 feet wide by 65 feet deep, without the porches, and have an average height of 32 feet. Also a house at Newtown, Pa., all stone, three stories and attic, finished in oak and pine.

HAZLEHURST and HUCKEL have drawings for a two-story brick factory to be erected near Rockaway N. J. Also for the remodeling of the old Hahnemann Medical College building into a hotel of ninety rooms with steam elevator and heater, with an entire new front on Filbert. The material in building will be Philadelphia pressed brick and brown stone. Mr. Hilt is the owner. They have drawings for a city residence on Walnut street above Juniper, south side, for J. Warren Coulston, Esq., to be built of brick and stone, the first story entirely of stone—and several rows of up-town houses, among which may be mentioned those of Messrs. Rhodes, on Ninth, below Lehigh. Hazlehurst and Huckel removed from 508 Walnut street to their elegant new offices at 410

AMONG the buildings to be erected by J. E. and A. L. Pennock are, a fine nine-story fire-proof iron, brick and stone building on corner of Fourth and Chestnut streets, for Brown Bros. & Co. It will be finished throughout with hard woods, with marble stairway from top to bottom. The exterior will present a fine appearance; the first story of Indiana line stone, and the stories above, buff bricks with Indiana line stone trimmings. It will have two Otis Bros. high-speed elevators. It will have the latest sanitary plumbing. The drawings for the building were prepared by Mr. Chandler, of this city. Also, the fine stone house for Henry W. Brown, Germantown, designed by McKen Meade and White. It will comprise three stories, 60x80, and will be entirely fire and vermin proof. The heavy spruce beams upon which three-inch planks are placed, will be shown. Mortar will fill a space between the planks and floor above, of every story. The roof will be of shingles laid in mortar. A beautiful stained-glass window, designed by New York artists, will adorn the stairway. The Philadelphia Fencing and Sparring Club building on 16th and Barker streets, will comprise three stories of brick, 50x106. The first floor will be used for stores, the second for committee rooms, reading, dressing and bath rooms, and sparring and fencing room, and the third will be used for the gymnasium and rubber track. The part above will be left open, and the wood and iron work painted. This gives the third story a height of about forty feet clear. The architects for the building are Cope and Stewartson. The warehouse for the Philadelphia Trust Company will be four-stories high, with pressed brick front and brown stone trimmings. Messrs Pennock have also a row of twelve houses for F. M. and H. Brooks, all very similar; English halls with fire-places and mantles lined in natural wood, and having the best plumbing arrangements and Decoco water closets; a house for W. G. Huey on 1526 Mascher street, three stories of stone, with brown stone trimmings; and the Orthopedic Hospital on 17th and Summer streets, to be built of brick and brown stone, with marble staircase and elevator, and entirely fire-proof. Mr. Chandler is the architect for this building.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, MARCH 14, 1887.

PRICE 15 CENTS.

A Good opening for Capitalists.

The unequal distribution of labor and capital in the United States is undoubtedly one of the greatest drawbacks to the prosperity of this nation. That money and labor should be so plentiful in the east and so scarce in the west is not only a pity but a great misfortune. Commencing at St. Paul in Minnesota, and Omaha, in Nebraska, the dearth of men and money extends all over the northwest to the Pacific coast. A gentleman of experience recently informed me that the banks of St. Paul were entirely inadequate to do the business of the city, and that money was scarce there all the time.

We all know what has been the case in Omaha. This gentleman said: "If a good bank with a capital of $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 was to open its doors at St. Paul it would have business from the very day of opening, and all its money would find ready employment at 7 or 8 per cent." The further you go west from St. Paul and Omaha the greater the want of money is felt. At Fargo, Dakota, it is worth 10 and 12 per cent.; at Bismark, 12 and 14 per cent. and at Miles City, Montana, 12 and 15 per cent. I have loaned money in Montana at 18 and 24 per cent.

Most of these loans, it is true, were in small sums of $500 to $1,000, but they were none the less lucrative on that account.

Many men wanted houses to shelter their families, and to build a $1,000 house they had but $500 and borrowed the other $500 with which to build. They had good trades and found ready employment at $3, $4, $5, and even $6, per day and they did not fear the future. The rate of interest was enormously high, but their labor was valuable and they could afford to pay high interest. They usually wanted money for four, six and twelve months and invariably paid all they owed. The only trouble to a loaner was to keep the money out. A four months' loan generally stuck, but six and twelve months' loans were usually sought to be taken up at the end of four and eight months by the borrowers. The security given was double the value of the loan and the property, if buildings, was insured for the amount of the loan and the insurance assigned to the loaner. I know of nothing better than loaning money out west. I never lost a dollar or had to take a single piece of property on such loans. In the east it was different and I have often had to take property for loans. If I had my choice between the east and the west I would every time risk loaning money in the west.

Western men are as a rule, more punctual than eastern borrowers, and expect no grace if they do not pay promptly. "Business is business" as they say out west, and there is no such namby pamby nonsense as in the east about one man taking another man's property for debt. If a borrower fails to pay, the loaner takes his property and the other fellow is out of luck. But the borrower does not mope or give up in despair, he goes off somewhere else and rustles for another stake.

The good policy of a man building a $1,000 house when he has only $500 to put into it is apparent when we consider that a house that costs $1,000 out west rents for $20 to $25 per month and often for $30. So the builder saves at least half of his rent, besides having a permanent home and one that will probably double the value during the year. At Miles City, Montana, an army officer bought and built a number of houses costing $1,000 per house and lot, and they all rented for $15 to $25 each, and that was considered low. Business property that cost $2,000 rented for $50 to $75 per month, and a store that cost $3,000 to build would readily rent at from $100 to $125 per month, built in Miles City.

A bank at six months old had a capital stock of $50,000 and its deposits were $143,000. Its loans were $27,000 at 1 and 2 per cent. a month and $9,000 at 1½ per cent. a month. Of all its other loans not one was under 1 per cent. a month. When its best customers borrowed money from the bank they had to pay it, 1 per cent. a month. In one month this little bank after paying its cashier all its clerks and $160 per month for the room in which it did business, had $1,725 of a balance to be passed to its credit for the month's business for the benefit of its stockholders. This bank soon erected a brick building for its better accommodation. This building was two stories high and cost $11,500 when finished. It had besides its bank room, and director's room, a store and six rooms overhead. The store room was rented in advance at $2,200 per year and two rooms overhead had been rented at $30 per month. The other rooms rented for $50 per month. Thus the bank on a building that costs in $11,500 had an income from rents of $3,400 per annum, besides having its own room and a directors' room free. This was certainly a good loan but it is hardly exceptional as every one knows who lives out west. Such loans are often made but it could not be done in the east where money is too plentiful.

A friend of mine wrote me not long ago from Philadelphia that their institution had $1,500,000, for which they could find no investment even at 5 and 6 per cent. on mortgages. This friend said "money is so plentiful and people so easy they do not seem disposed to borrow. There are $20,000,000 on Chestnut street to-day lying idle, and likely to be idle." Why can't this money come west and help develop the country. It could double and quadruple itself safely, and at the same time be of great possible use to the country. The reason why the surplus money of the east does not come west and seek investment, is that the people of the east who own it are afraid to let it go far away from home. You cannot convince them that the west is a safer place to loan money than the east, so let them keep their money and we will keep our country sure of having it known and appreciated some day.—James S. Brislin in the Omaha Bee.

Gunner's Run.

The unimproved condition of the Aramingo Canal, or Gunner's Run, is simply disgraceful. An inspection of it made by a reporter of the REAL ESTATE RECORD who traveled its entire length from Somerset street to the Delaware river, where it empties its filth not 500 feet away from the Kensington water-works, discloses a condition of affairs that really command the attention of the courts. The Board of Health last September declared the Run a nuisance, and yet no attempt has been made by our authorities to remedy its filthy condition. When the water is low in the Run the bed of the creek exposes to view the vilest filth possible to imagine, decayed vegetable matter and foul matter of every description mixed with the water in the run, emits a stench truly sickening. Several physicians practicing in the vicinity stated to our reporter that at least one-third of the sickness in that locality was occasioned by this reeking bed of filth. The Hart Creek sewer which empties into the run at Somerset street, adds its quota of filth from pig-pens, cow stables, water-closets and the refuse from all sorts of mills in that vicinity. No matter how this evil is to be permanently remedied at some future time, prompt and decisive action is needed at once in order that the residents in the vicinity may be temporarily relieved of a part of the nuisance at least.

Ante-Nuptial Contracts Binding.

THE Supreme Court has sustained the decree of the Orphans' Court against the claims of Caroline Smith, who made an ante-nuptial contract with her intended husband, by which she accepted a piece of real estate in bar of her future claim for dower. Her husband became very wealthy, and she sought to avoid this agreement, claiming that it was executed under a misunderstanding and never became operative. The Orphans' Court decided against her, and in an opinion by Judge Paxson, the Supreme Court sustained the Court below, saying: "We see no reason why the appellant should not be held to her ante-nuptial contract. It is true, she has repented of her bargain. This, however without proof of fraud or concealment practiced on her, is not sufficient.

Sewer Traps Useless.

J. C. Bayles, editor of the Iron Age, is an advocate for the omission of traps in the sewer system connected with houses. He claims that the trap is a little cesspool, interferes with the free flow of air and water, and so of flush. He claims that if fresh-air inlets abound there will be no riskful gas, and "no trap" will be one of the sanitary advances of the day.

Proprietor of Phila. "Record."

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, MARCH 14, 1887.

NO MATTER how much labor conventions may raid against the employment of prisoners, their employment must continue so long as reformation is the cardinal principle governing prison institutions.

Until all hope for reformation has been abandoned, or until all interest in him has been sunk with his incarceration, the prisoner must work.

Work is his mental and physical balance wheel, abolish it and our prisons will soon be transformed into insane asylums.

The good, work does in its influences upon the inmates of prisons, counterbalances all the harmful influences that the productions of prison labor may cause in competing with outside honest labor. If the burthen of taxation falls, as it is claimed it does, upon the workman, how could the burthen be decreased by the forced and continued idleness of prisoners? The increased cost of supporting prisoners in idleness would surely fall upon the self-same shoulders that bore the burthen before, and its even an open question whether the productions of honest labor would command a fraction more in price than they do at present.

NO MAN ever hit the nail on the head more thoroughly than did contractor Charles A. Porter, when he recommended the expenditure of less money in keeping cobble-stone pavements in repair, and the laying of more improved pavements. If some settled purpose to lay a certain amount of asphalt or Belgian block pavement every year were adopted by Councils and lived up to, the expensive and unsatisfactory cobble stone would be gradually superseded. The difference in the cost of street cleaning would materially assist in defraying the cost of the new pavement, and the advantages to health and comfort in clean streets would be incalculable. There is sufficient evidence, both in this city and in Washington, D. C., where asphalt has been used for years to the exclusion of all other kinds, of its durability and small cost in keeping it in repair, besides which its great saving on the wear and tear of vehicles is a consideration worth remembering.

THE following is a similar case of equal interest. A cotemporary published a city letter calling attention to the modern taste for lofty buildings, stating that a well-known gentleman of influence and means was about to erect several six and seven story buildings in the new business centre of the city; and adds this reflection:—"It must be observed that this new movement seems to be in a large degree forced by the expectation that Councils will no longer refuse to authorize the construction of lines of railway for rapid transit. . . . It does not seem to make any difference practically whether these lines shall be elevated or underground; and the spirit of the real estate operators appears to be that Councils shall authorize both systems alike."

The gentleman referred to above, courteously replying to an inquiry by a representative of this journal, said this was one of the finest specimens of logical non-sequitur that he had noticed. What connection there could be between the erection of lofty buildings in the business centre of the city and permits by Councils for rapid transit lines to and from the suburbs, it was difficult to see. He said that while there could be little objection, on the part of down-town property owners, to underground railways that promised to be harmless, the feeling was very different in relation to elevated tracks. He had always opposed every idea of them in Philadelphia; and if such a line were to be built through Market street below Broad he should regard his property as immediately diminished in value 30 or 40 per cent. He considered the conditions of New York and Philadelphia so different that the same reasoning was not applicable to the two cities. In New York all outward lines ran in the same direction, through a narrow area, let the districts to be reached beyond be ever so extensive; and hence, where there was such a deficiency of surface, a town must find relief by availing itself of all necessary depths and heights. In Philadelphia the suburbs lay in every direction but one; hence there was no such unfortunate necessity for burrowing or soaring to reach a distant objective point.

SOUTHERN NEW JERSEY presents a greater and more certain field for the efforts of a combination of capitalists than any section of the United States. The immense area of tillable land south of the railroads to Atlantic City, and west of that to Cape May, presents so many opportunities for irrigation and development that it seems singular that capital should seek investment in remote sections far away from markets and where the returns cannot, under the most favorable circumstances, be made to equal a fraction of what Southern Jersey would yield.

The water-courses through this section would be sufficient to irrigate the whole area of valuable land now devoted to shrub oaks and stunted pines, which could be gradually transformed into fruit farms and beautiful villages, to be followed with greater railroad facilities, and millions of dollars in profit to the body of men with sufficient nerve and capital to carry out the work.

The scheme is far from being Utopian; it is both possible and practicable, and nothing expresses the possibilities of this whole section more than what Mr. Landis has accomplished at Vineland, or Simpson & Wade at Chiselhurst. The light sandy properties of the soil make it particularly advantageous for irrigation, for it is well known that with plenty of water this self-same soil will produce nearly everything belonging to the vegetable kingdom.

NO MATTER what our personal estimate of the character and worth of Henry Ward Beecher may have been, we must not forget that he loved America so dearly that when other hearts quailed before the violence of an English mob, he alone with a firmness equalled only by the cause for which he sought to speak, braved the fury of the tempest, and as one man against a thousand, pleaded so earnestly for his country that he turned the tide of English sentiment, baffled the emissaries of rebellion, and in all probability saved American unity.

IF THE sixty thousand prisoners in the penal institutions of the United States were set to work macadamizing our country roads, it would be better than keeping them inside.

A GREAT ANCHOR OF SOLID GOLD (worth) $10,000,000 has been cast into the rivers and harbors by the Congressional crew that man the Ship of State. Lost anchors of similar value are scattered up and down the coast. —Phila. Record.

Few people are aware of the architectural skill and intelligence required to plan, in all its symmetrical outline and useful minutiae, a neat and convenient house. First, it must be in all respects adapted to its site. In this there are certain laws of mutual relation which none but the true, professional architect understands. He stands on the opposite side of the street, looks first at this outward relation, then at that; thinks of the family that are to occupy the house, of the proprietor's means, of his tastes and expressed wishes; and immediately a "castle in the air" begins to take shape in the architect's brain. In the meantime, while the artist and builder, all in one, is measuring and laying off distances, dividing and combining, seeing visions and dreaming dreams, the proprietor sees yet only a vacant lot enclosed with a rough fence. Soon in the architect's mind, and anon on paper, lawns and shrubbery, walks and carriage ways form the setting for the home. Now the proprietor begins to see how things are going to look; the house here, the portico on that side, the barn there, the gate yonder, and all the externals. And now he and his wife and children begin to dream.

The architect goes on, dividing and combining, and the family are permitted to see how the cellar is planned. Then the ground floor; then the attic perhaps. The family are thinking of nothing but the conveniences. The architect, thinking even more wisely of those, thinks also of the consistencies. That being so will necessitate this taking such and such forms. The proprietor plans a dwelling, and the architect produces the dwelling in a systematic structure, which the proprietor does not see at all.

Fortunate it will be for the architect if the proprietor does not back up upon whom of Betsey's or Tom's or some neighbor's, and inject an incongruity that shall seriously impair the whole plan. When such is the case, then comes an important test. Is the architect really a man of such force of character that he will make his structure conform to great leading principles? or will he weakly yield to Betsey's whim? A lawyer or a physician exercises a professional authority, says, "No, that cannot be!" "Yes, this must be." The true architect does the same; and in after years the proprietor is thankful for being thwarted in regard to "that bedroom," "this cistern."

Thus, even in the construction of a plain, cheap dwelling the architect is an important personage. Upon his wisdom, his skill, his tact and talent, and especially upon his faithfulness, will depend the comfort, health and happiness of perhaps many successive families.

THAT the influence of women is making itself felt in more ways than one, cannot be denied. The doors of the avenues of business and trade are now practically wide open to them, and they express no fear or hesitancy in walking straight forward to business positions requiring judgment and a high degree of capability and experience. The mechanical field has found places for many of them, and they seem to command their share of business and respect. One of the best wood engravers in this city is a woman, and her work is represented in the daily newspapers very frequently.

In politics women are not an important factor by any means, and it is noticeable that she has fought the way step by step, and without a backward step, until now she commands the attention of the Legislatures of seven States. The Governor of Kansas has approved a bill conferring municipal suffrage upon women, and even the New York State Senate, by a vote of twenty to nine, has passed a bill allowing women to vote in municipal elections. It is held that the enfranchisement of women is a sure solution of the saloon question in politics, and although the New York bill failed to pass the lower house because the saloon influence there is largely in the ascendancy; yet its passage by the New York Senate represents a strong point gained in that State, and the women will make the most of it.

The building and business probabilities for 1887 are now sufficiently well defined to admit of comment. In our own city there is indubitable evidence that the year will be a more active one than last. Builders who are in a position to know, think that 8000 houses will be erected this year. The tendency is to multiply small houses. It is found they rent more quickly and pay better than three-story houses. The low or at least moderate price of land encourages the construction of small houses which rent from $13 to $20, and which cost relatively much less than houses which command from $25 to $40. From the building notes elsewhere given, it is apparent that the season will be exceptionally active, not only within the business-limits proper, but far beyond, as far as rapid traveling facilities allow. Land also is in more active request than last year, and suburban farms are being bought up at reasonable prices for the devouring greed of the knights of brick and mortar. All investments of recent years have proven safe, and the rush of house building will continue until there are some signs of overtaking demand.

The prosperous condition of our Building and Loan Associations is a great help. Our capitalists are not only willing, but eager to put their money into small houses. The vacant stretches in all the outlying sections are being built up rapidly, and in a very few years the city limits will reach from Tacony on the north, to Overbrook on the west, not merely geographically, but in actual house construction.

School House Ventilation.

The architect or inventor, who could devise a system of school-house ventilation that would be applicable to all school buildings, and to the finances of all school districts, would be entitled to the gratitude of thousands of teachers, and hundreds of thousands of pupils and parents.

It is easy to throw up or let down a window, and permit the warm air to rush out but it is not so easy to prevent, at the same time, the cold air rushing in. And when both these have been accomplished, and half of those in the room have taken a cold, it is found that the foul air, being specifically heavier than the pure air, is still down at the bottom of the room, where the children are sitting below the level of the windows. The problem of ventilation is how to ventilate a room without cooling it. The first requisite is to provide a suitable supply of pure warm air. As "Nature abhors a vacuum," the impure air cannot be taken out of a room, until other air is ready to take its place. Second we need not expect the impure air to rise unless it be heated, or thrown into the midst of other air specifically heavier; and then in either case it must rise. Accordingly, all extensive plans for ventilating, involve heating the fresh air and conducting it into the room, and at the same time, conducting the foul air out from the bottom of the room, either into a warmer atmosphere through which it will fall, or into a flue where it will be heated and drawn up, or where it will be forced out. One prime condition necessary both to let the impure air out, and to accelerate the ingress of fresh air, is to make the aperture for egress sufficiently large. It should be borne in mind, that there is an infiltration of air from without, through windows, doors, floors and walls, at all times. Add the quantity thus admitted to that which is designedly conducted in, and you have the amount that must be constantly carried out, in order to have a proper change of air, without which there can be no supply of pure, fresh air.

It is a significant fact that the cyclo-pædias treat this subject under the double caption, "Warming and Ventilation." In relation to the latter, the former is the sole means, except by a system of fans, which is very difficult of adjustment, under all circumstances.

In the Summer time, "Cooling and Ventilation" is the couplet, and the window and door system is sufficient, except in school rooms with high wainscots, where small children are sitting down in the cistern of carbonic acid gas, below the windows. Then, in the Summer time, the relief is by the door. If an opening is made near the floor, the foul air will run out like water, because it is heavier than the air through which it flows. In the Winter, school houses that were not constructed on Ventilation principles, may find great relief by cutting an opening next to the floor into a chimney in the wall. A strong current of heavy, foul air will flow out with sufficient force to draw in a handkerchief or light piece of paper; and it will be found that the room can be more quickly heated thereafter. But then the question often is how to admit fresh air. It is found practicable, in many cases, to fit tightly a board three inches wide beneath the lower sash of one or more windows, according to circumstances, this leaves a space between the glass of the top of the lower sash, and the bottom of the upper sash, through which a thin, wide stream of fresh air will rush into the room in an upward direction. And before the direction of the stream is checked, it partakes of the temperature of the air in contact with it, and is diffused through the room below. The tops of the windows should be lowered only to let out the hot air in emergencies, or when near the stove. But it must be remembered that the air in the top of the room is pure, and suitable for inspiration as it cools and descends.

As there are thousands of country school houses that must be used for years before expensive modern appliances can be introduced, the above simple principles and methods are worth remembering.

Teachers will do a good service to their pupils, by explaining the circulation of air in the school room, and occasionally catechising them upon the subject.

Recent Decisions in Pennsylvania in Relation to Matters Concerning Real Estate and Commercial Law.

Decided by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

ALTERATION OF INSTRUMENTS.

A judgment note in favor of a married woman was delivered to her husband, who, without her knowledge or consent, altered the note by raising it from $300 to $500, and afterwards entered judgment on it for the increased amount. Held that the debtor was not entitled to have the judgment set aside in its entirety. Opening the judgment to the extent of $50 was the utmost relief that could be claimed.

BILLS AND NOTES.

If the maker of a note by means of declarations made to an intending purchaser that he has no defense to the note, induces the latter to purchase it, he will be estopped from setting up a matter of defense or offset which he may have had.

DEED.

A bill against a trustee to compel her and her husband to make a deed for real estate which had been conveyed to her in trust for her daughter, where the conveyance did not confer on the trustee any power to convert the realty into money, cannot be maintained on the ground that the trustee has executed an agreement to convey.

If the trust was void and the title remained in the person designated by the deed as trustee, the Court will not enforce the execution by her of a deed under an agreement executed by her while she was living with her husband, and there was no separate acknowledgment of the instrument by her, as required by the statute in case of a married woman.

INSURANCE.

A contract of insurance in consideration of a gross sum, insuring several buildings for a certain amount separately on each building, is an entire and not a severable contract, and an act done in violation of the condition of the policy after the making of the contract, in one of the buildings insured, avoids the policy as to the whole.

MORTGAGE.

Where a mortgage is unaccompanied by a bond or other personal obligation in writing and contains no express promise to pay, in a suit brought against the mortgagor upon an accompanying parol promise to pay, the mortgage debt, conversations subsequent to the delivery of the mortgage as to promises by defendant to pay the money secured by the mortgage, are admissible in evidence.

The Statute of Limitations would not begin to run upon the promise until the time mentioned in the promise to pay had expired.

SALE BY SAMPLE.

Upon a sale of goods by sample there is no implied warranty that the goods sold shall be equal in quality to the sample.

VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

In an action on a note given for part of the purchase money of land where defendant set up that the note was procured by fraud and false representations as to the value and quality of the land, evidence offered by defendant of representations that the purchase money was secured by a mortgage and the note was given as a mere matter of convenience and that defendant had not received possession of land excluded as incompetent under the circumstances and as not alleged in his bill of particulars and notice of special matter, and on the ground that defendant had examined the land before purchase.

BUILDERS' ITEMS.

Building and Real Estate Notes.

J. BOOKHAMER, Norristown, will erect three stores and dwellings at that place.

PHILIP CRIMEAN is building a house on Matson Ford road, West Conshohocken.

THE Coatesville (Chester County) Times says: "Houses are in demand in this town."

T. W. SMALTZ will build fifty houses on Berks street and Croskey street near Twenty-second.

JOHN SHAW of Conshohocken, will shortly build two houses on Hector street, below Poplar, in that place.

FLORIN HERBST of Reading, will build two brick dwellings on the rear of the lot No. 717 Penn street, that city.

COL. CLARK of Philadelphia, has purchased the property of D. R. Harpur, near Ridley Park station, Pa.

J. L. KATES will build a row of twelve-room three-story houses, on Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets above Berks.

LEWIS STYER, of the People's National Bank, Norristown, will build a row of houses at Bridgeport, Montgomery county.

MR. WOEFUL has commenced constructing six new buildings, Lehigh avenue and Reese street, between Fifth and Sixth streets.

G. S. MULLIN, the P. R. R. agent at Hyndman, Bedford County, contemplates erecting a brick dwelling opposite his office at that place.

FOX & BROWN will build twenty-four three-story houses on Eleventh street, and forty-six two-story houses on Warnock street.

The Abram Cox Stove Company will build their new stove foundry at Lansdale, Montgomery County, as soon as the weather will permit.

MEMBERS of West Point (Montgomery County) Literary Society are raising funds to devote to the contemplated erection of a Chapel there.

JAMES LUTZ of North Wales, Montgomery County, is about commencing the erection of a dwelling on West Montgomery street, that place.

W. BRENNEMAN, M. C. Killian and Samuel Lorch of Reamstown, Lancaster County, will erect houses on Church street, that place, the coming Spring.

THE plot of ground at the Northwest corner of Ridge and Montgomery avenues is to be covered with fifty-three houses, by James Lyons, the builder.

ALBERT WALKUP of Philadelphia, has received the contract for putting up a store building for Joseph Buchanan, in Ambler, Montgomery County.

JOHN B. RAZER of Sixth and Walnut sts., Reading, will shortly build a dwelling on Centre avenue, adjoining Chas. L. Hoff's property in that city.

PROPERTIES 811 and 813 Filbert street have been purchased by Strawbridge & Clothier, who will demolish the old buildings and erect a model stable.

GEORGE HOOVER will build a Queen Anne cottage on Summit avenue, Fort Washington, Montgomery County, as soon as the weather will permit.

THOMAS BOOTH, Jr., of Bethel township, Delaware County, Pa., is building an attractive new frame residence on his property above Bethel school house No. 1.

H. R. SHOCH has remaining but eight houses of the eighty-five built last year, making thirteen now unsold in his possession. Good prices were obtained for all of them.

J. W. EVERHAM, 2503 Ridge avenue, has recently sold property No. 2529 Oxford street for $4,200, property 2518 Columbia avenue for $4,150, N. E. corner Oxford and Twenty-fifth street for $6,450. Mr. Everham thinks the outlook decidedly favorable.

HUGH McNEIL, Ninth and Montgomery avenue, is building four two-story, six-room houses, on Snyder avenue, above Seventh street; he is also excavating for thirty six-room houses on Siegel street, between Fifth and Sixth streets, the corner buildings will be three-stories high and will be used as stores; also four four-room houses on Mercy street.

GEORGE LODGE, Third and Federal streets, has under way eleven two-story six-room houses on Long street, north of Snyder avenue. Mr. Lodge has already sold seven of same kind on same street for $1,450 each, though not yet completed. He will build a number of six-room houses on McKean street below Tenth street, and is considering the erection of thirty more in the same locality.

CHAS. HENDERSON, 1425 Columbia avenue, will build six houses on Nineteenth street corner of Berks, with corner store. These houses will be three-stories high, of pressed brick with blue-marble trimmings, will contain twelve rooms and all modern improvements, including electric bells and lighting. The vestibules will be tiled, and have cathedral glass in the doors. These houses will be worth $8,000; the store, $7,500. He will also erect one two-story brick house with marble trimmings on Gratz street below Berks, to cost about $5,000; work will be begun at once.

JOHN GIBSON is excavating on the corner of Broad and Wharton streets for ten three-story houses and a corner store, also two twelve-room houses, 212 and 214 North Sixteenth street, above Race street. Mr. Gibson will also build a thirteen-room brown-stone house on Broad street between Wharton and Federal streets; this house will be lighted by electricity. He is also building a fine frame cottage at Morton Station for Mr. George Butler of West Philadelphia, this will have pumping engine and all modern improvements, and will cost $5,000.

A BUILDING suitable for school and hall purposes is to be erected at Morton, Delaware county.

THE Lyceum Theatre, on Vine street below 7th street, is to undergo extensive alterations next summer.

STEINBACH & CHESTNUT will erect nineteen two-story seven-room houses on Rosewood street, west of Broad.

MR. JOSEPH SOLOMON, Bingham House, will build five three-story houses on Seventeenth street, below Sanson.

EXTENSIVE alterations and improvements will be made at the Chestnut Street Theatre at the close of the present season.

THOS. MEOUCH, 2034 Bainbridge street, will erect twenty-four three-story houses on Seventeenth, above Montgomery, blue-stone bases. They will be 17x62, with tiled vestibules.

EIGHTEEN ten-room houses will be erected on Forty-third street, below Chester avenue, West Philadelphia, by William S. Kimball; also twenty eleven-room houses on Forty-second street, above Pine.

THOMAS GARBITTY, cor Fourth and South streets, will erect on cor. Fourth and Lombard two stores and three houses. The dwellings will have twelve rooms. The stores will have nine rooms, including bath.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., is to have a new school house, to be situated at Pennsylvania and Arctic avenues; it is to be of brick, and $22,000 have been appropriated to build it; $10,000 have also been appropriated for the extension and repairing of other school houses.

JAMES H. & SAM'L YOUNG, 2117 Fitzwater street, will build on Lombard street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth, two two-story houses with eight rooms. White marble to first-story windows, and pressed brick with white-marble trimmings. They will be finished by the first of July and will be worth $3,750.

GROUND has been broken for Betz's new summer theatre, at Broad and Montgomery avenue. George Plowman is the architect. The building is to be 146x234 feet, and 65 feet high. In summer it will be used as a beer garden, and will afford seating room at the tables for nearly 4000 people. When the theatre is fitted up with chairs for winter use, it is estimated that over 5000 people can be seated. Pressed brick, terra cotta and iron will be used in its construction, and its cost will be about $100,000; it is to be finished by July 1st.

JOHN SIMPSON, 1719 Christian street, is building twenty two-story houses on Bate man street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth, with pressed brick and white-marble fronts, white marble base and trimmings. They will be 15x61. Ten three-story houses on Twentieth, below Wharton, all to be stores, 16x65.—Two stores two-stories high, pressed brick, 16x65.—Ten houses on Lingo, between Dickins and Tasker, two-stories, pine finish inside 14x48. Three houses on Tasker, west of Twentieth, two-stories, 16x68.—He will also erect twenty-five houses on Watkins, west of Twentieth, 14x47, two-stories high. Work will begin on these at once. All the houses and stores mentioned above will have cement pavements.

JAS. H. YOUNG, 1900-1900 South College avenue near Nineteenth street, will build two houses and a store on York above Twenty-seventh street, two-stories high, seven rooms, and modern conveniences. They will be of pressed brick with trimmings of brown stone, and cost about $2,000. He will also erect thirty-eight houses of the same style on Marsten street running north from York street, and a residence for himself on South College avenue, three-stories high, brown-stone front, and containing twelve rooms, finished in hard woods and natural pine; will contain all modern improvements, open fire places, etc.

CHAS. M. BAKER, 1724 North Eighteenth street, is about erecting in addition to the he finished last September, six houses on North Eighteenth st. between Berks st. and Montgomery avenue. These houses will be three stories in height, of pressed brick and brown-stone trimmings, tiled vestibules with stained-glass doors and windows, and contain all modern improvements. Also twenty-eight houses on Bouvier street with corner stores. These will be similar to those on Eighteenth street, and will be worth about $8,000 each; work on them will begin as soon as possible. Of the buildings not yet completed seven have already been sold, the nine-room houses bringing $4,300 and the ten-room houses bringing $1,700.

The Incandescent Gas Light.

Our attention was first called to the above lamp by observing one located in front of the Gas Trust office, Seventh street above Chestnut. The flame is circular in form and several inches in height and circumference, and giving treble the illumination than any other gas jet or lamp we ever saw.

It is a pure white incandescent light. On inquiry we found the office of the Incandescent Gas Light Company, and there it was ascertained that the lamp had been patented over a year ago, but as yet had not been properly pushed or placed before the public.

It is stated that such a lamp as we saw gives light equal to 212 candle-power, an ordinary street incandescent lamp 112 candle-power, and the largest or Park lamp 300 candle-power.

The ordinary burner is detached from the gas tube, and this burner screwed on in its place, with its accompanying chimney, and all is ready for use.

A higher illuminating power from a given quantity of gas, is produced by this lamp than has heretofore been attained by any burner, being three times the volume of light as to that of other burners.

The principle of the lamp is the heating of the gas to an incandescent state before its consumption, which is done automatically. Thus all the carbon is consumed, nothing escapes or is lost, and the light-giving properties are thoroughly utilized.

It emits no noxious vapors, is free from smoke under all conditions, and produces a steady white light suitable for halls, churches, factories, stores, hotels and dwellings, at less cost and attention than the electric light.

One of our most prominent electricians in his lecture before the late Electrical Convention held in this city, stated that only one-tenth of illumination could be accomplished by electricity, and that the other nine-tenths would be eventually left to the incandescent gas light. That as civilization and knowledge increased, these two lights each in its proper sphere would supplant and better the present imperfect mode of lighting, which is so greatly accompanied by waste and useless expenditure, without a good result.

Another Chestnut Street Improvement.

The Beneficial Saving Fund Society, Twelfth and Chestnut, having purchased the adjoining property, 1202 Chestnut street, some two years ago, have had plans prepared by Architect E. F. Durang, and will, about April 1st next, demolish the old building, preparatory to the erection of a new 6-story building, which will be made to conform in every particular to their present building, now occupied by them at the southwest corner Twelfth and Chestnut streets, after two additional stories have been added to the same. The new building will be 26 ft. front on Chestnut street, and will extend back 145 feet. This will give, in addition with their present premises, a front of 50 feet on Chestnut street. The new improvements will include elevator and steam-heating apparatus, and will be of brick with stone trimmings, and will cost about $60,000.

A total profit, in less than two years, of $360,000 is the Widow McManes' mite.

A Nice Point Decided by the Supreme Court.

Allentown, Pa., school bonds when issued were made payable "in twenty-five years." In order to save interest, the officers of the school district called in these bonds. Some of them were purchased in 1874, by Levi B. Derr. Mr. Derr died, and his administrator brought suit on coupons upon which payment was refused by the school district. The issue was upon the meaning of the word "in," it being claimed by the district to mean "at any time during the twenty-five years." The Supreme Court decided that in this case the word meant "at the expiration of twenty-five years from the date of issue," and gave judgment for the plaintiff.

The Building Outlook.

A large amount of building will be done on the suburban districts this year, as well as on the lines of the railroads leading out of the city. Frankford and Tacony on the northern end will be greatly improved. The Distons will erect 140 houses in Tacony. As mentioned some weeks ago, building operations will begin on the old Wain estate at Frankford, and over 300 houses will transform that old bluestone homestead into a crowded suburb.

We learn of extended operations all over the Twenty-third ward, and so far can count up over 800 houses projected. Mayor-elect Fittler will erect 100 houses near Yerks & Plumb's tool factory; the old North Star property will be covered with houses. Besides this, an extension of that capacity is to be made.

Real estate is improving in value all along the line of the P. R. R., and several city manufacturers have been looking at sites in that neighborhood.

Coming near town, we find considerable projected activity on the neighborhood of the Richmond icehouses. The Reading company is credited with the intention of expending $200,000 on that property. There is a demand for small houses, and several builders have purchased real estate for building purposes.

About six hundred houses will be built in the Kensington district. Thomas Battley will erect one hundred and fifty small houses near Silver street and Lehigh avenue, and will cut a new street through the plot. Another street is to be cut through the Clymer estate, to be called Stetson avenue. Seventy houses are to be erected in the neighborhood of Fourth and Berks. The purchaser of the property is Wm. G. Serrill.

One hundred houses will be erected by Malody & Co. in the Twenty-fifth Ward, all small houses; over half of them will be erected between Clearfield and Cambria streets. In addition to this, sixty-seven small houses will be erected by Flood Bros. on Third street, near Cambria, 14x40, to sell at $2500.

Considerable building activity will be manifested along and near the lower end of Lehigh avenue. Eight blocks of houses will soon be started in this thickly-settled region, nearly all small, mostly two stories. The largest block will be 61 and the smallest 7 houses. The total foots up 219 two and three-story houses, including a few stores. These houses will be erected on Lehigh avenue, Front street, Second, Third, Fourth, Somerset, Palethorp, Hancock, and Oranua streets.

The builders chiefly interested in these operations are W. T. B. Roberts, who represents Wm. L. Elkins, Anthony M. Zane, and Geo. Kessler, 1332 Marshall street. Several other enterprises are projected here, but the preparations are not yet completed. Mr. Roberts is engaged in some other large building operations, one of which is for Elkins & Widener, at Thirtieth and Thompson, to which reference has been made. The operation covers 250 houses on Thirtieth street, Twenty-ninth, Thompson, Stiles, Dover, and Newkirk streets. They will be nearly all two-story houses, but more elaborate both inside and out than are such sized dwellings usually.

We have made frequent mention of building operations along Columbia ave. Messrs. Sharp, Shock & Slingerly, the firm of Thornton, Meritt & Thornton, Jos. L. Caven, and Edward H. Flood are all preparing for active work, and between them will erect over 500 houses. Two of these builders have completed arrangements for 350 houses. Fifty-six houses will be erected in the neighborhood of Twenty-sixth and Columbia avenue, pressed-brick fronts and brownstone trimmings; Thornton, Meritt & Thornton, builders. Mr. Flood expects to have house No. 500 up before July 1st. The present batch of 80 will leave here only one more lap of 20 to make. William Albrecht will have upwards of 150 house under way; one village of 129 in the neighborhood of Twenty-sixth and Ridge and another lot on Berend and Diamond, which will be very fine. The Page Brothers will be active builders, and make their bow to the track with a trifle of 36 houses between Sixteenth and Seventeenth on West Park avenue.

Many other enterprises are under consideration, involving much heavier operations than are here given. The question of street pavements and street openings will have a good deal to do with some of the contemplated enterprises. A strong influence is being brought to bear on Councils to put down costly pavements and fire-brick asphaltum, Belgian blocks, etc. Should such improvements be made it will lead to extensive building operations in the North Broad section, and one statement is to the effect that if asphaltum pavement is put down on Broad, from Diamond to Lehigh avenue, it will result in the construction of 1200 to 1500 houses. This much is known, that excellent pavements will lead to greatly extended building operations.

In the southern section of the city building enterprise is not a whit behind. Messrs. Drexel and Bennett are concerned in a building operation covering 400 houses; already 150 are under way under the supervision of William R. Matchett. The region is between Fifteenth and Eighteenth, Morris and Tasker; most of the houses being built are small, as these are found to rent and sell best in this locality. Junio Park will ere long be a thing of the past. Several large building enterprises are hinted at along South Broad.

West Philadelphia will not fall behind other sections of the city, although active operations have not set in on a large scale. Nicholson, Erickson & McMichaelson will erect in the neighborhood of 100 houses on a large track of vacant land bounded on two sides by Wyoming and Fortieth. The site is a fine one, and it is intended to erect a better class of dwellings on it. Several builders are perfecting plans for the erection of houses south of Market and west of Thirtieth, and as far out as Forty fifth street. Most of these houses will be costly.

MR. J. L. KATES of 1806 Berks street, is erecting six three-story houses 18x50 on Nineteenth street between Berks and Norris, to have all modern improvements, hardwood finish below and natural wood above, and cherry wardrobes. They will be provided with stationery book-cases in hard wood. The fronts will be of brown stone to sills of first-story windows and pressed brick with brownstone trimmings above, and will be worth $7,000 each. He will also erect sixteen on the west side of Nineteenth between Berks and Norris, three-stories high and to have ten and twelve rooms. They will be about like those on the opposite side of Nineteenth street, and worth $6,500 and 7,000 dollars.

TO MAKE THE OUTSIDE BETTER.

An architect must of necessity be a learned man, and must know many things that he can't find in books. The quality of building material changes faster than books.

The architect knows how to specify for a good tin roof. Does he know how to obtain it? He wants the owner to be satisfied and to know that he gets the roof he pays for.

There is just one way;—only one way—if it is the best tin he is after—and that is to specify—'every sheet stamped with the BRAND and THICKNESS.'

The brand is "GILBERTSON'S OLD METHOD." The thickness is IC or IX.

If the tin is not stamped, you may or you may not get it. How are you to know after the roof is on? You may say it is not the proper tin. The roofer may say it is.

Our tin is a sheet of steel, covered with all the coating it will carry. You can't see through it—you can't even guess the thickness after the roof is laid.

The brand we have mentioned is guaranteed in all respects to do anything required of a first class roof—guaranteed by us to our customers, and to us by the maker—that it will stand all the tests claimed for it—and more too.

No similar guarantees are offered today by other importers with their plates—that is, guarantees that are so direct, positive or convincing.

A guarantee 'equal to something else' is no guarantee at all.

A good roof should last thirty to forty years, without any other expense than painting.

Inferior tin may last five years—often does not last that long—then the expense begins and keeps on.

The first cost of a good roof is but a trifle more than that of inferior tin—in the long run much less.

The above facts cannot be contradicted.

News Items.

—Eads, the engineer, left a $100,000 estate.

—The city will pay $8,200 for ten fire engines.

—The estate of Thomas Kidgway is valued at $300,000.

—The estate of Henry Lewis is valued at $1,224,300.

—The location of 150 electric lights has not been definitely fixed.

—Fairhill Square is to be lighted with Siemens regenerative lamp.

—A lot on Market street, west of Twenty-third, 25x106, sold for $16,500.

—The machinists of the water department want their hours of day reduced to nine.

—The north-east corner of Columbia avenue and Suydenham street sold for $35,000.

—The Pennsylvania Warehouse Company will construct two sidings on South Delaware avenue.

—Forty-eight thousand two hundred dollars was paid for the corner of Third and Wharton street.

—The wheelmen will petition Councils to pave Mount Vernon street, west of Broad, with fire brick.

—Twenty-four acres of farm land near Cottage and Bridge streets, Twenty-third Ward, sold for $28,000.

—The brewery property at Thirty-first and Jefferson streets, and three adjoining lots, sold for $100,000.

—A frame church is to be erected at Twenty-ninth and Wharton streets, and another at Ninth and Lehigh ave.

—The House of Correction inmates are to be used to grade and macadamize several suburban streets and avenues.

—Two new banks will shortly be organized, one on Market, east of Broad, and another on Market, west of Ninth.

—The Keystone Light and Power Company was willing to pay for the privilege of leasing underground conduits.

—The sum of $20,840 is set apart for the building of a school house on Ridge avenue, between Kalos and Osborn streets.

—Common Councils authorized the opening of a number of streets in the upper sections of the city, and also authorized considerable sewer construction.

—The subject of an "L" road down Broadway, from Seventy-second street to the Battery is soon to come before their Legislature again. That or the Arcade plan must ultimately succeed. The elite must give in to the demands of the busy masses.

—The Building and Trades Council will ask Councils to appoint six additional building inspectors who shall be experienced and practical workmen.

—The new Art Club has purchased the premises at 220 South Broad street for $100,000 on a ground rent at 4 per cent. The property is 65x150 deep.

—The real estate conveyances in New York city for the week ending March 10th, this year, aggregated $1,163,602 less than during the same week last year.

—A lot on Twenty-fifth street, east side, S. Washington, and eight other lots on Twenty-fifth and Ellsworth streets and Washington avenue, sold for $150,000.

—The passenger railway companies use ashes instead of gravel for street paving. Councils has taken steps forbidding this deceptive and unjust practice.

—The Hoopes & Townsend strikers have not heard that their places are filled, and the garment cutters on strike do not know that their places are being daily taken.

—The ordinance giving the Penn Electric Light Company permission to lease its conduits, passed with a proviso that the privilege be revocable by Councils at any time.

—General Newton says it will cost $5,000,000 to pave New York streets during the next five years. The streets of that city are said to be in an exceptionally filthy condition.

—Controller Dechert deducted $2,700 from contractors' warrants last year for deficient work, and he hopes this course will be a sufficient warning to all other contractors in the future.

—The Traction Company has to pay its one-fifth share of the cost of the asphalt pavement around the new City Hall. The bill amounts to $12,668. The Traction is not in good repute.

—Poughkeepsie, N.Y., people are already pluming themselves on the height, length and general magnificence of their bridge over the Hudson, to be finished by January 1st, 1888. It is to be four miles long, and its highest point 550 feet, and will cost somewhere about $5,000,000, including approaches.

—The net profits of the gas works during the past year were $283,955.72. The street main laid during the year amounted to 168,360 feet or about 32 miles. The entire mileage is 855 miles. There was manufactured a trifle under three thousand million feet. The number of public lamps is 15,410. About $11,000 was expended for regenerative gas lamps in five of the city squares.

—Common Council ordinances for the construction of the following sewers were concurred in, viz.: on Aspen, Almond, Brown and Berks streets, Cheltenham avenue, Eighth, Mascher, Ninth and Noble streets, Pulaski avenue, Apsley, Palethorp, Belgrade, Pastorius, Hancock and Meechlu streets, Germantown avenue, Cumberland and Thirteenth streets, Lehigh avenue.

—The master roofers, numbering 45, who employ 400 hands have before them a proposition in the nature of a demand from their workmen for $2.25 per day of nine hours from May 2d, and that none but Knights of Labor be employed.

At last Thursday's meeting a resolution was passed against the demand and the workmen were so notified. About a dozen firms are outside of the organization. The master roofers have applied for a State charter.

—The route of the underground railway was stated in Councils to be as follows: From the Delaware county line at Market street, through and under Philadelphia via Market street, to a point at or near Cheltenham Hills, Montgomery county. Branches are to extend north and south on Broad street, from Market street, Ridge, Lancaster, Germantown and Moyamensing avenues. The road is to be open on Market street, from Forty-fourth to Sixty-third, north on Broad street, from Bristol street to the City Line road, and south on Broad street, from Moyamensing avenue.

—The Metropolitan Railroad Company underground railroad bill passed Common Council by a vote of 77, no nays, having previously passed Select Council. Among the promoters of the scheme are William A. Ingham, ex-President and now a Director of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company; John Lucas, ex-President of the Camden and Atlantic Railroad; J. W. Jones, ex-Vice-President of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad; William P. Henszey, one of the firm of Burnham, Parry, Williams & Co.; George G. White, Treasurer of the Phoenix Iron Company, and Frederick Prime, Jr., President of the Allentown Iron Works.

—The new "agreement" between the City Mason Builders and their employees, of New York city, covers these four points:

1st. That the wages of bricklayers, from May 1st, for one year, shall be 45 cents per hour, nine hours on five days, and eight hours on Saturday, with eight hours' pay.

2d. Unions shall not order any strike against the members or the Mason Builders' Association, collectively or individually; nor shall any number of union men leave the works of a member of the Mason Builders' Association before the matter in dispute is brought before the Joint Arbitration Committee.

3d. No member of the Union shall be discharged for inquiring after the cards of the men working upon any job of a member of the Mason Builders' Association.

4th. The Arbitration Committee are to meet on the third Thursday in every month, or at the call of the Chair on either side.

This is signed by five delegated representatives of each of the two organizations.

THE PHILADELPHIA
REAL ESTATE RECORD, AND
BUILDERS' GUIDE,
PUBLISHED, EVERY MONDAY, AT 727 WALNUT STREET.

One Year, in advance, $5.00

JOHN N. GALLAGHER, Prop'r.

Refers with permission to William M. Singerly,
Proprietor of Phila. "Record."

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, MARCH 21, 1887.

THE reduction of the price of gas will prove rather an unfortunate episode unless it turns out different from the last reduction. House and storekeepers have not forgotten that the bills were nearly double after the last reduction, though the advent of honest men and honest government will encourage consumers to hope for the best. The high pressure statesmen of the Gas Trust will leave no lasting regrets behind them, for they played the thing for all it was worth.

THE reason the Traction Company gave for its refusal to bear its share of the expense of laying the vulcanite pavement around the public building, was that a chemical analysis established a deficiency of carbonate of lime (chalk). Why or how carbonate of lime became the lost constituent no one seemed able to explain. The company won the suit brought against it by the Public Building Commission, but the Supreme Court, Justice Sterrett, has ruled that the company must pay $12,668; this reverses the lower Court, Judge Mitchell, and is a victory for Solicitor Samuel Peltz, of the Building Commission.

THE projected hotel at Broad and Walnut will be under an annual charge in the way of payments on bonds and for repairs of $79,250. The organization is not yet complete, nor is the arrangement yet consummated for the site. The gentlemen identified with the project are able financially, to push it to completion. It is a little too soon to furnish details as to material that will be wanted. Only this much is to be said, that the finest hardwoods the country affords will be used, the finest and most durable stone, and the most approved appliances of every character. Details concerning material, quantity and quality, will be furnished as soon as the architects are ready.

THE extraordinary investments made and to be made this year, in all directions, is raising the inquiry as to the probability of a financial panic in the near future. This inquiry ought to possess special interest to real estate and building interests, because a panic means an abrupt suspension of building enterprise and building operations very often, to say nothing of a precipitation of values in real estate. Treasurer Jordan, at Washington, sees no danger, but bankers are loth to say so if they do. The first intimation given by banking interests is a restriction of loans. So far money is plenty. The danger, if there is any, is not immediate. If it comes at all, it will come as a result of the extraordinary absorption of money in all kinds of enterprises. The last panic came from two causes, first, deficient supply of currency and banking capital, and second, an undue appreciation of values of all kinds. At present there are no speculative values, nor is there any actual or prospective scarcity of money, yet it must be kept in mind, there may be, and particularly from the cause above mentioned. Real estate is advancing in all quarters, but not dangerously. One impending cause is, that there is an outflow or an outflowing tendency from the cities and larger towns of householders and manufacturers. This is more particularly noticeable in New England cities. It is also observable very distinctly in Pennsylvania towns. Manufacturing enterprise is seeking new sites in new towns, and people are seeking homes farther away from their places of work. This is not such a trifling cause as might be supposed. And yet city real estate is improving, though not to the extent of bordering on speculative limits. Manufacturers of many kinds are as well off, and better off fifty miles from Philadelphia than they are in the city, and small house-holders are better off five to ten miles away, than within a shorter distance.

While the conserving factors opposing a recurrence of an industrial or financial depression are stronger than they have ever before, there are still possibilities worth watching, lest the extraordinary employment of capital may create a stringency which may suddenly check building enterprise.

BUSINESS men do not seem to sympathize with the newspaper view of the failure in Congress of the river and harbor bill.

The farmers are as pleased to see Uncle Sam's operations in real-estate improvement, as intelligent citizens are to see a city doing the same thing. The country cannot do better than to study the example of successful business men. The property of both alike is enhanced in value by making it available for practical use in daily life. Many a farm, and many a country is worthless from lack of drainage. And when the navigation of a river, or the safety of a harbor is improved, it is difficult to estimate high enough the actual addition to the nation's wealth.

In the Epoch, Mr. Jesse Seligman gives the far-seeing business view, when he says: "I would expend whatever surplus there was in making internal improvements."

President Fry of the Bank of New York, to the same effect, says: "I think $100,000,000, the minimum fixed by law to be kept in the Treasury, quite sufficient. A very large amount might be very advantageously expended in improving the Mississippi river, and other rivers and harbors."

AS AN instance of the depressing effect of labor troubles on public enterprise and the general welfare, it is stated that many capitalists, who, before the spring flurry of strikes, had contemplated investments which would have employed large numbers of men, immediately on their recurrence suspended all preparations. But they have been since somewhat encouraged by seeing that the Knights of Labor could not enforce their orders to stop work.

ADVOCATES of an elevated road see, in the melancholy accident of a week ago by a collision of a Pennsylvania express train with a street passenger car of the Second and Third street line, an additional argument in favor of their plan. A whole family were injured, and the only wonder is that a score were not killed. The street car got off the track on the crossing, and before they could haul out of the way, was struck by the train. The car was full of passengers, but all got out of danger except the unfortunate family.

THE RECENT loss of our Temple Theatre by fire gives interest to the annual exhibit of the theatres burned in Eastern countries. The number thus destroyed in 1886 was seven—one in Derby, England, from a gas explosion; one in Bockum, Germany, an unoccupied building; one at Ravenna, communicated from without; one in Madrid; one in Orleansville, Algiers; one in Lemberg, confined to the cellar; and lastly, the theatre of Tinnevely, in India, involving the loss of about a hundred lives.

White's Theatre in Detroit was also destroyed during the year. This showing is just about the same as that for 1885, both as to the number of buildings, and the number of lives. We hope prudence may ensure a better record for 1887.

WITH LOUIS WAGNER at the head of the Department of Public Works, tax-payers will expect, and they have a right to expect, the introduction of practical business methods in the management of the departments under his supervision. The exercise of economy in its strictest sense together with that business shrewdness which exacts the greatest purchasing power for every dollar expended for work or material will soon place the city in a financial position to start greatly needed improvements and continue them for years to come.

The days of voluptuous ease for city officials and profitable sinecures for the friends of politicians will soon be ended.

Mr. Fittler's selection of Messrs. Stokely and Wagner is indicative of the earnestness and quality of the man, and foreshadowed the coming of an era of sound business management of the city's affairs, and that those who fill public positions must earn their salaries if they wish to retain them.

WHAT are we to do with our streets? We cannot afford to go on blindly wasting thousands of dollars every year, tinkering with cobble-stones, when we know that they must be renewed with asphalt or granite blocks as soon as the city is financially able to make the change. The cost of repairing our cobble-stone pavements is simply a waste of just so much money.

We must meet the necessity in a business way—stop trifling with the question, determine what is best to do, and do it.

The city is not able to make all the improvements needed; yet, next to the water question, our streets are the most important. We must act and act promptly; delay means waste. If Councils will pass an ordinance appropriating the net yearly earnings of the Gas Works to the renewal of the street pavement, and the business of making gas is pushed with the same vigor and energy that it would be were it a private enterprise.

The $2,000,000, which it is claimed the Gas Works are capable of earning every year will solve the street pavement problem, and give us one of the many needed improvements at least.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH seem determined to maintain under Mr. Patterson as its chief, the same high standard for efficiency which it had reached under Major Veale's management. Mr. Patterson fully realizes the importance of frequent and thorough inspection, and understands the necessity for active aggressive measures in order that the best possible sanitary condition of the city may be established. To do this, the force of inspectors should be doubled at once. There are now employed under the direction of the Board but eight inspectors, and when it is understood that these eight men must traverse about nine hundred miles of streets and alleys besides answering and examining into thousands of cases of complaints that are filed at the office of the Board, it can be seen that their task is not an easy one, in fact much that the Board aims to have done is through necessity left undone. This branch of the public services is too important to be neglected. Spasmodic efforts on the eve of threatened danger would not be needed if the efficiency of this Board was not impaired by mistaken economy. A force of from sixteen to twenty competent inspectors with authority to act and act vigorously is what the city needs, and the Board of Health should apply to Councils for the necessary increase at an early day.

THE manner in which architects receive the inevitable criticisms of half-fledged or super-annuated amateurs, depends partly on their temperament and partly on their calibre. It must needs be that criticisms shall come, and woe be to those who deserve them; but it is peculiarly trying to a sensitive mind, conscious of being a little beyond the appreciation of his time, to be hauled over the coals of popular ignorance by one who has just smattering enough of theoretic lore to mystify the uncultivated reader. This is generally among the trials that genius must endure. But fortunately there is an honest and generous side of the popular mind that perceives and respects what is superior, though it cannot fully comprehend it; just as there is an immense amount of devotion on the part of millions who know next to nothing of its unseen object. There is this to encourage architects under all these annoyances, that while they are in a very high sense artists, they constitute a class whose art lays fast hold of human every-day life by ministering to its hourly comforts; and that every well-devised and well-built house or block, church or hotel, will probably stand long after their demise, as a monument to their skill.

The right of councils to reject bids is unquestioned, provided the reservation of the right is given in the advertisement. Even without this notice, the right exists. This question came up last week when the councils' committee on printing, asked the City Solicitor if they had a right to refuse a bid when they believed the bidder had not the proper facilities to do the work. Bids were asked for councils' printing for one year. Two bids were received, one from M. P. Summers & Co., and one from Dunlap and Clarke. The committee entertained a doubt as to the ability of the first-named firm to do the work. The City Solicitor quoted the cause and said that under the word "responsible" as applied to a bidder then rested the necessary discretionary power to reject one and accept another. He also quoted a Supreme Court decision to the same effect. It was decided to award the contract to Dunlap and Clarke. The printers' union protested against the awarding of the contract to the other firm named, because the office was a non-union one.

MR. SINGERLY'S Sunday Record has reached a circulation of over 50,000. The Real Estate Record is also climbing that way very rapidly. Such evidences of public appreciation are very gratifying, but merit should be reaped the success it deserves, always.

OUR fire-escape laws, as they are enforced in this city, are of very little account. Our best hotels, with their five, six and seven-story sleeping rooms, would prove to be perfect death-traps in case of fire.

Too much safety is sacrificed for the sake of appearance.

Elevators should be prohibited altogether in hotels of greater height than three stories, unless the shaft is built of brick and provided with iron doors. Mills and hotels should be compelled to erect narrow iron porches or balconies on all sides, at each story above the third, these to connect with the fire-escapes.

Such safety measures might impair the architectural beauty of these buildings somewhat, but they would prove a heap of comfort to those who happen to be caught in the upper stories in case of fire.

THE discussion set on foot by railway accidents, as to where the fires should be which warm the cars, is leading to other important improvements. All the advantages of basement heating in dwellings are found to apply to railway cars, together with the vital one of less fatal consequences in case of a smash-up at the bottom of some ravine.

THE extinction of the entire 3-per-cent. loan by the 30th of June next, is a reminder that questions of a vital financial nature are likely to arise soon, and which cannot be disposed of by a congressional vote. The possibility of a financial stringency is spoken of with suggestive frequency. We are destroying our national bank basis, and are not building or even surveying for a new foundation.

THE railroad managers are apparently settling on the plan of heating by furnaces under the car bodies. Draft, and air supply, instantaneous extinguishment from without, and the great economy in seating-room saved, are the decisive considerations. After the horrible spectacles witnessed, of roasting passengers alive before the cars could be cut into, it is time this question should be settled.

THE extent to which metallic roofing has interfered with the slate-roofing business, is indicated by the fact that there is a decline in the market price of school slates. The great popularity attained by tin as a roofing material, has recently suffered some discount from inferior qualities of plate; the manufacturers having presumed upon the great demand for it.

IT is a cheering comment on the "American Composite" style of architecture, that visitors from abroad are studying with interest our modern country houses. Besides their subtle allusion everywhere to the "Declaration of Independence," the air of home comfort pervading their aspect is described as exceedingly restful to the eye and heart of the weary tourist. Their interior noticeable features are, the skilful arrangement of rooms, abundant closets, the apt utilization of odd corners, the elegant roof plans, the double-hung windows, and the sliding-door inventions.

THE property No. 327 Chestnut street, which was originally the residence of General Thomas Cadwalader, has been purchased by the City Trust, Safe Deposit and Security Company for $90,000. The lot has a frontage of 25 feet and a depth of 130 feet.

SOME of our readers may not know that the ancients manufactured stone cloth, which, because it was cleaned by being passed through fire, was called amianthus, meaning indestructible. It was woven from a fibrous rock of very strange structure, composed of silica, magnesia, lime, and oxide of iron. The different varieties of this singular rock have been popularly known as rock-cork, so light as to swim in water, rock-leather, and rock-wood. In our time it is called asbestos, and is used as a fire-proof material in a great variety of applications. Its fibrous character adapts it to any necessary manipulations. This material is destined to find many uses in building, where fire-proof and non-heat-conducting properties are required.

FEW FEATURES of a house are more noticeable than its entrance. It seems to introduce us to its life and spirit. It may wear the plain word "Welcome!" all over its generous proportions and its genial aspect, or it may impress us as cold and forbidding.

We need not wonder that the ancients adorned their doorways with every emblem of hospitality and domestic virtue; and regarded the lares familiares as stationed about them to welcome the friendly and warn off the inimical.

The doors of our dwellings should smile upon every passer-by. It should not look like the castle-knocker which one Irishman found and nailed to his cabin door, and which a friend complimented by declaring that it had "a fine little house to it!" It should be proportional and appropriate in style, but always calculated to impress pleasantly.

It seems a pity that the great value of spruce as a building material should have been so long overlooked; and until the days of extremely low prices are numbered, the sudden discovery that no other timber is at once so strong, stiff and light, has opened the eyes of both dealers and producers, and accordingly its price has gone up. Heretofore it has been brought to this market from the North-Eastern States, New York, Canada, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Messrs. Miller & Levering of this city, have secured a tract in West Virginia, and are bringing an extra quality of spruce from Hamblenton of that State. They find an increasing demand for it, and are only hindered in their new enterprise by a scarcity of cars in that region. With the improved appreciation of this not too plentiful timber, whose qualities no other combines, and with the tendencies of speculators already manifest to secure large tracts, a greater advance in price must soon follow.

THE IDEA of incarcerating a man in prison for a long term of years and using his skill and labor to enrich heartless prison contractors is neither just nor in keeping with the age in which we live. The prisoner should share in the profits of his labor, and instead of being turned out upon the world even worse off than a beggar, he should be handed at the time of his discharge the full share of his earnings, and encouraged to continue the industry he has learned at so sad a cost.

He has paid the penalty of his crime, then why not give him a chance to fill a man's place again.

THE English utilization of town sewage by irrigation, for agricultural improvement, is in several respects a good suggestion to all large American cities and the rural surroundings. A paper read by one Dr. Tidy before the Society of Arts, and a reply or criticism by Alfred Carpenter, have brought all important features of the subject squarely and plainly before the general public. Dr. Tidy treats it under four heads:—1st, the method of applying sewage to land; 2d, the soil best suited for irrigation; 3d, the crops most suitable for a sewage farm; 4th, the value of the crops so grown. Mr. Carpenter considers these heads in the same order. The conclusions reached are:—1st, that the systematic utilization of the sewage of cities located on rivers should obviate the pollution of those rivers, and prevent much disease; 2d, that the sewage must be delivered promptly, before undergoing any change from the action of air and heat; 3d, that it must be delivered intermittently, according to crop and season; 4th, that its prompt and proper distribution over the surface must be provided for; 5th, the carriers must be completely emptied; 6th, the objects to be attained, and the general management must be carefully studied.

The annual natural irrigation and fertilization of the lower Nile regions of Egypt seem to have suggested this important subject. But when we consider the sanitary side of it in its relations to the cities themselves, its importance is almost infinitely increased. Chemistry still has a great work to do in both these two fields of sewage and agricultural fertilizers.

THE PROFESSIONAL architects deplore the tendency of small builders to make their own plans and drawings; and this not from any hankering for the jobs, but from an honest conviction that the interests of the builders themselves suffer from it; while the architectural appearance of the city is very seriously affected. The city laws require side-walks and gutters to conform to a general plan of grading. The result is effective drainage and convenient walks. Unfortunately there is no way to compel builders to conform to any æsthetic grading; and hence the tastes of different individuals crop out here and there, with some very low spots. We see no remedy, until the elements of architecture are introduced as a branch of common education in the public schools. Culture alone can produce a general appreciation of the well-settled principles with which architecture deals.

WHILE MANY of our architects scan every corner, to calculate the chances for a longed-for client, most of those of recognized merit have all the business they can do justice to. They are just now in the full tide of preparation for the summer's building. On many boards we find completed drawings of scenes that will actually meet the eye before the fall of next winter's snow. But on more are outlines and ground plans yet unfinished; and, in passing among the city offices, one is struck with the great variety of styles, from the simplest combination of the pure Grecian types, to the modern composite which the authorities are slow to sanction; but which have come to stay, all the same. The fact is, the conservatism of the "professional" is being persistently supplemented by the amateur; and the crop is unquestionably producing some valuable varieties.

Recent Decisions in Pennsylvania in Relation to Matters Concerning Real Estate and Commercial Law.

Decided by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

BANKING.

Where a customer of a bank is having a line of discounts and deposits with it, notes against third persons as collateral to such discounts, and the collateral notes are subsequently paid, the bank holds the money as pledge for the discounts, and the customer becomes a depositor with the bank as to such money.

The Statute of Limitations does not begin to run on a deposit in a bank until after a demand made.

DEED.

Where a deed has passed from the dominion of the grantor, its delivery will be presumed; but if it remain with the grantor, the onus of proving delivery rests with the party claiming under it.

In ejectment, the burden of proving delivery of a deed under which defendant claims title is upon him, and not upon plaintiff, who claims by title paramount.

MECHANICS' LIEN.

A battery of boilers embedded in brick stone and mortar, a furnace chimney built on firm foundation and extending up through the roof, engines, furnaces, etc., in a mill firmly attached, and part of the realty are part of the building; and alterations, additions, and repairs upon them entitle the parties who furnish the materials and labor therefor, to a lien on the building.

A mechanic's lien for repairs and additions is now vitiated by the claim being for the erection, construction, improvement, and fitting-up of the buildings, the words "erection" and "construction" are mere surplusage.

PARTNERSHIP.

The partner continuing the business cannot recover in assumpsit against his retiring partner on a note executed to him, by the latter, where the evidence shows that the consideration of the note was a due bill given by the retiring partner for money collected by the other out of partnership funds, to be used as a voucher in settlement of their partnership business.

SALES.

Upon a judicial sale and a failure of the purchaser to perform its terms, and a re-sale and a deed made thereon, the first purchaser is not liable for the sum bid by him, but only for the difference between the sum bid and the sum for which the property was afterwards resold.

He is not liable for such difference where the second sale stood confirmed and unrescinded. Where the conditions of the second sale are not the same as the first, but are less favorable to the purchaser, the difference between the sums bid cannot be recovered.

WILL.

Where a testator devised the rents and profits of land to his wife for life, and at her death to her heirs absolutely provisions in the will that if the buildings should be destroyed by fire she may sell the lot and appropriate the proceeds to her own use, and that if a child should be born to them the will should be null and void. Held not to prevent the operation of the rule in Shelley's case, and the wife will take an estate in fee simple.

BUILDERS' ITEMS.

Building and Real Estate Notes.

PREPARATIONS are going on for the promised improvements at Tiooga.

THE Northwest Section, east of the Ridge, is actively engaged in building a good class of houses.

PETER BARBERY & SON will build a three-story brick house at Reading, Pa., and Joseph A. Ganter will also erect a two-story brick house at same place.

EUGENE D. EGBERT, Esq., will build two new dwellings at Norristown, Pa., and Francis Shronk will also erect a store and two dwellings at same place.

MYERS & RATHFON have purchased ground on West Chestnut street near Lancaster avenue, Lancaster, Penna., and will erect two fine large private residences.

THE Girard Life Insurance and Annuity Company have purchased properties 1349 and 1351 Chestnut st., and No. 11 South Broad street, and will erect a 5-story building.

MR. JOHN SHARPE is busy with building on his half square on 21st street, between Diamond and Susquehanna ave.; and also in finishing a row of houses below that point.

A ZANE, 806 Walnut st. is building seven stores on Kensington avenue, above Haddington st. He also expects to erect at an early day, a block of houses on Second st., between Haddington St. and Lehigh ave.

MR. WILLIAM A. LIPPINCOTT has contracted for the erection of a fine store at 411 Arch street, four stories high, size 19x140 ft., with terra cotta front, costing about $20,000. Mr. A. H. Hutton, of No. 400 Chestnut street, is the architect.

ON North 11th, near Cambria, Sager & Ringe, builders, had the sagacity to snap at a bargain offered them about a month ago, by which they secured a quarter square, which they have just sold at a clean profit of between two and three thousand dollars.

As we have predicted and hinted, there are some extensive suburban improvements actually commenced, of which our people will soon hear in many pleasant ways. For want of any other form of rapid transit, the Pennsylvania Road has secured, as yet, the lion's share of these enterprises.

THE property Nos. 214 and 216 S. Broad street, adjoining the St. George Hotel, has been purchased by the Art Club of this city for $100,000. It has a frontage of 60 feet on Broad street, and extends back 150 feet. Extensive alterations and improvements are to be made, and an addition is to be erected to be made as a gallery for the exhibition of pictures.

THE building mania has struck Riegelsville, Bucks Co., Pa., unusually hard this Spring. Among the houses to be erected are the brick buildings on Cedar street for William Johnson, George Cooley and Oscar Tietzer. The large brick building for T. T. Bean, to be used as stores and dwelling houses; G. W. Fackenthal, double house, a parsonage for St. John's Reformed church, remodeling of St. Peter's Lutheran church.

MR. BATTLE is only waiting for the weather to put on a full force in the continuance of his work on the 101 houses projected for this Spring, near the corner of Lehigh Ave. and Germantown Road. He builds to sell, and to rent until sold. His houses, 14x50 and 15x75 containing four, six and nine rooms, will sell from $1700 to $5000. His terms are to be about $700 down, and the balance in one or two mortgages, to run any convenient time.

THE report of the Survey Department for 1880 just issued, shows that 27½ miles of sewers have been built during the year, of which 96,857 feet were built by the city, and 16,443 were constructed at private expense. The branch sewers have cost an average of $2.74 per foot. Work is in progress on four separate contracts of the intercepting sewer, and, except about 50 feet, the brick and iron conduits for this work are laid a distance of 31,000 feet, or nearly 6 miles. The sum of $391,495.31 was expended, and $550,030.39 has been carried to the credit of contracts now being fulfilled.—The Record.

AT Wynburne, seventeen miles out on the Pennsylvania Road, some enterprising parties have secured a tract of forty acres, and platted it into lots of from a half acre to one and two acres, adapted to all better grades of country or village mansions, with ground sufficient for very desirable homes. It is midway between Berwyn and Devon stations, which are only twelve or fifteen minutes' walk apart. Persons living there will be accommodated by two express trains daily, to and from the city, and by way-trains, now running every hour. The architects of the Wynburne Hotel, already erected, are Messrs. Culner & Rogers, at 901 Walnut St., entrance on 9th.

THE City Trust, Safe Deposit and Surety Company, whose "temporary office" at 1321 Walnut street, is most tastefully fitted up in cherry and mahogany finish, are preparing to make themselves a permanent home, by fitting their business plans, at 927 Chestnut street, having recently purchased that very desirable site, the old General Thomas Cadwalader residence, in close proximity to the Record building, and Post Office. They come in possession on July 1st, and will proceed at once to rebuild or remodel, as the case may be, after determining how best to conform to the irregular line of frontage at that point. The cost of the site, 25 feet by 130, was $90,000; and their new home, when finished, will contain every modern facility and security adapted to their extended business relations, and in keeping with the character of that neighborhood. This enterprising company enjoys the distinction of being the only one of its kind in the city, doing business as an incorporated institution under a charter from the State of Pennsylvania; all the others being, as we understand, foreign companies, licensed to do business here.

THE large store of Messrs. Darlington and Runk, at 1128 Chestnut street, is to be virtually demolished and rebuilt. The elegant front is to be preserved, fortunately, because nothing finer could take its place. The establishment consists now of two stores, one on Chestnut and one on Sansom, and the Chestnut street store in the rear half is at present but one story high. The new structure is to be five stories high throughout, embracing the two buildings in one plan. The Sansom street front is to be similar to the other. The central portion is to be finished into a superb series of galleries, one above the other, supported by handsome pillars, and surmounted by a tasteful and ample skylight. An elegant stairway at each front will lead to the galleries and main floors, and two elevators at each will afford all the convenience of ground floors. Passing to any upper floor by the elevator, will merely be like stepping through a door to another department. Mr. Andrews is the architect, and Benjamin Ketcham the builder. The property belongs to Mr. William Weightman, and it is said that from $75,000 to $100,000 is to be expended on the new structure. The firm of Darlington & Runk have occupied the present building for about eleven years, and have planned this reconstruction to accommodate their growing trade.

MR. J. M. SHARP, South College avenue near Nineteenth, will erect eight houses on Diamond street between Fifteenth and Carlisle, two with 17 feet front, and six 20 feet 3 inches, and all 32 feet depth. They will be three-stories high, in brown stone to first-story window sills, and pressed brick above, with hard-wood finish inside, and all modern improvements. The front windows will be double and will have plate glass, and the vestibules will have tiled floors. These houses will have side yards. He will also erect eight on Diamond between Twenty-first and Lambert, three-stories, brown-stone bases and pressed brick, with brown-stone trimming above. Fronts of 17 and 18 feet and depths of 97 feet 6 inches and 102 feet 9 inches, to be finished in hard wood with all modern conveniences, and to have plate glass in front windows and tile floors in vestibules. They will be similar to those between Fifteenth and Carlisle. Adjoining these on the rear and fronting on Twenty-first street and extending to Susquehanna avenue, he will build twenty-six three-story houses of brown stone to first-story window sills, and pressed brick and brown-stone trimmings above, with fronts of fifteen to sixteen feet and seventy-eight feet nine inches depth, to have natural-wood finish inside, all modern improvements, and tiled vestibules. Mr. Sharp will erect forty more on Eighteenth and Diamond to be divided, a row extending on Eighteenth and another on Diamond with pressed brick and brown-stone fronts, and those on Diamond to have hard-wood finish. All will be three-stories high. Of the houses built by J. M. Sharp all are sold as soon as finished, and at Mr. Sharp's figures.

Through the State and Elsewhere.

A NEW hall is to be erected by the Kelleyville Temperance Society.

MR. BRADFORD will build a double house at Lindenwald, New Jersey.

THE Methodists of Malvern, Chester Co., Pa., will build a new church.

J. WILSON BEER will erect a new house at Bedminsterville, Bucks county, Pa.

A NEW Catholic church is to be built at Mount Carmel, Northumberland Co., Pa.

HENRY MUSSER will build a dwelling and butcher shop at Beckersville, Bucks county, Pa.

PROF. J. W. MARKLEY will erect a dwelling house at Lederachville, Chester county, Pa.

WALTER MORRISSEY intends erecting a fine house on Evergreen avenue, Chestnut Hill.

FERDINAND KUNKLE and Eugene Stahlnecker are building a house at South Bethlehem, Pa.

PRESTON D. LEWIS, of Malvern, Chester county, Pa., will erect a handsome residence at that place.

THE H. F. Pickels Foundry Company, of Wilmington, Del., will erect a new foundry building at once.

JAMES W. HIGHAM, of this city, contemplates extensive improvements to his property in Gloucester City.

CAPT. C. J. HARRISON and Frank Granger will each commence the erection of a dwelling house in Somerset, Bucks county, Pa.

It is reported that a prominent shipbuilder is negotiating for the purchase of the Anconia Print Works wharf and buildings in New Jersey.

CAMP 52, P. O. S. of A., of Tower City, Schuylkill county, Pa., will build a new hall. Abuilding committee having been appointed for that purpose.

A COMMITTEE has been appointed to obtain plans and specifications for a new church for the congregation of the First Methodist Protestant Church, Third and Liberty streets, Camden, N. J.

THE Reading, Pa., Knights of Labor have a proposed building in the hands of a committee who will report this week as to cost of building lot, &c. The new hall is intended for the various assemblies of Reading.

A NEW church, to cost $30,000, is to be built by the congregation of the Trinity Baptist Church, of Camden, N. J., as soon as $20,000 are raised. $15,000 have been promised. A church committee has the matter in hand.

GEORGE H. NEWLAND, of Ridgeley Park, Pa., according to a Wilmington daily, has been prospecting at Elkton, Md., for a site for a hosiery mill. It is also reported that Mr. Newland has purchased part of the Moffit estate, Elkton, and will erect a 3-story brick mill.

MR. DOBINS is working upon the design of a modern Queen Anne house for Dr. Markley, of Hatboro, fifteen miles distant, on the North Penna. Branch of the Reading road. It is to be of cut grey-stone, with tile finish above the first story. The stairway hall will be 18 by 20 feet, finished in ash, and the entire building is to be supplied with all modern improvements.

MOST of our readers know where and what "Ellerslie" is—the rural manor and surrounding estate of 100 acres, of the well-known builder, Mr. Richard J. Dobbins, situated eight miles out on the Old York Road, in Cheltenham; but it may not be so widely known that his son, William E. Dobbins, having inherited his father's taste for building, and added to that avocation the profession of architect, is building, among other things, a nice business at 1001 Chestnut street, third floor. Recognized as a chip of the old block, his services are sought in the city and country. He is remodeling the north end of the market house, on the corner of Broad and Columbia avenue, into the new Columbia Swimming School and Gymnasium, to be conducted by Messrs. Barrett & Dinsmore. The pool is to be 25 by 90 feet, and 8 feet deep, of which the foundations and surrounding floors are to be concrete. It is to be supplied with all due dressing rooms, and the various appurtenances of a first-class establishment.

Architects' Notes.

It is recommended to professional architects, as a means of avoiding disputes and misunderstandings, to keep copies of their schedule charges to place early in the hands of their clients. Many cases of annoying litigation have arisen simply for the want of this. Some of the leading architects are having condensed price-schedules printed on their letterheads.

Attention is again being called to the superior safety of iron tank linings over lead. It is undeniable that some ingredients always held in solution in water, will act in some degree on lead, and the product is never harmless. Iron may be perfectly protected by non-corrosive materials; and even a slight fireproofing of iron oxide is rather healthful than otherwise.

A simple plan for a tank is to omit the usual stoopcock on the rising main, and the valve, air-pipes and strainer of the falling main; and for the latter substitute a perforated sheet-copper partition across the end of the tank nearest the entrance. Thus floating matter is arrested by the upper part of the partition; all that settles is on the bottom of the same part; and the perforated copper, constituting a very good strainer, is not so easily clogged from its vertical position, and is at any moment easily cleaned. An overflow pipe is inserted in the pure water side. The ball cock as usual regulates the supply.

Materials.

700 THE building-material men are very busy in their preparatory work. Large contracts are being placed, and inquiries are numerous from builders and others for spring and summer supplies.

2,250 The iron and steel makers are crowded with orders. Nails were advanced last Thursday to $2.50 a lot and $2.60 retail. Structural iron for building purposes is in active demand at 2 1/2c. for angles, and 3 1/2c.—3 1/2c. per pound for beams and channels.

1,700 All warfares benefit somebody. The blue-stone producers along the Hudson river are combining, it is said, to monopolize the sale and enhance the price of their output; while the large quarry interests of the Delaware and Neversink valleys are organizing to protect themselves. Between the two the builders are likely to find reasonable prices.

3,533 BUILDERS' hardware has improved slightly in price. Artisan's tools have been slightly advanced also. Cement and plaster are firm and the manufacturers are crowding work through to be ready for the heavy demand. Stone and slate are firm in price, and business has set in early. Several important sources of supply have been added. Roofing material manufacturers report excellent trade prospects and abundant inquiry.

2,744 THE lumber market is improving daily, but supplies arrive rather slowly. Lake navigation will stimulate the entire market east and west. The universal complaint is made that in the absence of fixed freight rates, contracts cannot be made safely. The railroad managers are hastening along their arrangements, and are promising to let shippers know at an early day. Lumber men, iron and steel makers, shippers of merchandise, and shippers of all kinds, are greatly put about because of the existing uncertainty. Lumber will be less affected than anything else, as the bulk of it comes by water.

The Supreme Court Reverses the Orphans' Court.

210 The question was as to the meaning of the will of Gus. C. Wheeler, of Chester County, when he wrote—"I leave and bequeath all my property as stated in my father's will to my wife." Mr. Wheeler had a life estate in his father's will with power to dispose of the corpus by appointment.

6,300 The Orphans' Court made the will apply to his whole estate, giving it all to the widow, as it did not believe that he intended to die intestate as to his other property.

6,400 Judge Gordon said that "The cardinal rule for the construction of wills is that the intent of the testator must be gathered from the will itself. Where there is no ambiguity in the terms of the will a doubt suggested by extraneous circumstances can not be permitted to affect the construction. The lower court has made a new and perhaps better will for Gus. C. Wheeler than he made for himself, but as it is one that he did not make we can not adopt it."

The Real Estate Exchange.

700 By courtesy of one of the officers, we are enabled to give an abstract of the Constitution of this corporation, although it would not be proper to print in full what they are preparing in official form for distribution among its members. The document comprises eleven articles, in thirty-eight sections. Article I. relates to the transfer of stock; Article II. to membership and privileges; Article III. to the government and meetings of the Exchange; Article IV. provides for five committees, and specifies their duties; Article V. prescribes the duties of the president, vice president, secretary and treasurer; Article VI. provides for suitable rooms, assessments and certain duties and privileges; Article VII. authorizes auction sales; Article VIII. relates to the registry of property for sale; Article IX. to arbitration in certain cases of dispute; Article X. to meetings; and Article XI. to amendments. The Exchange rooms are now being fitted and furnished, are over the People's Bank on Chestnut street.

Camden Enterprise.

After looking over the building field of Camden, we are convinced that much fewer buildings are to be erected there this season than was anticipated a month or two ago. But few owners, in fact, are making houses to occupy as homes. The bulk of the enterprise is with speculators who, being practical builders, buy vacant blocks and lots, and build to sell. The houses thus put up are neat, substantial and comfortable; but very few of them will be of the higher architectural class.

Camden appears to lack the educational influence of first-class architects who live and office there; and know how to build their own fortunes, by inspiring the intelligent and well-to-do owners with higher tastes and public spirit! All thriving cities that grow and blossom into fine residences, are indebted to this wholesome influence than they realize.

As far as we can learn, there is no architect's office in Camden. It would pay that respectable city of sixty odd thousand people to present some first-class influential architect with a handsomely furnished office, on the same principle that they maintain their excellent public schools for educational purposes.

The leading builders of Camden are Roberts & Cohn, at 105 Market street. They have lately erected from one to two hundred houses a year, and had planned to build a large number this year. They are now largely discounting their early plans, preparing at present to build only forty-three houses—twenty-seven three-story brick buildings on Berkley St., between Sixth and Seventh sts., and sixteen two-story on Newton Ave.

Why this change of plans? It behoves the tax-payers, the educators and all those friendly to that sister city of ours, to inquire into the causes of this serious check to public enterprise.

Had it not been for the labor agitations this spring, Roberts & Cohn would have built from 300 to 400 houses and stores this year; and the boom of enterprise and universal prosperity, which unmistakably set in with the new year, would have gone on unchecked.

But what has employed the evenings and leisure hours of these mechanics instead? Lodge and division meetings! not for self improvement, but for meddlesome and hostile discussion of the affairs of their employers! The spirit of classish conspiracy has possessed them, and the demagogues among them, have led the unsuspecting and the weak to resolve on sacrificing their own interests to the injury of their neighbors.

It would be well if these "suicidal strikers," actual and in embryo, could thoroughly understand the universal, strong, popular feeling against them, growing stronger and more determined, with each recurrence of these needless, and useless interruptions to business enterprise.

Some little time since the wage-workers of that community served a formal notice upon employers that they would not work with non-union men; nor for those who employed them! This latter condition originated in the fact that the former one had been obviated by arranging the work so as to keep them separate. But this was not enough. The hostile claims were determined that non-union men should not get work in the city.

Was ever a more impudent and unwarrantable position taken by any civilized class of men?

Among the many organizations in our land, it is high time there was one for the protection of the people's common rights. And if we do not mistake the signs of the times, the best intelligence of our people will soon take that form.

There are three classes of persons training in the ranks of the Anarchists;—the Red-shirts, the Blue-shirts, and the White-shirts. The first are natural revolutionists, pure and simple; delighting in nothing so much as turmoil, warfare and disintegration. The second are saturated with the old country spirit of classishness; and have even their consciences as well as their limited intellects warped into supreme devotion to the "ORDER" to which they happen to belong. If their clan was the "Non-Union," their zeal would be just as strong on that side. The White-shirts are the weaklings, who follow and jump over the bars whenever the Blue and Red-shirts bell-wether.

Judge Penrose of the Orphans' Court defines the law as to Trustees.

Under an order of court a sale of the real estate of George Baker, who died April 25th, 1882, took place on January 25th, 1885, the purchasers being Charles C. Baker, Caroline Haman, and Julia E. Castor, children of the decedent. Baker and Haman being Trustees under the will.

The property sold brought $13,900, an account of which was filed and duly audited; the purchasers resold the property for $28,000 which left a net profit of $13,600. When the case was before the Court, Robert W. Finletter, counsel, asked that the original purchasers be surcharged with this profit. The claim was based first, upon an alleged expressed agreement, and second, upon the relation of trust existing between the parties. In allowing this claim Judge Penrose said: "The principles with regard to Trustees and cestui que trusts are familiar and perfectly well settled. The law exacts the most unswerving fidelity to the cestui que trust, and without regard to honesty of motive will not permit the Trustee to derive in any manner a profit or personal advantage from the trust property, and this even though the advantage would be lost if not taken by him."

—The contract for the construction of the Somerest street bridge will probably be awarded at the next meeting of the Survey Committee. The city has appropriated $30,000 for the construction of the bridge.

—The Chief Engineer of the Gas Trust recommends the expenditure of $2,000 for a Belgian block pavement at Point Breeze as a substitute for the plank road, and the purchase of purifying apparatus at the Ninth Ward works, which will cost $30,000.

—The journeymen plumbers of Philadelphia by committee, presented a resolution, asking the master plumbers to agree to not employ non-union men, and to pay $3.50 for nine hours and eight on Saturday. The master plumbers refused to do so, and voted to leave the matter with each individual employer.

A patent has been granted for a new method of laying slate on roofs. Large overlapping slates are arranged lightweight of the roof, then smaller over-lapping cap slates covering the points between the ends of the larger slates, and having a length which is greater than the width of the larger slates, are used.

—Since 1880, the assessed value of property subject to taxation has increased from $536,667,834 to $628,679,312, an increase in round numbers of $92,000,000 or less than $14,000,000 per year. This represents a very slow increase considering the vast amount of building work done during these seven years. Between 30,000 and 35,000 houses were erected, averaging all on the lower estimate at $1000 each we have $30,000,000 for that item alone, to say nothing of the natural increase in the value of land. For every $1,072 realized in 1880 under the $2.00 tax, $1,161 are realized now under the $1.55 assessment, an increase of $89 on $1,072. The necessity for additional funds has grown faster than the taxation.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, MARCH 28, 1887.

NEW YORKERS have tested the matter of Philadelphia lawyers more than once, but Daniel Dougherty in the trial of Alderman Cleary carried off the palm of victory, for it is conceded that the disagreement of the jury was the result of Mr. Dougherty's strong argument and brilliant rhetoric.

THE Curtin Committee estimates the loss of the strikers alone on the Missouri Pacific Railway as the result of last year's strikes at $900,000. When the flour and ham and beef and house rent this enormous sum represents are considered, the blarsted tom foolery of the average strike is made painfully apparent.

THE following master builders have been selected to attend the National Master Builders' Convention to be held this week at Chicago: Frederick F. Myhlertz, Henry R. Coulomb, William Harkness, Jr., George Watson, David A. Woelpper, Chas. H. Reeves and John S. Stevens. The alternates are William Gray, George W. Roydhouse, W. B. Irvine, Stacy Reeves, Charles Gillingham, W. H. Albertson, and W. C. McPherson.

CHIEF OF POLICE STEWART seems to have awakened from a quiet slumber, which, if not as long as that of the mythical Van Winkle, was certainly none the less somniferous. It is hardly creditable that our worthy chief could have remained so long oblivious to the fragrant devilities of China-town, (Ninth and Race streets), while every property owner in that section has for a long time been seriously impressed with the depreciating influences these oriental iniquities were having upon the value of property in that neighborhood. A tallow dip was never equal to the refugence of a summer sun at noon time.

EMPLOYERS should note the recent Supreme Court decision, that a power of attorney to deduct amounts of bills to be contracted is invalid out of wages to be earned. The Supreme Court in the case reviewed says:

"The attempt was to assign that which had no existence, either substantial or incipient. There was no foundation on which an indebtedness might arise. It was the mere possibility of a subsequent acquisition of property. This is too vague and uncertain. It cannot be sustained as a valid assignment and transfer of property."

THE fire losses for 1886 are ascertained to have been $116,000,000, which is considerably in excess of any previous year. The work of reform in insurance matters makes slow progress, because of the number of middlemen who must be supported. The importance of radical reform is recognized, and the effort now in hand in five of the principal cities of the Union will be watched with interest by all who desire to escape from the high charges of the existing systems.

WHATEVER tendencies there may be to wards a real-estate boom in other cities, it can be said there is nothing of the sort apparent here. A general improvement in real estate may safely be said to have taken place, but nothing more. In fact, on certain streets and in certain localities, the desire to sell and get away is leading to offerings of real estate on liberal terms. It is well that holders of property are pursuing the conservative course of holding property at about its actual value. New Yorkers are threatened with a boom. In some Western cities real estate is advancing sharply.

IF landlords and real estate agents having property under their control would abolish but a part of their stupidity, they would confer a great favor upon both renters and purchasers.

In many instances the sign 'To Let' bears neither name nor address, in other cases the name of the agent appears as blooming and as refulgent as a patent medicine sign on a Jersey barn, but where the agent can be found is left entirely to the conjuring abilities of the reader of the sign.

This neglect frequently results in the loss of a good tenant, or if the property is for sale, of a very desirable purchaser, for busy men looking for an investment have neither the time nor disposition to go monkeying around in quest of owners or agents who want to rent or sell but who are too busy or indifferent to attend to such details as proper sign boards, &c.

BANQUO'S GHOST is up again in the shape of a bill before the Legislature for an elevated road on Market street. Among the gentlemen who have discussed the matter and who are said to be interested in the project are Messrs. Henry C. Gibson, Thomas Dolan, William H. Kemble, P. A. B. Widener, William L. Elkins, James McManes, Colonel B. K. Jamison, Major Joseph F. F. Tobias and John Wanamaker. The route is out Market street to Darby road, thence to the park, and out Darby road to Forty-fourth street, and around to Market. The combination is a strong one, and will in time carry its purpose through.

As the fireplace, being the source of comfort and cheery brightness during the inclement seasons, is the one point of a sitting room toward which the eye is most frequently turned, it seems eminently fit that it should be made a point of special adornment. To this end, the new artistic wood mantels of mahogany, antique oak and ash are especially welcome. Brass combined with tiles, in tasteful colors and patterns, is quite effective; although wrought-iron, nickel and polished steel must always have their recurring run of popularity. Grates and fenders, scuttles, shovels and tongs, afford ample scope for the expression of cultivated tastes, and the embodiment of much beauty in color and form. The real incongruity of wood as a casing for fire, may not prevent that popular material from remaining one of fashion's favorites.

BAD FOR WEST PHILADELPHIA.—Real estate owners in West Philadelphia are seriously alarmed at the prospective depreciation of rents in that section, owing to the uncertainty of travel. The fact is there are not only an unusual amount of empty houses at present, but there will be such an exodus of renters from that section this Spring, unless some more reliable means of communication than that furnished by the Traction Company is guaranteed, that the outlook is really a bad one. In some cases nearly all of the tenants in long rows of houses have already vacated, and the balance will follow as soon as they can get away.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, although only available for the residents of a limited area of West Philadelphia, has by discrimination and other unjust treatment of its patrons, practically impaired the growth of the section it passes through. An effort is now being made on the part of the residents along its line, east of Fifty-second street, to obtain the necessary legislation for protection against Railroad discrimination.

A Chestnut street merchant, who resides no further west than Fortieth street, said to a REAL ESTATE RECORD reporter that he would not put up with the annoyances and inconveniences that the unreliability of the Traction Company caused him last winter if he could get his rent free. He stated that in many instances it amounted to actual suffering; that during the most bitter winter weather, and in the worst storms, he has been compelled with the other passengers to leave the cars, and face the storm for squares, and that the exposure of women and children was often pitiful in the extreme. He also said that in the row in which he lives there are but four houses occupied, and that every one of these will be vacated in a month or so at the most.

The rooms of the new Philadelphia Real Estate Exchange are being handsomely fitted up over the People's Bank, and when these are completed, notice will be given of a grand christening assembly, and after that the Exchange will meet regularly. The Board meet at present every Tuesday. This organization, whose rules and regulations we give below, is destined to exert a strong influence for good upon all the real estate interests of the city. It is by no means a mutual admiration society, but a dignified institution, too long delayed, but now nearly ready to take its place among the highest forms of organized commercial wisdom. These rules are supplementary to the Constitution, which was outlined last week.

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

SEC. 1. Every member of the Exchange, or subscriber thereto, before he shall be entitled to any of the privileges thereof, shall agree in writing to abide by and support the By-Laws and Rules and Regulations of the said Exchange, and shall pay to the Treasurer thereof the fees and dues hereinafter provided.

SEC. 2. Every member, upon complying with Section 1st of these Rules and Regulations, shall be entitled to a Certificate of Membership bearing the Corporate seal, and signed by the President and Secretary of the Exchange.

SEC. 3. Every Stockholder of the Exchange shall pay to the Treasurer thereof the sum of Fifty ($50) Dollars per annum, as an assessment, half-yearly in advance, on the first day of the months of February and August.

SEC. 4. Annual members shall pay the sum of One Hundred (100) Dollars per annum, half-yearly in advance, on the days aforesaid.

SEC. 5. Annual subscribers shall pay such assessments, and have such privileges as the Board of Directors may hereafter provide.

SEC. 6. Auction sales of Real Estate and Securities shall be held in the Exchange at Twelve o'clock, Meridian, upon such days as the Board of Directors may appoint; due notice of which shall be given to the members and the public.

SEC. 7. The rooms of the Exchange shall be open to members from nine o'clock A. M., to four o'clock P. M., and to the general public from twelve o'clock M., to four o'clock P. M.

SEC. 8. Every member who shall employ the Exchange to sell property or securities at auction, shall pay to the Exchange, for fees and the cost of advertising, the sum of Fifteen Dollars ($15) for each piece of property exposed, and in the case of the sale of said property or security the sum of Two Dollars and Fifty Cents ($2.50) for each One Thousand (1000) Dollars or fractional part thereof, that the said property shall bring.

SEC. 9. The rooms of the Exchange shall be in the charge of a Superintendent, who shall be chosen by the Board, at a salary to be fixed by them. He shall have full charge and control of the rooms of the Exchange, subject to the Executive Committee and the rules and regulations of the Board.

SEC. 18. Any member or subscriber guilty of improper conduct in the rooms of the Exchange shall be liable to a fine, at the discretion of the Executive Committee, in a sum not exceeding Ten (10) Dollars.

SEC. 19. A repetition of any such offence will subject the offender to expulsion from the privileges of the Exchange, by a vote of the Board of Directors.

SEC. 20. Smoking in the rooms of the Exchange is strictly prohibited.

Building under Cover in Mid-Winter.

Of the thousands who have daily passed the corner of Fourth and Chestnut streets, during the last three months, and noticed the high, tight board fence which has not particularly graced the southeast corner, very few have had any idea of what was going on behind it. We are prepared to assure the great uninformed majority that it is not a cock or prize-fighter's arena, or a Punch and Judy show, or a circus, or a Chinese joss-house. It is nothing less than an important experiment in the unique matter of turning winter into summer, for building purposes.

Messrs. Brown Bros. & Co., bankers, etc., having arranged to erect a handsome structure on that eligible site, and accepted the plans and specifications of the popular architect, Mr. Theophilus P. Chandler, Jr., and having secured the services of J. E. & A. L. Pennock, builders, the question arose, how early in the spring the work could begin. For some important reasons, the proprietors wished to have it completed at the earliest possible moment, at whatever additional expense.

Urgent necessity is the opportunity of genius. Here was an opening that could not well escape the combined sagacity of such a brace of artisans. "Why not begin at once?" popped itself into the inventive brain of Mr. Pennock. "Sure enough, why not?" said Theophilus. "Begin at once!" said the bankers. "What; in mid-winter, when all building enterprise is hibernating?" "Yes; we have an idea, thus and so!" And accordingly, that tight board-fence was built around the corner, of matched hemlock, and covered with strong, extra-heavy canvas; and five large hot-air stoves were put in, afterwards increased to eight; and the excavation commenced December 14th. From that time forth the work has progressed, until now they are working in the third story. From twenty-five to thirty men have been employed, who have worked right through the winter, and not a single day lost.

The building, which is to be finished into elegant offices, is 45x60, and is to be nine-stories high; the top being 120 feet above the pavement. The enclosing fence was at first 20 feet high, supposing that they could not get above that before spring. But the experiment has so far exceeded their expectations, that it is now 44 feet high. We all know what the winter has been, with the mercury at times hovering about zero. Inside that tent the extreme fall has been to 16°, with an average of about 30°, during the coldest intervals. Their mortar has been made of the best brand of Rosendale cement, mixed dry in the proportion of 1 to 3, and when wet thoroughly hoed, and used promptly. During a good deal of the time relay hands have worked nights getting materials into place for the next day; electric lights being put in for that purpose. The furnaces were dispensed with some weeks ago. The total additional cost of the whole experiment has been about $3,000. For smaller structures the cost would be proportionally less; and it is considered questionable whether the plan would be practicable with a very large area. And yet, it has worked so satisfactorily in this case, that they are planning to adopt it for another somewhat larger building, next winter. If ever the plan is generally adopted, builders and masons will quote Shakespeare with an action:—

"Now is the winter of our discontent Turned to glorious summer!"

High-priced Real Estate.

It is predicted that the "toe" of Manhattan Island, bounded by the Bay, the East and North rivers, and Chambers street, is destined to have a more dense business population than any other equal area on earth. This is because all the Exchanges of that great metropolis are located there. And in view of this present condition, it is interesting to know that at seventeen different points at estate fronting on Wall, Broad, New, Liberty, Cedar, Nassau, Exchange Place, Pine and Temple streets, within that area, has been sold since 1881, at prices ranging from $32.31, at the corner of Broadway and Exchange place, in 1883, to $330.70 at the corner of Wall and Broad, in 1882, per square foot. The lowest price would have covered the land with $10 hills, and the highest would have covered it six deep. The highest price is more than twice that of any other.

Wanamaker's Anniversary.

Ten years ago when John Wanamaker started his Grand Depot at 13th and Market streets, the good citizens of this city little dreamed of the magnificent proportions the store would reach in a simple decade. Spreading as it has sideways, longways, downwards and upwards it is beyond all question the largest store in the world. The anniversary of the great store took place on Saturday, 12th instant, it was just ten years old.

A New Catholic University to be Located at Washington, D. C.

According to the Sun, of Baltimore, the Pope at Rome has approved the plan of the new Catholic University which is to be located at Washington, D. C. The Pope has left the matter of construction and location to the Bishops, and places the institution under the sole jurisdiction of the American Hierarchy.

Philadelphia in the Lead.

THE Scientific American in an article on tin-roofing plates refers to the well-known house of Merchant & Co., No. 525 Arch St., Philadelphia, who also have branch offices in New York and Chicago. The American says they have long been identified with the best quality of tin plates, and no better proof could be had of the justice of this than the fact that their goods were chosen, after undergoing the most thorough and severe tests, for the White House at Washington, and that at a price higher than that of their competitors. Mr. Charles Merchant, of that firm, was formerly in the United States naval service, resigning in 1865, while ranking as Commander. He entered the service as Acting Midshipman in 1852.—Army and Navy Journal, March 5.

Municipal Doings.

THE 1000 gas lamps and 800 gasoline lamps authorized, will be shortly located.

It is proposed to expend $10,000 in extending the school house at Nineteenth and Addison streets. The Legislature is to be asked to pass a law allowing the city to make contracts for street cleaning for a longer period than one year. The following streets were authorized by Common Councils to be graded: Church, Kirkbride, Jackson, Thirty-second, Forty-ninth, Fifty-eighth, Huntingdon, Thirtieth, Erie avenue, Seventeenth, Thirty-first, Twenty-first, Twenty-sixth, Herman, Tacony, Thirtieth and Irving streets. Also the repaving of Front street, from Wharton to Dickinson; Washington avenue, from Front to Sixth; Christian, from Third to Fifth; Locust, from Fourth to Fifth; Branch, from Third to Fourth; Cherry, from Fifth to Sixth; Quarry, from Second to Third; Moravian, from Broad to Fifteenth; Locust, from Twentieth to Twenty-second; Marble, from Tenth to Eleventh; Cherry, from Sixteenth west, as far as $60.00 will permit; Buttonwood, from Sixth to Tenth; West, from Parrish to Poplar; Mount Vernon, from Broad west as far as $20.00 will permit (with sheet asphaltum); Front, from Girard avenue to Thompson; Poplar, from Sixth to Seventh; Hamilton, from Thirty-eighth east (with vitrified bricks), as far as $8000 will permit; Broad, from Federal south, as far as $10,000 will permit (with granite blocks); Thirtieth, from Chestnut to Walnut; Broad, from Diamond north, as far as $20,000 will permit (with sheet asphaltum); Fitzwater, from Twentieth to Twenty-second.

A Suit of Interest to Real Estate Owners.

Geo. Gebble, of Darby, Chester Co., Pa., sued the Philadelphia & Baltimore Railroad Company for damages arising from the road running within a few feet of the plaintiff's front gate, but in no other way touching his property. The claim was that the privacy and beauty of the place were destroyed, and the damages were claimed on that account. Damages amounting to $4000 was awarded by the jury.

MESSRS. DISTEL & SONS, of Allentown, Pa., will erect a two story brick building at the corner of Eighth and Liberty streets, at that place.

Disposal of House Drainage.

"What is a leaching cesspool?" This question was put to the writer, within the past few weeks, by a gentleman who had provided for the disposal of the drainage of five houses into twice this number of these, even too yet, common holes for the accumulation and storage of the wastes from sinks, tubs and water-closets. "Your so called drainage well" was the answer given.

Further observation of the means resorted to for disposing of the drainage from many of the dwellings in our immediate surroundings, is my only apology for writing upon a subject which it would seem, in these enlightened times of civilization and sanitary knowledge, should have been so thoroughly brought to the minds of each and every household, of even narrow intelligence, as to call for no further discussion.

It may be stated as proved that typhoid fever and poisoning from drains, cesspools or vaults are inseparably connected, and the man who lives in a town supplied with good sewers is, on the average, less than half as likely to be afflicted with this terrible disease than one who dwells among cesspools.

By good sewers we understand conduits in which the filth of the town is immediately removed where it can do no harm, and so designed that there shall be no retention or deposit of any liquid or suspended matter to cause obstruction or breaks, whereby a seepage of the filth into the soil may occur.

It is surely apparent that with the leaching cesspool, there is the chief factor for promoting all that we would desire to avoid, by putting in a good system of sewers, the filth is ultimately discharged where it can do the greatest harm by polluting the soil about our dwellings and enlarging the fields of decomposition and filth to the extent of the porosity of the soil, and the more porous the soil the greater will be the extent of the filth.

It may not be practicable for those dwellings lying in the suburban districts to secure the benefits of a good sewer, but this is no reason that the people who desire to secure the advantages of living out of town should, in their endeavor to provide for healthful houses, make their habitations just the reverse. If there is but a small area of ground about the house, the cesspool may be the only available means for disposing of the drainage, and in this case surely one would not feel it to be right to so construct a receptacle which would permit of the filth from his dwelling, soaking back against the foundation walls or under the cellar floor, to allow the cellar acting as a ventilating chimney, to draw in the emanations from the filthy ground. No; the cesspool should be built as "tight as a bottle," and made of such limited capacity that it would require frequent cleaning out.

The means of disposing of the drainage should be the first consideration on the part of the householder, then he will be better able to decide as to the advisability of utilizing all of the so-called modern conveniences.

In the case of isolated houses, having an area of land equal to twenty-five hundred square feet, for a moderate sized dwelling, the best and most successful plan, as yet devised, is to let the drainage discharge into a shallow tank fitted with a dividing wall and arranged to dispose of the sewage intermittently into a series of small tile pipes, laid at a gentle grade within twelve inches of the surface of the ground.

This tank is generally built of brick, laid in cement and lined with Portland cement so that it is perfectly tight. It may be set close to the house, keeping as well up on the elevated ground as possible, so that the discharge-pipe when carried out, will emerge near the surface. The contents of the tank are changed every day or once in several days, according to the capacity, so that the sewage never attains that putrescence which long storage in a cesspool develops.

The discharge into the small pipes laid, open-jointed, near the surface of the ground, admit of a complete absorption of the sewage by the action of atmosphere and roots, and the intervals between the discharges allow time for this absorption, so that a supersaturation of the earth cannot occur.

Such a system of drainage can be constructed with little more expense, and is far safer than the best cesspool.

The tank will require occasional cleansing, though, being shallow, this can be done readily, and the amount of sediment to be cleaned out will be so small that by mixing it with dry earth it will be rendered innoxious, and can be applied as a manure to flower-beds or on the vegetable garden.

GEORGE N. BELL.

427 WALNUT STREET,
Philadelphia, March 17, 1887.

Welding by Electricity.

In the course of a lecture before the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, on the new art of electric welding, Professor Elihu Thompson said:

"In electric welding some of the metals which it was before impossible to weld became most easily dealt with, such as cast iron, brass and bronze, zinc, tin, etc. Copper, formerly welded with so great difficulty and uncertainty, unites with great ease and certainty. Iron, steel, platinum and like metals, formerly known as weldable, are with great facility welded electrically. Thus far I have not tried any pieces of the same metal and failed to secure a weld.

"My process may be briefly stated to consist in forcibly pressing together the bars or other pieces to be joined or welded, and then passing an electric current of large volume through the pieces, a small portion of the bars on each side of the place of abutment serving as a path to the current. The resistance to the passage of the current at the meeting point of the bars gives rise to a welding heat at this point, and the pressure causes a thorough union and generally a slight expansion at the point of union, caused by the approach of the pieces under pressure. The uses are certainly not few. One of the most evident applications is in joining end to end wires of copper and iron for various purposes, such as forming coils of magnets, and in telegraph, telephone and electric light lines for the avoidance of clumsy or resisting joints.

"Here is a large screw, which was shortened by cutting out a piece between the head and the screw portion, these two parts having been subsequently welded together, but in an incomplete way. Nevertheless, in turning the resulting screw into a block of hard wood by a wrench applied to the head it has twisted off an inch or two below the weld.

"Lastly I mention the case of a penknife, which having lost its blade by breakage close to the handle, has had new pieces of steel, subsequently ground into blades, welded on the stumps of the old blades, which project scarcely one-eighth of an inch from the handle, and the welding was done without removing the stumps from the tortoise-shell handle. Several other penknives have been similarly resuscitated, and I am pleased to say that in the one instance in which a blade was afterward accidentally broken it gave way at a distance from the weld."—Phila. Record.

G. HARRY DAVIS, of Germantown, is erecting a fine dwelling on Tulpehocken street, near Main, at that place.

A New City by the Sea.

A syndicate composed mostly of Philadelphia gentlemen and whose names are given as follows: William Massey, H. R. Kibbe, Joseph L. Wells, Frank Siddall, Dr. Thomas Seyfert, and Dr. Henry Weston, have purchased from the Tatham Brothers, lead pipe manufacturers of this city, the property known as Tatham's or Secon Mile Beach, situated south of Sea Isle City, and separated from the same by Townsend's Inlet. Price paid was $250,000. A hotel to cost $40,000 is to be erected this summer. Plans are not drawn, and architects are to be invited to submit plans and design. Mr. Joseph L. Wells 1617 Chestnut street has the hotel matter in hand.

Architects Busy.

—Out-door activities will be in full blast by the middle of April, when hundreds of contractors and mechanics will be pushing forward the work now being planned.

—Messrs. Yarnell & Cooper, 14 S. Penn Square, are occupied with the beginning of a large number of structures in the city, and in Camden; not sufficiently advanced to get particulars.

—Architects say that the unusually large number of buildings projected for this year, will be swelled by the number of those which were interrupted last year by the labor troubles; owners and contractors preferring to stop, rather than proceed in the midst of uncertainties. It is the unanimous opinion of Builders and Architects, that nothing but the repetition of that ruinous folly, can prevent a strong tide of Building and Real Estate enterprise. Public opinion is more and more inclined to put reckless strikers under ban! And we sincerely hope that none but wise councils will prevail this year.

—Will. H. Decker, of 1407½ Chestnut street is engaged upon the following jobs, all but one being commenced: For Ford & Kindig, 27 N. 7th st., 5-story building, 20x132 ft., store and warehouse, $24,000. For Reier & Schmelke, 1231 Girard ave., 3-stories, store and dwelling, 18x39, $5,800. For J. Becker, cor. 5th and Columbia aves. changing dwelling into stores, $5,000. For August Schlemmer, 27th and Columbia aves., brewery and saloon, $13,000. For Mr. Craig Lippincott, addition to residence, including billiard room, hardwood finish, $5,000. (Plans making but not under contract.) For Frank C. Scherer, cor. 20th and Brown, carriage factory, 3-stories, 50x70, $15,000.

—Chas. W. Bolton, 1510 Chestnut street, is engaged upon the drawings and specifications for a large amount of spring and summer work. Having made a good record in town, he is receiving orders from all parts of the State, and some from other states. He kindly favors us with statements of a few of them, as follows:

—A Presbyterian church at the corner of Broad and Castlee avenue. The foundations are built, and the first-floor joists laid. The society has voted $35,000 for the structure. It is to be of green stone, trimmed with Indiana limestone, circular in form, with two entrances; one clear story, surmounted by a conical roof, covered with red slate. It is to have four gables, with stained glass windows; size 70x80 feet, adapted to seat 800; containing gallery, and study, the basement to be fitted up with all modern church appointments and conveniences. The interior is to be finished in chestnut, with timber roof ceiling also in chestnut.

—A Presbyterian church at the corner of Wharton and 33d streets, of brown stone, slate roof, octagonal tower at the front corner; large stained-glass windows; choir gallery and organ. The seating will be fan-shaped, with the pulpit at the corner opposite the tower, and three entrances. Cost about $25,000.

—A brick chapel at Le Mont, Centre county, Pa.

—A stone chapel at Pottstown, Pa., to cost nearly $6,000.

—A large farm barn and carriage house, 110x80 feet, for Mr. George E. Bartol, on the Springton Manor Farm, Chester county, Pa.; a stone basement, finished into a large granary and root sub-cellar. Above this, frame and slate roof. Every modern convenience. Cost from $3,000 to $10,000.

—A Railroad Depot and Passenger Station for the Ohio River Railroad Co., at Parkersburg, W. Va.; first story stone, above, brick and terra cotta; first floor for baggage, heating apparatus, &c.; second floor, waiting rooms, ticket office; third and fourth floors, the Company's offices; supplied with an elevator and large brick vault.

—Frame dwelling at Newtown. Double house at Fernwood, Pa., for Mr. O. H. Carey and Mr. Helm. First floor, stone, with piazza above that, shingle and slate roof.

BUILDERS' ITEMS.

Building and Real Estate Notes.

THE property 2106 Walnut street, 24x199½ feet, sold for $47,500.

A PROPERTY, 500x109, on Second street, near Huntingdon, sold for $14,000.

A PROPERTY, 28½x118, south side Green street, west of Twenty-third, sold for $15,000.

THE old Post Office building, Fifth and Chestnut streets, will be torn down in May.

THE property, 164x105, N. E. corner Seventh and Huntingdon streets, sold for $15,000.

CORNER properties are in demand; N. E. corner Twenty-third and Locust streets, 19x70, sold for $12,000.

THE lot on Fortieth street, east side from Spring Garden north, and extending west to Preston, sold for $81,500.

GROUND was broken at Ninth street and Lehigh avenue, on Friday, for the new Evangelical German Lutheran Church of the Cross.

WILSON EYRE is the architect of the building to be erected by the City Trust, Safe Deposit and Surety Company. The building will be erected during the summer months, and be ready for occupancy September 1st.

THE hotel to be erected on the site of the old Hahnemann Medical College on Filbert street, above Eleventh, will be 52x132 feet, brick and brown-stone trimmings, five-stories high, ninety rooms. The building will be heated by steam and lighted by electricity. Mr. Benjamin Hilt, of Frankford, is the owner.

N. & S. TAYLOR & Co. secured the contract to supply roofing material for the Grand Union Station at Indianapolis, Ind., which is to cost $1,000,000. The depot proper will be 150 feet square, iron and glass, and the adjoining sheds, 750 feet long by 190 feet wide. Fully 150,000 square feet of surface will be required.

JOHN LOUCLIN, office Eighth street, below Lehigh Avenue, has purchased plot of ground bounded by Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, Lehigh Avenue and Huntingdon street, this is a part of the old Oakdale Skating Park, and will build 80 or 90 of the better class of houses; also a row of about 30 houses on Ninth street, west of Kensington basin.

THE Irish societies of this city contemplate the erection of a large hall. Already $250,- 000 have been pledged. Mr. P. J. Walsh, who is active in the advocacy of the project, thinks a million dollars can be had for the purpose. If the project is carried out according to the present conception of it, the hall will be the largest in the city, and will be erected on a self-supporting basis.

SOME capitalists with their eyes open have found out that property on Arch street, near Fifth, is both desirable and cheap, on account of the old structures encumbering it, and the good beginning already made in the way of improvements, is to be soon followed up by several others. Every additional good building erected in that vicinity, is a stronger suggestion of more to follow.

S. R. MORCH, H. Brownback, George Brownback, Frank Rhoads and D. MacFeat were recent purchasers of building lots in Phoenixville, Pa.

TWENTY-FIVE thousand dollars have been subscribed for the erection of a new Opera House at Titusville, Pa., on the site of the one destroyed by fire.

THE tenement houses on the "Hornet lot," Elderton, Pa., now the property of Wm. Gibson, will be torn down and replaced by a palatial edifice.

MR. RICHARD CLAYTON, of Middletown, Del., will build immediately, a number of handsome dwelling houses at the corner of Lake and Cass streets, at that place.

MESSRS. HESS & BRO. will erect a new frame dwelling-house, on Fifth street, South Bethlehem, for Peter Burd, of Hellertown, Pa. Operations will begin immediately.

THE new building in course of erection on the lot lately purchased by Dr. C. E. Peace, of Middletown, Pa., and being built by D. L. Kaufman, is expected to be finished by the first of April.

MESSRS. Samuel A. Butz, and Edward Ruhe of Allentown, Pa., will commence the erection of two handsome three-story houses on South Seventh street, at that place, about the first of April.

W. H. RAMSEY, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., will commence the erection of a two-story stone hall, at that place. The first floor will be occupied by the new bank and offices, the second as a public hall.

S. H. COLESTOCK, of Renovo, Pa., has a contract with Mr. John Crites, of Renovo, for the erection of a block of three brick dwelling-houses on the corner of Tenth street and Erie ave., at that place.

THERE is trouble brewing among the Camden building trades. The master builders met last week and pledged themselves under $100 forfeit, not to employ or discharge a workman on account of their secret organization.

INDIANA county is to have a new jail at last. The County Commissioners have just approved a plan, which provides for jail, Sheriff's office, and residence. The jail will contain male, female, and boys' wards, hospital and prisoner's counsel room.

LEVI B. KELET, of Phoenixville, Pa., will build three houses at that place; also F. A. Tencate, cashier of Phoenix Iron Co., will build five new houses on Vanderslice street, at that place. Benjamin Moyer will build another near the old Fountain Inn, at same place.

OIL CITY, Pa., is to have a new Catholic Church, to cost in the neighborhood of $50,000. It is to be located at the head of Sycamore street, on the site of the old Tremont House and the Duncan House, and will be 110x165 feet. Father Carroll has the matter in charge.

THE amount of improvement all along the line of the North Penn Railroad, from the South end of the Sellersville tunnel, is wonderful. Indications are that in the course of ten or fifteen years, at present rate of improvement, there will be almost a continuous town to Landsdale, and yet beyond, including Sellersville, Souderton and Telford.

THE following are recent purchasers of lots in Williamsport, Pa., for building purposes: Frank B. Meall, George W. Gilmore, J. J. Miles Yost, George A. Clymer, John Dietrich, Isidor Samson, Joseph R. Hostetter, J. O. Boyce, D. A. Kuapp, John J. Reardon, Henry Ertel, Reinhard C. Walker, Rosanna Zimmer, Hiram A. Merriman, and James A. Dodd.

TO MAKE THE OUTSIDE BETTER.

An architect must of necessity be a learned man, and must know many things that he can't find in books. The quality of building material changes faster than books.

The architect knows how to specify for a good tin roof. Does he know how to obtain it? He wants the owner to be satisfied and to know that he gets the roof he pays for.

There is just one way; only one way—if it is the best tin he is after—and that is to specify—every sheet stamped with the BRAND and THICKNESS.

The brand is "GILBERTSON'S OLD METHOD." The thickness is IC or IX.

If the tin is not stamped, you may or you may not get it. How are you to know after the roof is on? You may say it is not the proper tin. The roofer may say it is.

Our tin is a sheet of steel, covered with all the coating it will carry. You can't see through it—you can't even guess the thickness after the roof is laid.

The brand we have mentioned is guaranteed in all respects to do anything required of a first class roof—guaranteed by us to our customers, and to us by the maker—that it will stand all the tests claimed for it—and more too.

No similar guarantees are offered today by other importers with their plates—that is, guarantees that are so direct, positive or convincing.

A guarantee 'equal to something else' is no guarantee at all.

A good roof should last thirty to forty years, without any other expense than painting.

Inferior tin may last five years—often does not last that long—then the expense begins and keeps on.

The first cost of a good roof is but a trifle more than that of inferior tin—in the long run much less.

The above facts cannot be contradicted.

PETER BURD, of South Bethlehem, Pa., will build a frame dwelling on Fifth street, that place.

JOSEPH S. KING, of Upper Nwchlan, Chester county, Pa., is going to build an addition to his barn.

HENRY HAKER has started two two-story brick dwellings on North Hartley street, York, Pa.

F. K. HIPPLE, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., is making extensive improvements in his house at that place.

THE Hammoniton, N. J. Borough Council has appointed a special committee to erect a jail at that place.

D. L. ANTRIM, of Danville, Pa., is building a storeroom and dwelling-house combined, at that place.

MRS. TAYLOR RIGGS, of Downingtown, Chester county, will build on two lots opposite Clifton Station.

FRANK BRENN, of Bridgeton, N. J., has bought the Episcopal parsonage, and is going to remodel it.

MRS. ESTHER CHORLTON will build a handsome residence on West Orthodox street, Frankford, Pa.

THE stone quarries adjacent to this city have all they can attend to in getting out material for buildings.

CHESTER and Lancaster Boards of Trade are making diligent efforts to have manufacturers locate in those places.

CONSTANT ALBERTSON, of South Bridge-ton, N. J., is building a new house on the Albertson tract at that place.

THE Boyertown, Pa. School Board has decided to build a new two-story school house on Chestnut street, that place.

GEORGE T. BOWMAN, of Frankford, Pa., will build a foundry at the dummy turn. The structure will be 40x75 feet.

D. E. GRAY & Co., of Tunkhannock, Pa., are preparing the ground for their new building on Ylaga street, at that place.

JOSEPH MARTIN, of Easton, Pa., will erect a dwelling and storeroom corner of Cattell and Monroe streets, at that place.

JAMES CALLANAN, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., will erect a number of small houses at Garrett Hill, at that place, this spring.

THE Board of Trade, of Look Haven, this state, has secured two large manufactories to be located in that place this spring.

MR. FRANK D. LA LAMME, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., will build in April, upon the ground lately purchased by him at that place.

F. S. SHIRE, of Perkasio, Pa., will erect a new house, barn and other outbuildings about a half-mile west of Tylersport, Pa.

A NEW Sunday-school building is to be erected by the Second Presbyterian Church, at Fourth and Benson streets, Camden, N. J.

WORSLEY BROS. will start a double three-story brick residence on Fourth street near Vine, South Bethlehem, Pa., at an early day.

W. C. EYSTER, of Chambersburg, Pa., is making extensive improvements on his property on Philadelphia avenue, that place.

THE German Catholics of South Bethlehem, Pa., and vicinity, will erect a new church edifice on Walnut street, that place.

A STEEL-plate mill is being built at Ferndale, Pa., for the Catasauqua Manufacturing Co.; J. S. Allam, of South Bethlehem, is the contractor.

FOUR new buildings will be erected this spring at Laurelton, Pa., viz., that of D. R. Smith, S. H. Binganfan, Abe Shirk, and Morris Boop.

THE directors of the Lakewood School of the New Theology, at Meadville, Pa., have decided to build a large hotel and an amphitheatre this season.

THE Swarthmore Improvement Company is asking for bids for the erection of a house on its grounds near Swarthmore, that will cost in the neighborhood of $5,000.

WITHIN a few days a party of gentlemen representing a syndicate that has been organized in this city will view and purchase a large block of lots south of St. David's.

COL. THOMAS Y. FIELD, U. S. Army, and S. R. Wood, of the firm of Wood Bros., of this city, have purchased adjoining cottages on West Wayne avenue, at Wayne, Pa.

CLAYSVILLE, Pa., is to have a new courthouse building; a whole square on the north side of Main street will be donated for the purpose. Its estimated cost is $250,000.

THE Phillipsburg Ledger states that tenement houses are very scarce, and rents enormous at that place. A fine opportunity is here offered to capitalists to erect small brick houses, with good cellars and conveniences. These houses could be rented in advance, at almost any reasonable figure.

THE Germantown Independent says: One of the leading contractors of Germantown, who for several years has been prominently connected and interested in building operations, a few days since informed us that he had made several plans and estimates for large houses, and that, while he was the lowest bidder, he doubted whether they would be erected at present, owing to the high price of building materials and labor. He stated that buildings will cost from ten to fifteen per cent. more this year than last, and that many men prefer waiting another year. Especially is this the case, he said, with parties contemplating the erection of large houses. There will be plenty of small houses built, because they are very much in demand. A real estate agent, in speaking about the need of medium-sized houses, said that if he had fifty houses that were nicely located, that he could rent for from $18 to $20 per month, they would be all taken up within a week.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, APRIL 4, 1887.

FROM a pugilistic stand-point, Mayor Smith's administration can be regarded as a decided success.

The retiring Mayor's advocacy of a measure in Councils killed it like a flash. There is no love lost between the Mayor and Councils.

THE building at Fifth and Chestnut streets is neither suitable nor large enough to meet the wants of our new city government. The improvements that are to be made are but poor expedients to meet the necessities of the case, and should be abandoned.

It seems an anomaly that notwithstanding the millions that have been spent on the new City Hall, the Mayor and his staff cannot be accommodated with office room in it. The fact is, the Building Commission are not building wisely. There are acres of room in the big building that could be made available in a short time for city purposes, and which would besides saving the heavy rents the city is now paying for offices fulfill in a measure at least the purposes for which the building is intended. The fact is there is too much tower and too little common sense about the whole concern.

A QUESTION of no small importance to real estate owners, architects and builders, is what will be the probable effects of the increased suburban fares on suburban property. One rider, in a near-by suburb, figures up his increased fare is equal to 62 per cent. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company and other companies encouraged the people to buy and build along their lines by low rates of travel. The law may not be susceptible of such a construction as to allow of a commutation under it, but it is certain the prime purpose of that law never contemplated the destruction of the commutation system. But it is not the mere increase in the cost of riding to and fro near suburban localities; it is to the possible and probable effects of such actual discrimination on suburban real estate and rentals. To perhaps one-half, possibly three-fourths of suburban residents, the increased cost makes no difference. The increase may check the outflow of small householders who are helping to build up a score of beautiful suburban localities which hang like spangles to a coronet. Those largely interested in these enterprises have not yet been able to give the question serious attention. It is, after all, a question of preference and a question of ability as to living in or out of town. Higher fares naturally check enterprise. The real estate interests of the city have much at stake in the determination of railroad fares.

It would be a right good thing for the young men of this city if our rich men should put their wits and money together and start a free technical and manual labor school, big enough and liberal enough in its management to give all the boys, without regard to creed or color, a chance to learn how to become useful and self-supporting members of the community.

There are thousands of poor men's sons in this city who desire to become something better than street corner statuettes or heroes of slugging matches. These boys are practically shut out from learning trades by the very trade unions to which many of their fathers belong. They cannot afford the schooling necessary to become lawyers and doctors and editors, and it's a good thing for the community that they cannot enter the ranks of these already over crowded professions. Most of these boys are living in idleness; on fine days they can be seen doing the double shuffle in front of corner groceries and whiskey mills, simply because they have little else to do. Not tending to the intellectual they soon get too big for school, or think they are, and this period is the most critical. Influences for good or evil shape their future destiny, for they cannot remain as drift wood very long. If the advantages of a technical school were open to them, at least seventy-five per cent. of those who drift into lives of infamy could be saved. There ought to be no difficulty in interesting our rich men in this question, neither is the sum necessary to carry out the idea of such staggering proportions as to make it impossible.

What a splendid opportunity for practical good this scheme presents, for a solitary dollar expended in teaching a young man how to earn a living is of infinitely more value to him than hundreds of dollars given to him in charity.

COINCIDENCE be hanged! Instead of the twenty per cent increase on the price of commutation tickets on the Pennsylvania and Reading railroads being coincidental with the inter-state commerce law, it is a pure and simple pre-determined purpose to make the law obnoxious with the people. It is a piece of petty spite ingeniously contrived and pernicious in its influences. It affects fully 40,000 persons doing business in this city, who must either bear the infliction or give up their suburban homes. Its influence upon the future growth of our suburbs cannot be estimated, it is a hard and cruel blow to our enterprising operators in suburban real estate, who have opened heretofore comparatively unknown fields for improvement and investment, and who, with sleepless energy have pushed their operations, and with cheap fares as their shibboleth have interested thousands of our citizens who have grown tired of hog-hovels for residences. The investments of these men represent millions of dollars, and their enterprise and energy have already added hundreds of thousands of dollars to the yearly earnings of these self-same railroad companies. The narrow vision of the managers of our street railway companies, and their unjust exactions for years seriously impaired the growth of the city and largely curtailed their own yearly earnings. Public opinion and the good work of the city newspapers compelled them to yield at last, and their foolish adherence to the extra cent extortion is now made daily apparent by the increased number of riders. The fact is we are only entering into an era of great things for this city and vicinity. Money is plenty for honest investment, and no enterprise, however extensive, if free from wild-cat attainments, need suffer for the want of patrons. Property on our main business thoroughfares is rapidly increasing in value, and the possibilities for the near future can hardly be approximated.

Buildings representing the best efforts in design and structure of our architects are already contemplated in such numbers as will greatly change the appearance of our principal streets, and these are the natural outgrowth of the city's business thrift and the enterprise of its monied men.

The truth is, our people have petted and pampered these corporations just about long enough. The time has come for a radical change of sentiment along the whole line. Aggression must take the place of apathy, and it must begin at the primaries. Political sycophants, and the slaves of corporations must in future find no place in the state Legislature or City Councils. Responsible, earnest men must come to the front, and when placed at the front public sentiment must demand from them rigid laws, rigidly enforced against railroads and other corporations that are inimical to the city's interest and development. The people's rights must be protected, and the withering influences of soulless corporations must be opposed by every element of opposition it is possible to bring to bear against them.

The builders' convention which was held in Chicago last week, was a representative one in many respects, and marks a new era in the building trades. The necessity for the organization of such a body of men is of a late origin. Last week's convention was of necessity simply preliminary in its character. The representatives from Philadelphia speak of it as a most harmonious and promising meeting. The organization has taken hold of a problem which will grow in importance. The chief work done was the adoption of a constitution, a selection of committees, and the election of officers and directors.

The exchanges of opinions made in convention and in committee exhibited a remarkable unanimity of feeling concerning the necessity and scope of such an organization. Interesting details will be furnished later on.

The time of the convention aside from that of getting the machinery into shape, and perfecting the organization, was mainly taken up with hearing papers on various topics, the reports of committees, and the discussion of resolutions, the action of the association being of an advisory rather than a legislative character. Some of the subjects considered have an important bearing upon all departments of business interested directly or indirectly in the building trade.

The election of officers resulted in the choice of J. Milton Blair, Cincinnati, as President; John S. Stevens, Philadelphia, first Vice-President; Edward H. Scribner, St. Paul, second Vice-President; William H. Sayward, Boston, Secretary, and John H. Tucker, New York, Treasurer.

The convention adjourned on Thursday to meet in Cincinnati on the first Tuesday in February, 1888. Thursday evening the visiting delegates were given an elaborate banquet at the Grand Pacific Hotel by the Builders' and Traders' Exchange of this city. The convention was a successful one in every respect, and should result in much benefit to the building trade.

The loose manner in which bills are drawn for the opening of streets was very properly the subject of criticism by John Bardsley last Thursday in Councils. There is no occasion for the enormous damages the city is obliged to sustain. Rash and careless work is done in and out of Councils, and the city has to foot the bills.

Mr. Bardsley said:

"It is time to call a halt on the extravagance and looseness of opening streets and making other improvements without in some way limiting the cost to the city. Juries award damages against the city in 999 out of 1000 cases arising out of these loosely drawn bills. Property owners in the neighborhood of these improvements are the ones who benefit by them, and they ought in all cases to indemnify the city for resulting damages."

"If we appropriate $100,000 annually to pay mandammes for damages in opening streets, we have to pay nearly three times as much. That is the way to bankrupt the city."

The following clipping taken from the New York Tribune, verifies a prediction made in the columns of this journal but a few weeks ago:

"Six hundred convicts in Sing Sing Prison and several hundred more at Auburn are crying for work. Warden Brush says that if these idle men are not furnished with employment some of them will go insane. What a showing this makes for the senseless outcry began a few years ago against convict labor—the people taxed to support idle prisoners who suffer for lack of work, and who would be only too glad to support themselves."

The present system of enforced idleness of prisoners cannot be changed too soon, it was adapted to serve the purpose of popularizing members of the New York Legislature with the Knights of Labor, and was a mistake from the beginning.

A BILL has been introduced in the New York Legislature on the hotel-escape subject, which has been ordered to a third reading. It provides that all elevators hereafter constructed in all factories, hotels, printing establishments, etc., shall be provided with brick, stone, iron or other non-combustible shafts. All elevators now constructed shall be made noncombustible within six months. All such buildings shall erect fire-escapes or iron ladders on each outer wall, with balconies above the second stories running under the windows to such fire-escapes or ladders. All rooms shall be furnished with rope or iron ladders long enough to reach near the ground, with one end securely fastened in the room.

Here in Philadelphia we are taking things easy. Let any man look at the fire-escape facilities at any of our large hotels, and imagine himself as a guest, aroused on the fifth or sixth floors at 2 o'clock in the morning, with the cry of fire, one of several hundred guests each seeking for instant escape. The stairways are flues, the distant elevator is narrow, crowded. What then! There is need here for legislation as to construction of elevator shafts as well as to more complete exterior facilities for escape. Some future hotel horror will emphasize the necessity.

FOR the first quarter of 1887 the value of real estate transfers in Lycoming county foot up $462,182.86. The demand for real estate in Williamsport was never greater than now.

THE Bridgeton Pioneer says: "The man who has the ability to erect a number of first-class brick tenements in this city, with modern improvements, has a fortune before him."

CONTROLLER DECHERT proposes to occasionally examine contract work for himself. Agent Addis, of the Citizens' Municipal Association, is following the contractors up with vigilance.

THE Pennsylvania Railroad Company was sued by Ellen Haggerty for the deterioration in the value of her property northeast corner of Twenty-third and Filbert streets, through the elevated railroad, and Ellen obtained a verdict for $4,260.

The Brill Car Company of West Philadelphia will soon begin to build new cars shops upon their large plot of ground at Bridesburg.

NEGOTIATIONS are still pending for the erection of a large building for the use of the Girard Life Insurance, Annuity and Trust Co., now located at 2020 Chestnut street.

At Jumbo Park, on South Broad street, lots are still being sold, and about fifty houses will soon be under way, under the supervision of Simpson & Co., and Steinbach & Chestnut.

On Twenty-seventh street, between Montgomery avenue and Berks street, Jacob E. Ridgway will build thirty-two houses, which when completed, will range in value from $3,500 to $6,000 each.

DEFINITE action in reference to the new building for the Howard Dispensary, on Lombard street, west of Fifteenth street, will probably be taken at the meeting to be held on the 11th of April.

WILLIAM C. MACKIE, of Chestnut Hill, has under his control the erection of a handsome dwelling for Henry D. Welsh, president of the Chestnut Hill branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

H. R. SHOCH, who has been extensively engaged in building operations, will do but little in the way of building this spring, as he will take quite an extended tour through the State, in search of much needed rest.

The lot at the southeast corner of Broad and Catharine streets has been sold for $24,000. The Lombard Street Howard Hospital and Infirmary Association is the purchaser, and will erect suitable hospital buildings.

DUBOIS & WELSH have just commenced excavations for a large building at 1136 and 1138 Passyunk Road, to be three-stories high, and when completed will be occupied by James J. Tracey as an installment house.

The new building to be erected at the southeast corner of Franklin and Girard avenue for the National Security Bank, is to cost $10,000; the front on Girard avenue, will be 40 feet, and will be constructed of Fox Island granite.

In the northeastern section of the city, Messrs. W. G. & J. S. Serrill will erect about seventy-eight houses, among which will be a number of stores on Berks and York streets, all will be of pressed brick with either white or brown-stone trimmings.

E. V. LANDSALE will build a handsome house on Rumford avenue, near Stenton avenue, Mt. Airy; and Joseph Lizvey will build one at Allen's Lane and Green street; and C. C. Binney, a handsome cottage on Rumford avenue, same place.

THE old Commercial Hotel property has been bought, and it is very probable that a store will be erected thereon, to be occupied by Wood, Brown & Co., of 429 Market street, but the lease of the present occupant will not expire until January 1889.

JAMES H. LYONS is busily engaged on the foundations for fifty-three new structures, twenty-seven of which on Ridge avenue will be three-story stores with back buildings and contain ten rooms each. On Montgomery ave., and on Twenty-sixth street, there will be twenty-six two-story houses; all are to have pressed-brick fronts and brown-stone trimmings.

On a plot of ground on Federal street, east of Broad, John Gibson will erect for Mr. James Crowe, five houses—two fronting on Federal street will be three-stories in height and contain eleven rooms each, and three in the rear of two-stories each. These will be of pressed brick and marble trimmings with hard-wood finish and plate-glass windows. Patent pavements will be laid in front.

and Fifty-fourth street in the Twenty-seventh ward. To amend Section 25 of the ordinance carrying into effect the new city charter providing for the appointment of Councilmanic committees. To authorize the opening of Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth and Thompson streets, in the Twenty-ninth ward, and Thompson street, from Kirkbride to Bridge street, in the Twenty-fifth ward.

AMONG the measures passed at the last meeting of Select Council on Thursday last were these:

To authorize the construction of a bridge over the Reading Railroad at the Poplar street entrance to Fairmount Park.

To authorize the construction of sewers on Crown, Cedar, Dickinson, French, Fifteenth, Gaul, Mercer, Mascher, Colton, Nineteenth, Olive, Seventeenth, Tasker, Twelfth, Thirteenth and Wakefield streets, and Frankford and Ridge avenues.

For the grading of Twenty-ninth street, from Stiles to Oxford streets; Thompson street, from Twenty-eighth to Thirtieth streets; Jannette and Paoli avenues; Ninth, Pike, Canine and Thirteenth streets.

For the opening of Juniata (or Sixty-second-and-a-half) street, Westminster avenue (or Calowhill street), and Race street, Twenty-fourth Ward; Salmon street, Twenty-fifth Ward, and Thirty-second and Tasker streets.

For the construction of an iron bridge over the Connecting Railroad, at Sixth street.

To authorize the Chief Commissioner of Highways to contract for the reconstruction of the drawbridge over Frankford Creek, at Bridge street, Twenty-third Ward.

To appropriate $5000 to the Electrical Department, for continuing the underground electrical system northward of Lehigh avenue on Broad street as far as the money will go.

For sewers on Budd, Carpenter, Dickinson, Eighth, Forty-second, Filbert, Front, Hamilton, Preston, Second and Union streets, Ridge avenue, Kalos and Jeannette streets, and Manayunk avenue.

For a bridge on Ridge avenue over Wissahickon Creek, and for revising the lines and grades of Ridge avenue adjacent thereto. To open Clearfield street, from Jasper street to Kensington avenue, Forty-ninth and Fifty-fourth streets, and Chester and Springfield avenues, Cedar lane, from Haines to High street.

Resolution discharging the Committee on Water from the further consideration of the proposition of the South Mountain Water Company.

A large amount of accumulated business was hastily disposed of, having reference to grading, paving, sewers, electric lighting, revision of lines and curbs, laying water-pipe, authorizing the opening of streets and so on.

BUILDERS' ITEMS.

Building and Real Estate Notes.

BUILDING operations will be on quite an extensive scale this spring.

GROUND has been broken for the new factory at Marshall and Huntingdon streets.

A NEW Lutheran seminary is to be built at Mount Airy, $50,000 having been subscribed for that purpose.

PHIL. J. WALSH has just purchased fifteen six-room houses on Winton street, north side, between Eighth and Ninth streets.

R. J. ESSERCK & SON have just commenced operations on a frame building for Mr. Edward Worth, at Wawa, on the West Chester road.

THE GAS TRUST awarded a contract for 1500 lengths of 4-inch pipe, at 23 cents per foot, to the McNeale Pipe and Foundry Company.

JOHN M. BROOMALL, of Media, has sold to the Pennsylvania Training School for feeble-minded children, a tract of land with improvements in Middleton township, Delaware county.

THE Real Estate Exchange of New York has a Bureau of Information. For each inquiry ten cents is charged. During February the number of inquiries were 1,700, made by seventy-seven members.

A LARGE factory belonging to the Fitzhugh Manufacturing Company, at Centerton, near Elmer, New Jersey, was destroyed by fire on Wednesday last, and will be rebuilt at once.

THE old Wm. Penn Manor-farm, in Bucks county, Pa., has been sold by Hector Watson, of Fallsington, to George Warner, of Philadelphia, for $12,000. Many building improvements it is said, will be made thereon.

THE property No. 1107 Market street, has been purchased by the newly organized Market Street Bank, the premises are now occupied, and until the present occupants' lease expires, nothing can be done towards the erection of the new bank building.

THE following real estate sales recently took place in Bethlehem, Pa.: four building lots on Fourth avenue to Charles Boers; five lots on Broad street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues, to D. J. Godshalk; a lot on First avenue, near Market street, to John F. Meyers; a lot on Broad street, between Third and Fourth avenues, to Wm. Reader.

THE Northwestern Lumberman prints statistics as to the lumber trade for the Northwest for 1886, with comparisons with product of former years. Grand total of white product of the Northwest for 1886 was 7,425,368,000 feet. This is 317,000,000 feet in excess of the preceding year, and is only slightly short of the cut for the years 1882-3-4. The greatest gains were in the older milling districts.

THE market for real estate throughout the city has been very firm during the past week, and there has been considerable activity in the various kinds of property. The demand for building lots has been especially active, and many transactions have been hurried to a close by builders who desired to secure lots and file plans for buildings upon them before the Tenement House bill should become a law.—N. Y. Record and Guide.

Municipal Doings.

The following Common Council bills were passed:

To authorize the repaving of Front, Christian, Locust, Branch, Cherry, Quarry, Moravian, Marble, Buttonwood, Mount Vernon, Hamilton, South Broad, Thirtieth, North Broad and Fitzwater streets, and Washington avenue. Authorizing the erection of a large number of gas and gasoline lamps throughout the city. To place on the city plan Coral, Franklin and Salmon streets. To authorize the opening of Mather street from Venango street to Erie avenue. To authorize the opening of Church street in the Twenty-third Ward. To approve the contract of Thomas Gannon for building the school-house at Forty-third and Ogden streets. Granting permission to E. C. Knight to lay pipe on the streets around their property and to their wharves. Authorizing the Chief Commissioner of Highways to employ two watchmen on the Gray's Ferry Bridge. Authorizing the paving of Church street and the grading of Chester and Springfield avenues

HARVEY & SON, 2119 Fitzwater street, are busily engaged in excavations for nine two-story houses on Lombard street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth. These houses are all to be of pressed-brick fronts, with brown-stone trimmings, and will add very much to the appearance of that part of Lombard street.

THORNTON, MERRITT & THORNTON will add to their list of new buildings some fifty-five houses on Montgomery and Columbia avenues and on Twenty-sixth and on Bambray streets. These will be of pressed brick laid in red mortar, with brown-stone trimmings, and all the brick work both back and front will be buttered. Hard wood mantels and wardrobes in all, and cemented cellar floors. Those on Twenty-sixth street will have frescoed vestibules and ceilings in addition to all the latest improvements.

MR. COURTLAND RHODES is about to build fourteen two-story seven-room houses with all modern conveniences and improvements, on Seventh street, below Lehigh avenue; also six on Ninth street, below Lehigh avenue, and seven on Hutchinson street, below Lehigh avenue. The houses to be located on Hutchinson street will contain the same number of rooms, only smaller. The Ninth street houses are to be the most attractive for their size, of any in the city, and will sell at about $3,200. Those on Seventh street at about $2,700.

Architects' Notes.

Mr. Chas. F. Collom, of 909 Walnut st., has just completed drawings for the Third Baptist Church of Germantown, which will be built of pointed stone, with white-stone trimmings, and will cost when completed about $24,000. He is also preparing for a country residence for Mr. Fred. Turner at Norwood, a frame in the Queen Anne style, and will cost complete $9,500.

Mr. Frank R. Watson, of 518 Walnut st., has now on hand a five-story store, with basement and sub-basement to be erected at 406 North Fifth st., and running back in an L shape to 503 Market st., for Mr. L. Sternberger. The building will be heavy in construction and will be of pressed brick laid in red mortar, with brown-stone trimmings and copper cornices. A hydraulic elevator will run the entire height of the building, and when completed will be occupied by the Lloyd & Supple Hardware Company. In about two weeks operations will also commence on the National Security Bank building at the corner of Franklin street and Girard avenue, extending 40 feet on Girard avenue, 70 feet on Franklin street, and running in an irregular shape to a 50 feet rear. It will be built entirely of Fox Island granite, including the gables, cornices and chimneys, and the interior will be furnished in cherry with tiled floors and wainscoting. He will also erect a country residence at Lansdowne for Mr. Joseph Vansant, and one at Clifton Heights for Mr. J. H. Hart.

E. W. Thorne, architect, at 14 south Broad street, has in hand the following work:—

A $10,000 brick church at Wilmington, Del., for the Wesley M. E. congregation, in course of erection.

A $1000 frame cottage for A. H. Potts, Parkesburg, Pa., in course of erection.

A $5000 frame dwelling for Mr. Jos. H. Buckman, Mt. Holly, N. J., in course of erection.

A $3500 brick fire-engine house at Mt. Holly, N. J., contract just let.

A $3000 frame cottage for John B. Plant, to be built at Rutledge, Pa.

Also plans out for Robert W. Witham,

Daniel W. Watson, and James A. Thompson, for each a $2000 frame cottage at Rutledge, Pa.

A $3000 frame cottage (plans out,) for J. H. Witham, to be built at Rutledge, Pa.

A $2000 frame cottage for Samuel H. Allen, (plans out,) to be built at Rutledge, Pa.

A $5000 brick dwelling (plans out,) for Mr. G. W. Edwards, to be built at Rutledge, Pa.

A Public Hall and Masonic Building (on Fifty-five) for Chester county, Pa.

An $1800 cottage (plans out,) for John Anderson, Jr., to be built at Palsam, Pa.

A new frame cottage (plans out,) for Mr. Rudolph R. Pabet, to be built at Rutledge, Pa.

A neat frame cottage (plans out,) for Mr. Wm. A. Huff, to be built at Rutledge, Pa.

On Board—the remodeling of a fine brick residence in city. Plans for a brick store building (4 stories,) for James C. Johnson, Wilmington, Del. Plans for a brick store and dwelling to be built in city.

Building Permits.

Useful Hints in Building.

SEE that chimneys are built on good stone foundations—settlement will be avoided and one of the causes of unexplained fires will be removed.

Do not finish windows to the floor—the circulation across the floor is one of the causes of cold houses.

WATER-PIPES should be exposed and not built into the partitions—the warmth of the house is one of the best protections against freezing.

STORS to doors and windows should be fastened with round-head screws, so as to be easily removed.

DO not construct solid doors of two kinds of hard wood—the action of the atmosphere on one or the other will cause the door to warp.

The Dwight Case Settled.

The celebrated Dwight life insurance case has been settled by the payment of $18,000 to the heirs. Walton Dwight died at Binghamton, N. Y., on November 15th, 1878; at the time of his death there were no less than $250,000 dollars in policies from nearly all the prominent companies upon his life. The most of the companies refused to pay the policies on the ground of fraud. Dwight's heirs brought suit, and the case has been in the New York courts ever since.

The Wheeler Wood Filler Gains a Victory.

A final decree has been entered in the United States Circuit Court at Boston, in the equity suit of the Bridgeport Wood Finishing Company vs. Asabel Wheeler. The suit was brought to test the validity of the Wheeler patent on the use of ground silex in wood fillers. The decree affirms the validity of the patent and restrains infringement.

AN attempt was made recently in the Real Estate Exchange to alter the present system of charging for knock-downs, with the intention of adding to the revenues of the corporation. Under the system which has obtained for the last ten years or more, $3 is paid for every knock-down, whether it is a lot worth only $100 or an estate sold in one parcel worth $1,000,000. Several of the directors and a number of the members thought there ought to be a graded system of charges, in which the low-priced lot owners would pay less and the houses which brought high prices somewhat more. But in no case should the price be more than $25, even if the knock-down involved a very large sum. In selling through brokers the charge is 1 per cent., and hence to dispose of a $100,000 house a fee of $1,000 is exacted. But the expenses of a sale by auction, including advertising, auctioneer's fees and the knock-down is rarely more than one-tenth of that sum; hence the belief that there would be no serious difficulty in reducing the knock-downs on lots to $1 and increasing the knock-downs on $100,000 houses say to $20. Still another change is proposed. It is the buyer who now pays the knock-down fee, when in all other kinds of brokerage the cost of the transfer is assumed by the seller. Why not the same rule in real estate sales?—N. Y. Record and Guide.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, APRIL 11, 1887.

It would be an unwise step for our 4000 brick-makers to strike. They are paid as high wages as are paid elsewhere, have as steady work and are not oppressed in any way.

THE demand for graduates of the Chicago manual training school is so great that boys are tempted to leave the school before ready. Such schools no doubt would encourage a class of boys to become mechanics who heretofore have been debarred, but they should be kept at school as they are in Europe until properly graduated.

THE staircases and other vertical shafts in extensive buildings form a serious source of danger. Builders are seeking to overcome this in part by the greater or less use of non-combustible material. The Buffalo fire has started the New York legislature to provide protection and the nearest approach to it is in a bill which provides that, hereafter, the elevators and elevator shafts in all hotels, factories, printing and other similar establishments shall be constructed of incombustible materials. Further it provides for the erection in each room of iron ladders and ropes long enough to reach the ground and the rendering fire-proof within six months of all existing elevator shafts. It has been said, with a great deal of truth, that if it were desired to erect a building which should be purposely designed to burn rapidly, the present system of construction, with its numerous air, elevator and other shafts, could only be considered to be very well calculated to that end. The immense destruction of property and the serious and deplorable loss of life which has taken place during the past few weeks may be largely attributed to this fire-promoting style of architecture.

THE Master Builders of Camden have not been behind their Philadelphia brothers in work of organization. A Master Builder's Exchange has had an existence there for some time but of very limited scope. The proposed new exchange is to be incorporated and will include master builders, sub-contractors, carpenters, bricklayers, plasterers, marble cutters, painters, stone-cutters, stone masons, plumbers, gasfitters and tin-roofers.

THE colored people of Philadelphia are about as prompt and honest tenants as we have, but they find it more difficult than a professional dead beat to rent a house. This ought not to be. At least if it must be why do not some of our builders carry the war into Africa and put up a few respectable tenement houses in the negro neighborhoods. They are overcrowded where they are forced to congregate and pay more than their accommodations are worth.

✓RENTS in some of the slums below Sixth and South are relatively higher than on West Walnut street. One of the West Walnut street mansions if located on St. Mary's street or Alaska street, and cut up into the small rooms which abound there, would be a mint to the owner. The time is not quite so far off as may be supposed when some long-headed builder will buy up a dozen rickety shanties and erect a building in the slums that will pay better than like investments elsewhere.

THERE is a steady appreciation of real estate in Western and Southern cities, which is the legitimate outcome of the industrial activity that set in last September. The secret of it is that the purchasing power of the people has been increased. There is danger that the activity may reach speculative limits, and thus retard and ultimately check enterprise. As yet the stimulus has acted as an incentive only, spurring up halting enterprise and imparting needed confidence. Real estate is active in New York. In Baltimore considerable buying of lots and tracts has been done for immediate building purposes. In Pittsburgh land is advancing, and in fact all through the region where sites are sought for manufacturing purposes. In Western cities real estate is active and large operations are in hand, looking towards unusual house-building activity. The multiplication of manufacturing enterprises West and South is hardening real-estate values wherever the touch of industry is felt.

ON Thursday next, April 14, the new rooms of the Real Estate Exchange, No. 435 Chestnut street, will be opened, and Hon. Benjamin Harris Brewster will be orator of the occasion.

THE difficulty about licensing architects, and drawing the lines closely, is that builders and others requiring the services of architects are not very particular whether the architect they employ is recognized as such by the profession or not.

IF New York can stand an elevated road on Broadway, or Third, or Eighth avenue, why cannot Philadelphia stand an elevated road on Market street, are our ears and nerves more sensitive, or would we rather listen to the monotonous jingle of the cow-like cable car?

THE school at Eighteenth and Oxford streets is again on the carpet for inspection, but now for a new evil, namely the presence of sewer gas and various unpleasant odors. The principal of the school, informed Inspector Taylor, that the new system of drainage, which is said to be the best yet devised, was already showing beneficial results, and that much less sickness, and the chronic excuse of "cold" was reported.

OUT of the 116,000 workmen of Illinois enrolled in labor organization, less than one third are native Americans. Americans hate work and hence foreigners who have no ambition for any thing else, monopolize manual labor. Employees who growl under trade union dictation might relieve themselves by favoring a restriction of emigration which is favored in some quarters. Fewer foreigners means less trade unionism, less anarchy, more opportunity for American labor.

IF, at the meeting of Select Council, the words of President Gates carried the desired weight, it is quite probable that the Water Works will remain in the hands of the City Government. It is thought by that gentleman, that by a loan, if not by direct taxation, money enough could, and ought to be furnished for an additional water supply, as the Cambria basin, and the partially finished reservoir together, are inadequate to furnish the city with water. By the Sinking Fund System, which absorbs nearly $2,000,000 per annum, the loan need not be purchased until the rates of premium are lower. He recommended co-operation of that body with the new Mayor, to insure to the people responsible government and the benefits promised through the new charter medium.

THE city now holds the winning hand against rum, villany, incapacity and corruption; these four very strong elements of bad government are more than matched by Fittler, Stokely, Wagner and Gorden. Four of a kind are always beaten by another four of a better kind.

BUSINESS is booming. The new Mayor with his right and left bowers, Stokely and Wagner, is bringing order out of chaos with surprising rapidity. The street cleaning contractors have shovelled more real estate into dirt carts during the last ten days than for months before, the clean faces of the cobble stones are bobbing up serenely all over the city, and the dead branches of the municipal tree are being lopped off with a speed that is perfectly exhilarating to long suffering tax payers.

THE New York Board of Health has decided that "no plan for light and ventilation of a tenement house, with apartments on five or more floors, and having more than twelve rooms on a floor, to be erected on an ordinary city lot, except a corner lot, will be approved where more than 65 per cent. of the lot is to be covered, unless the courts to light and ventilate the interior rooms thereof shall have an area of at least 265 square feet; and where there are to be only twelve rooms on a floor, the area of such courts must be not less than 215 square feet."

THE shameful ending of a most miserable administration of our city government under ex-mayor Smith affords little room for greater discredit and disgrace to the city unless it be the dogs represented in the recent conviction of the Vine street dive-keepers.

For nearly four years the man Sensy hobbled with and肘bowed prominent politicians and not until The Press of this city, by its vivid description of the sweet hellishness of these pest-holes brought them to public notice, was a single effort made to suppress them.

OUR sidewalks should be kept free from obstructions of all kinds. The stone carriage blocks which invariably flourish best where the travel is the greatest, have become a clear and decided first-class nuisance. They are neither useful nor ornamental. They represent a profligate waste of valuable building material. They serve no purpose except to trip pedestrians, and they have already caused many serious falls and injuries to both men and women. Why they have been allowed to remain is a conundrum not easily answered. If Mr. Director of the Department of Public Safety can find time to give a passing thought to these useless and unsightly, though well-cursed appendages to our not overly-wide sidewalks, he will confer a greater blessing upon those who curse them than he can possibly imagine. It would cost something to gather them up, but they would pay a handsome profit if sold for building stone.

THE introduction of street cars, on Broadway, New York, did not produce the dire results predicted, and it would not be straining probabilities to say that an elevated road on that thoroughfare would be as great an improvement over existing facilities as street cars were over stages. Yet there are property owners enough on lower Broadway to hold meetings to protest against an elevated road, such a meeting was held last Saturday. A wealthy, but unknown Syndicate is behind the new scheme, which don't do its work by holding meetings, at least not in public. The Syndicate promises to pay the city a nice sum for the franchise. This touches the average property-holder off Broadway in a tender spot. The idea of having part of the enormous taxation paid by an elevated railroad corporation is a pleasing one, and will go far to override all opposition to the scheme, which seems to be a sensible and good one anyhow.

THE Master Builders' Exchange have nearly one hundred applications for membership, containing many of the strongest firms of this city, which will be voted on at the next meeting.

The recent formal opening of the Exchange was not only a decided success, but it was such a gathering of strong, intellectual and prosperous business men as is seldom seen under any circumstances.

JOHN WANAMAKER touched the keynote of the very soul of labor when he said to his employees on Friday last, that "cheerful, joyous, intelligent workers may do wonders for themselves and everybody." No more inspiring words were ever uttered, no sentimental freight with deeper meaning was ever framed. Such words coming from an employer, are as choice seeds sown by the thrifty husbandman, which yield golden fruit in days to come, with plenty for all. Is it any wonder that the Depot grows?

THE Board of Public Education is still lax enough to provoke the public indignation. We hear of two or three more school houses complained of to the Board of Health on the old score of bad drainage, careless building, and insufficient heat. The school house at Tacony, although comparatively new was a subject for Medical Inspector Taylor, who reported that three inches of water had to be pumped from the cellar floor, periodically, on account of the new fashioned way, the contractor, or builder had of filling up the depression under the walls, with waste material, instead of good solid earth. Even shavings it is said, helped to fill in. Is it any wonder, then, that the rain brought from the roof, through conductors, to the ground in the vicinity of the wall, should soak into this porous filling, and from thence find its way to the cellar? This new composition should be dug out, and the walls thoroughly cemented to the level of the cellar floor, and the moist clay tamped into the open space, and thus much misery would be nipped in the bud.

THE bright and newsy Evening Star of this city says that there is room and need for reform in the laws governing the relation of landlord and tenants, and evictions for non-payment. The iron-clad lease is a proper instrument in the hands of a landlord who is a human being, but not otherwise. We must make laws which restrict brutality or cease to call ourselves civilized.

THE Southern lumber arrivals have been light up to this date, but the fair ocean weather will now liberate an immense amount of waiting tonnage at South Atlantic and Gulf ports. A sample of all kinds will be abundant and reasonable.

THE new lumber rate from Chicago is 23 cents. This suits all interests and will neither cause an increase or decline in shipments. Enormous quantities of white pine lumber have arrived in this market during the past month. Prices are firm and builders and carpenters are not anticipating a drop.

THE Northern section of the city is receiving special attention at the hands of councils. Additional bills were introduced at the last session to grade and pave Ontario street, from Diamond to Susquehanna avenue; to open Richie street, Twenty-first ward; to pave Buckius street, Twenty-fifth ward; to open Dauphin street, from Twenty-second to Twenty-fifth; for a sewer in Castle avenue and Broad street, from Morris to Moore, and requesting the Mayor to introduce the police patrol system in that part of the Twenty-eighth ward northeast of the Connecting Ward.

THE output of slate from Pennsylvania sources will be very heavy and competition will work in favor of buyers. Roofing material of all kinds is being supplied liberally. New varieties are being placed on the market. The supply of window glass will be fully as large as last year. A difference exists between employers and workmen at Pittsburg over wages, but this is a usual occurrence at this season. The production of American plate glass is steadily increasing and prices are reasonable. The manufacturers of builders' hardware have crowding orders for spring and summer supplies. Iron and steel continue firm in price under an increasing output. Large structural iron orders are being placed by builders. The manufacture of joints, cements, gas fixtures, etc., are all entering upon what has every appearance of being a very active and prosperous year. All things considered the probabilities are that 1887 will be phenomenal for its volume of business and inauguration of new industrial enterprises.

MR. H. C. SMITH, of the Highway Committee, has introduced a sensible resolution to cover some difficulties Councilman Bardsley referred to ten days ago, relating to costs and damages unnecessarily inflicted on the city. The resolution provides "that hereafter all ordinances for opening, grading and paving streets shall have certificates attached by the Bureau of Highways before they are reported by the Committee on Highways to Councils declaring 'For opening; that the street is upon the city plan as a public street, its width, and how the adjoining property is assessed for taxation. For grading: That the street has been properly dedicated or opened; the number of cubic yards of cutting and of filling required to grade the street to the established city grade. For paving: That the street has been graded the established grade, and the necessary sewer, water and gas pipes have been constructed or laid in said street; also, the number of square yards that will be required for intersections and for property exempt from taxation chargeable to the city, that to property owners, and the whole number of yards required to be paved in said street."

The Master Builders' National Convention.

The recent Master Builders' National Convention, held at Chicago, adopted the following declaration of principles:

1. This association affirms that absolute personal independence of the individual to work or not to work, to employ or not to employ, is a fundamental principle which should never be questioned or assailed; that upon it depends the security of our whole social fabric and business prosperity, and that employers and workmen should be equally interested in its defense and preservation. While upholding this principle as an essential safeguard for all concerned, this association would appeal to employers in the building trades to recognize that there are many opportunities for good in associations of workmen, and while condemning and opposing improper action upon their part, they should aid and assist them in all just and honorable purposes.

That while upon fundamental principles it would be useless to confer or arbitrate, there are still many points upon which conferences and arbitration are perfectly right, and proper, and that upon such points it is a manifest duty to take advantage of the opportunities afforded by associations to confer together, to the end that strikes, lockouts, and other disturbances may be prevented.

When such conferences are entered into care should be taken to state clearly in advance that this fundamental principle must be maintained, and that such conferences should be competent to report results in the form of resolutions of recommendation to the individuals composing the various organizations participating, avoiding all forms of dictatorial authority.

2. That a uniform system of apprenticeship should be adopted by the various mechanical trades.

That manual training schools be established as a part of the public school system, and that trade night schools should be organized by the various local trade organizations for the benefit and improvement of apprentices.

3. This association recommends all its affiliated associations to secure as soon as possible the adoption of a system of payment by the hour for all labor performed, other than "piece work" or "salary work," and to obtain the co-operation of associations of workmen to this just and equitable arrangement.

4. That all blank forms of contracts for building should be uniform throughout the United States.

That such forms of contract, with the condition thereof, should be such as will give the builder, as well as the owner, the protection of his rights, such as justice demands.

That whenever a proper form has been approved by this association after consultation with the American Institute of Architects, and the Western Association of Architects we recommend its use by every builder and contractor.

5. The legislatures of the various states should be petitioned to formulate and adopt uniform lien laws, and every organization represented in the association is recommended to use its best endeavors to secure the passage of the same.

6. Architects and builders should be required to adopt more effective safeguards in buildings in process of construction so as to lessen the danger of injury to workmen and others.

7. We believe in the adoption of a system of insurance against injuries by accident to workmen in the employ of builders, wherein the employer shall participate in the payment of premiums for the benefit of his employees. Also in securing the payment of annuities to workmen who may become permanently disabled through injuries received by accident or the infirmities of old age.

Each plank in the platform was discussed by the convention, and one by one adopted unanimously.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, J. Milton Blair, of Cincinnati; Vice-Presidents, John S. Stevens, of Philadelphia, and Edward E. Scribner, of St. Paul; Secretary, W. H. Soyward, of Boston; Treasurer, John J. Tucker, of New York.

The Chairman announced that the Secretary would call each city represented, and that the Chairman of each delegation would be requested to name one man as Director for the year, each Director to be considered a delegate-at-large to the next convention. The Secretary proceeded with the call, and the following Board of Directors was selected: Cleveland, Thomas Simmons; Milwaukee, Thomas Mason; Charleston, S. C., Henry Oliver; Nashville, I. N. Phillips; Detroit, W. G. Vinton; Minneapolis, H. N. Leighton; Baltimore, William Ferguson; Chicago, George L. Prussing; St. Paul, E. F. Osborne; Buffalo, Charles Berrick; Cincinnati, James Allison; Philadelphia, W. H. Karkness, Jr.; Columbus, Thomas E. Knauss; Indianapolis, William P. Junglaus; New Orleans, F. H. West; Leander Greeley; New York City, Marc Eiditz; Troy, C. A. Meeker; Worcester, Mass., C. B. Crane; Grand Rapids, W. C. Weatherly; Sioux City, Frederick F. Beck; Pittsburgh and Allegheny City, Samuel Francis, and Providence, Geo. R. Phillips.

Credit to Whom Credit is Due—The Work of Philadelphia Artists Accredited to Foreigners—The Truth as to St. Mary's Windows.

The capabilities of the Stained Glass Window Manufacturers of Philadelphia, we never made more apparent than by the splendid display of the higher branches of this art, which is now presented in the improvements made to St. Mary's Church, at Fourth and Locust streets, this city.

The recent newspaper criticisms upon St. Mary's new windows, although mainly correct, fail to mention the important fact that the semi-circular window 12 by 6 feet, directly over the altar, and which has really attracted more attention than any of the other windows, is the conception and production of Mr. William Reith, whose studio and workshops are at 134 North Seventh street, this city; the subject represents "The Father of the Universe," surrounded by life-size figures of angels. The newspaper articles referred to, have, without exception, accredited the whole work to Mayer & Co., of Munich, this is a mistake, for the original drawing of this master piece can be seen at Mr. Reith's studio. As to the artistic merit of the American window, comment is unnecessary, it's having the first place in the whole collection, indicates that the church authorities had an abiding faith in Mr. Reith's ability. It is certainly very gratifying that in stained glass windows the work of American artists is in every way equal to the best efforts of the foreigner, and that in this contest Philadelphia has succeeded in carrying off the palm of victory. The cost of the Reith window was $500.

It seems singular that notwithstanding the fact that we have stained glass window manufacturers in this city, such as Wm. Reith, 134 North Seventh street; Alfred Goodwin, northwest corner Twelfth and Market streets, and others, who are capable of producing perfect gems in this line of art that our church authorities, and citizens should feel the necessity of going abroad after work that can be done at home.

JOSEPH PRICE will erect a residence on the Haines property, West Chester, Pa.

The Master Builders' Exchange.

The Master Builders' Exchange was formally opened last Thursday. President Stevens delivered an address full of interesting figures concerning past, present, and prospective building operations, and in which he briefly set forth the purposes and plans of the new Exchange.

He was followed by John Baird, ex-president of the City National Bank. James H. Windrin, architect, spoke in support of the enterprise, and explained and recommended the advantages of a display at the Exchange of specimens of building material and sanitary appliances. Col. A. K. McClure spoke on the relations of employer and workmen.

The attendance was large. Among the visitors were ex-Recorder of Deeds John O'Donnell, ex-Councilmen John Smethurst and Thomas Walter, Select Councilman Samuel Hart, Common Councilman Andrew J. Maloney, Captain John H. Weeks, W. J. McCahan, John Lucas, ex-City Treasurer William B. Irvine, ex-Superintendent of the Water Department Joseph DeKinder, Henry C. Thompson, S. Council's Doings.

In Select Council a large amount of business was transacted relative to gas and water pipe laying in various sections of the city, as well as sewer construction, the opening of streets, the location of lamps, etc.

The character of the business transacted by Common Councils was similar. Mr. Thompson introduced a bill providing for the pensioning of disabled firemen, and policemen. Mr. Mehan introduced a batch of bills relating to paving, gas pipes, grading, sewers, water pipes, etc. Mr. Fead introduced a bill to expend $50,000 in sewer construction in various parts of the city. Mr. Anderson introduced a bill providing for the expenditure of $1,500 to lay a conduit for electric lighting on Broad street from Market to Passayunk Square, and $20,000 to repave South Broad street with Belgian blocks. A bill was introduced appropriating $65,000 for a school house at Bridesburg. The Common Council bill appropriating $205,000 to the Department of Public Works from the Gas Works fund, for wages, salaries and incidentals, was passed finally.

BUILDERS' ITEMS.

BUDD BROS. report building materials as high and scarce.

JOHN CLEM will build six more houses on Ontario street, Tioga.

MR. STRECKLE of Germantown is erecting a fine bakery and confectionery.

RUMOR says that there will soon be a new church built at Twenty-sixth & Jefferson sts.

NUMEROUS improvements are being made to the Baptist Church, Falls of Schuylkill.

THE Merion Cricket Club of this city has purchased a tract of land adjoining their present grounds upon which they will build.

THE Susquehanna Avenue Presbyterian Church are contemplating erecting a new structure on the old grounds or on a plot to be purchased to cost about $20,000.

MR. Wm. ROOF of Germantown will erect immediately three three-story dwellings on Harvey street, near Adams, the contract has been given to C. O. Roof of that place.

STACY REEVES & SON, will soon commence work on a large structure at 517 Arch street for Hon. Edwin H. Fidler, which will probably be occupied by Merchant & Co. elevator.

E. PETERS is pushing work on nine houses on Sixteenth st. above Montgomery ave. These will be 3-stories high and similar in construction to those running from the ave.

THE Old Coleman Mansion has been sold and an Episcopal Church is supposed to have plans from C. F. Burns, Architect for a building to cost in the neighborhood of $200,000.

THE Keystone National Bank will probably commence work soon on a new structure to take the place of the property now occupied by them at Chestnut and Juniper streets.

MR. JAS. ELVEREN publisher of "Golden days" is not going to do anything in the way of building at 1109 Market street, until late in the summer. Plans are not yet decided on.

WM. T. MEAD, will as soon as possible commence work on twenty or thirty two and three story houses out of a possible forty-five. When finished they range from $1,500 to $3,500.

J. L. KATES is expecting to commence next week, work on sixteen or eighteen houses on Nineteenth street above Berks, of pressed brick with brown stone trimmings and probably finished in hard wood.

T. FRANK MILLER is building a fine frame Queen Anne house for Mr. Van Horn at Ft. Washington and also one for Mr. George Hoover at the same place. He has also on hand a new Sunday School building for the Rising Sun Baptist Church.

LOUIS BERGDOLL has just commenced work on seven 3-story houses, five on Girard ave. and two on Twenty-ninth street; all of which will be stores except one on the corner of Twenty-ninth and Girard ave. and will be of pressed brick fronts.

H. B. WILLETS & Co. will commence work immediately on twenty-one two story houses on Division street, between Seventh and Eighth. They are to have six rooms and bath and all modern conveniences and will present a pleasing variety of fronts.

SCUDEN & BUDD of Camden N. J. have plans for forty-seven new houses and will start on the foundation work on April 11th at Tenth and Cooper streets. Seven of these will be three story and the remainder two story houses, with ornamental brick work fronts and containing the latest improvements.

DR. W. H. PANCOAST has not yet fully decided upon the exact nature of the alterations to take place at the Journalist's Club building 904 Walnut street. But they will be quite extensive and costly and will include an amphitheatre for clinics, a hospital for skin diseases, elevator etc., It may be possibly named in honor of his father.—Dr. Pancoast.

WORK has been commenced by C. M. Baker on twenty-eight houses on Bouvier street and also six houses on Eighteenth st. above Montgomery ave. All of these will be of pressed brick laid in red mortar with hard wood fini-h and containing all the latest improvements. Those on Bouvier st. will cost about $5,000 each and those on Eighteenth about $8,000 each.

WILLIS G. HALE has prepared plans for alterations, improvements, and the erection of a four-story building in the rear of premises 1004 Chestnut street, an elevator will be put in and the store will be extended sixty feet. The improvements will cost from $15,000 to $20,000. The property is owned by Conway, Sons, Soap Manufacturers, Second below Spruce street, this city. Contract not made.

MORE houses have been built within the past year at Tioga than ever before; and several operations are nearly completed. Ontario street is now opened up all the way and it is expected that a number of new buildings will soon be in course of erection.—3508 N. sixteenth street, has just been purchased by Mr. Wm. H. Rookstool and it is more than likely that he will build during the spring or early summer.

J. M. SHARP has just commenced excavations for eight 12-room houses on Diamond street, between 15th & Carlisle; all of which will be finished in hard wood and have all the latest improvements. Also twenty-seven on Twenty-first street, north of Diamond and eight on Diamond east of Twenty-first. He will also commence work in a few days on thirty 3-story houses at Eighteenth and Diamond which will have from 8 to 14 rooms each.

JAS. E. DINGEE of Twenty-fifth & Norris anticipates a fair season in bricks but are a little averse to making any specific statements on account of the attitude taken by the Unions.—They have a capacity for turning out about 16,000,000 bricks and give employment to upwards of three hundred men. The price of brick will not be in proportion to the advance in wages demanded by the men, which it is said to average about twenty-five per cent.

WHAT we have said about the prosperity of the manufacturers and their establishments all along is being confirmed now by the firm of William H. & Nathan T. Folwell, who are adding a four story structure to their present wooden and worsted establishment. This addition makes the building 40 feet, or a square long, and will greatly increase their facilities, as among the improvements will be a picker house at 53, and a dye house 63 by 58. The boiler capacity has also been doubled, and Third & Cambria street, will be quite an important worsted mill section.

J. M. ZOOK, Jr., of 624 Walnut street, has sold Clearview Farm, comprising forty acres, to Hampton L. Corson and others. This property is located near Kirkland Station, West Chester & Frazier branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad, next to where Messrs. Chas. Wheeler, John Townsend, Sidney Roberts, and Chas. McPherson, all of Philadelphia, have purchased land bordering on those points, from the purchase of the Chester Valley Railroad by the Pennsylvania Railroad; and the purchase by A. I. Cassatt, of a large tract of land in the vicinity of Glenloch and Frazier, from the Weightman estate. The price of land is steadily advancing in this locality.

THE Land Title and Trust Company will erect a fine structure on Chestnut street above Sixth, will have a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 125 feet. Wilson & Brothers are the architects, and Pennock & Bro. the builders. The property belonged to the estate of John Ashhurst. Light-gray granite will be used on the lower stories, with Bay of Fundy red granite cut and polished. Above the granite work, red brick will be used and terra cotta. Large plate-glass windows will help to adorn the front. The floors and ceiling will be of iron beams and arches and supposed to be fire proof. Burglar proof vaults besides independent fire proof vaults of best pattern will be provided. The first floor will be used by the Company. The Plan Department, will contain sectional plans of the city and all records of the Trust. Elevators, pneumatic tubes and incandescent lamps will be supplied in abundance. Ventilation, drainage and steam heating are controlled by the very best appliances. There will be two large arched windows 25 feet high in the front of the double story banking room. The building is to be completed November 1.

TOMAKE THE OUTSIDE BETTER.

An architect must of necessity be a learned man, and must know many things that he can't find in books. The quality of building material changes faster than books.

The architect knows how to specify for a good tin roof. Does he know how to obtain it? He wants the owner to be satisfied and to know that he gets the roof he pays for.

There is just one way; only one way—if it is the best tin he is after—and that is to specify—every sheet stamped with the BRAND and THICKNESS.

The brand is "GILBERTSON'S OLD METHOD." The thickness is IC or IX.

If the tin is not stamped, you may or you may not get it. How are you to know after the roof is on? You may say it is not the proper tin. The roofer may say it is.

Our tin is a sheet of steel, covered with all the coating it will carry. You can't see through it—you can't even guess the thickness after the roof is laid.

The brand we have mentioned is guaranteed in all respects to do anything required of a first class roof—guaranteed by us to our customers, and to us by the maker—that it will stand all the tests claimed for it—and more too.

No similar guarantees are offered today by other importers with their plates—that is, guarantees that are so direct, positive or convincing.

A guarantee 'equal to something else' is no guarantee at all.

A good roof should last thirty to forty years, without any other expense than painting.

Inferior tin may last five years—often does not last that long—then the expense begins and keeps on.

The first cost of a good roof is but a trifle more than that of inferior tin—in the long run much less.

The above facts cannot be contradicted.

Proprietor of Phila. "Record."

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, APRIL 18, 1887.

Builders are not finding any difficulty in procuring money. The banks have plenty to lend on good security. First mortgages continue in demand with the money lenders.

THE Real Estate Exchange has certainly started off with such earnest evidences of future prosperity as to surprise even its most sanguine friends and supporters. We present on our first page, this week, a list of properties that will be offered at auction by the Exchange at its first public sale, on the 25th instant. The list is not only a heavy one, but it is seldom that so large a list is presented even by our most popular real estate auctioneers. The May sale at the Exchange promises already to equal this one, if it does not exceed it, as upwards of twenty different properties are already registered for it.

The idea of a Philadelphia Real Estate Exchange originated with Mr. James H. Stevenson, one of the directors, who is an active real estate broker and lawyer, of this city, but it was not until the winter of 1886 that any practical efforts were made to consummate its organization.

The deep interest which the public express in the new Exchange is extremely gratifying to its members. Every mail contains many requests for the list of properties to be sold, many of them coming from far-off sections of the country, besides which a constant flow of visitors in quest of information keeps the superintendent, Mr. John Austin Purcell, busy from the opening until the closing of the doors. The president, Mr. George W. Hancock, is a man well qualified for the position; he is strong intellectually, and is a perfect mental storehouse of experience and knowledge pertaining to real estate matters. The board of directors is composed of strong timber, and the members and officers of the institution are typical of the progressive element of our city's real estate business. When it is realized that the average weekly real estate transactions of this city alone amount to about $900,000, and that they frequently reach, in individual weeks, a full million and a quarter, it can be better appreciated that the Exchange has come none too soon, but having come, it has come to stay.

If Governor Beaver knows his business he will sit down upon House bill No. 3 in such an emphatic manner, as will convince its friends that there is no hope for that sort of legislative jockeying while he can wield a vetoing pen. The fact is the forcing process under which the bill was pushed through both houses before Mayor Fitter's inauguration, was a pure and simple insult to the Mayor and the people of this good city; and Mayor Fitter's earnest though dignified letter, to the Governor asking him to delay its consideration until more formal reasons can be given why the bill should not become a law, was sent none too soon. The intent of the bill is to make the Department of Surveys a separate and independent department of the city government, and the effect would be as his Honor very forcibly expresses it, 'to endow with enlarged and independent powers a body of public officials without responsibility to either the legislative or executive branches of our city authorities, and take from the Director of the Department of Public Works nearly all authority over the building of bridges, the construction of sewers, and the establishment of street lines practically making him a subordinate to the and grades, Department of Surveys.'

The Bullitt bill specifically provides that the Department of Public Works shall be under the charge of one Director, who shall have control of the grading of streets, the construction, protection and repair of bridges, and structures of every kind for public use, and all legislative attempts to defeat the purposes for which the bill was framed, are simply suicidal. There is no justifiable reason why the Survey Department should be excepted from the same vigorous executive control that now exercises such a healthy and invigorating influence over the Highway and other departments of the city government. If Mayor Fitter is to be held responsible—as he certainly will be—by our citizens for a pure and active city government, he should be the executive head in fact, and any legislative attempt to impair his functional powers by removing one or more departments from his control, should meet with unqualified protest and opposition.

HAS anything been heard of the experimental fire brick pavement which, by virtue of a city ordinance, was to be laid in some outlandish section of the city where there is but little travel and but a few people seldom visit? If fire-bricks make a good pavement, it should be laid on Market street where the heavy travel can test its merits and where our citizens may be able to take a casual glance at it at least.

The question as to what material is most suitable as a substitute for our old-time cobble stone is too important just at this time to be trifled with.

If fire-brick has any decided merit it should be tested under the public gaze of those who have to foot the bills. This hide-and-seek method of testing paving material savors too much of the way things used to be done.

WHAT a grand thing it would be if Arbor or tree-planting Day (April 29d) was generally adopted by the citizens of large cities. Of course, in most cases, the average citizen would not be able to find greater scope for his forestry propensities than for a few trees in front of the house in which he resides, yet even these would greatly add to the beauty and healthfulness of the city, and in a short time uninterrupted rows of fine trees, affording delightful shade in the heat of summer, would be more than sufficient reward for the slight cost of time and labor expended in planting. Such a custom could be easily made very popular in Philadelphia, and the trees, besides breaking the monotonous sameness of our almost endless rows of brick dwellings, would make our streets doubly inviting for residences, besides giving the city a peculiarly refreshing appearance to the visitor.

The brickmakers show considerable stubbornness on the question of Trade Unionism.

PRESIDENT George W. Hancock said that on the average $900,000 of real estate changed hands every week in this city.

THE Real Estate Exchange had a good send off last week and all that is now necessary is that the institution be run on a broad gauge principle.

THOMAS COCHRAN said that the value of the real estate of Philadelphia could be safely placed at $8,000,000,000, this is an average of $8,000 per head of population. As soon as the socialists hear of it they will come around for their share.

JUDGE HANNA said at the opening of the real estate exchange last Thursday that last year $500,000,000 of personal property alone passed through the hands of the Orphans' Court in the settlement of estates.

MARKET street will hereafter be more largely sought for by business men doing a large retail trade; quite a number of valuable sites it has been intimated, are now under negotiation or at least under consideration. The movement of Strawbridge & Clothier following so closely on the movement of the Girard Trust has attracted the attention of large retail dealers to the advisability of securing locations upon Market between Eighth and Broad and even on that portion of the street east of Eighth, there is an advancing tendency in rents; it may be that some large concern will purchase before July 1 between Twelfth and Thirtieth; offers have been made for two or three good sites; Market street along there is encumbered with a great deal of worthless buildings. It is no exaggeration to say that certain sites could be selected on which six times as much floor space could be built as the present buildings allow. There is no excuse for this waste of space. Property ought to be too valuable to permit old dingy buildings to stand there; Wood Brown & Co. may perhaps be the first to improve their property at Ninth and Market, although they have not decided what course to pursue. Some wholesale clothing manufacturers contemplate changes but the present strike among their cutters will delay operations for the present. A building boom ought to break out on Market street, and buildings from six to eight stories high ought to line that thorough-fare.

An Undelivered Deed. No Deed

Marie F. Durand executed a deed conveying the property at the Northeast corner of Twelfth street and Sheep's alley in this city to her sister-in-law Louisa Durand, as trustee for the latter's children, keeping the same in her own custody up to the time of her death. Five years afterwards the deed was discovered in an old trunk and Louisa Durand then brought suit in equity against Marie Durand's administrator to compel him to deliver the deed to her, but the lower court dismissed her bill. An appeal was taken to the Supreme court which affirms the lower court in the following opinion:

"A delivery is essentially necessary to give effect to a deed. The signing and sealing are insufficient. In the present case, it is conclusively shown that the deed, although signed and acknowledged, remained in the possession of the person who signed it until her death. In law it is not a deed."

Building News from Frankford, Phil'a.

Elizabeth G. Yerkes has bought a lot on Sellers street, 25 feet by 100 feet.

Richard Greenwood has sold to Francis W. Trout, the property on Worth street for $25,000.

John Sinott has sold the lot of ground at 4211 Orchard street, to Mary Ann Povey for $1,100.

Robert Bilsborough has bought of Margaret Irwin, a lot on Margaret street east of Main street, for $316.

William Barrett has purchased of William Blair, a lot on Factory street, 100 feet by 96 feet, for $1,250.

John F. Patterson has sold to William F. Patterson, a lot, irregular shape, on the Bristol pike, for $6,500.

George J. Fougere has sold to Mary Jane Heyworth, a lot on Paul street above Orthodox, size 24 feet by 73 feet for $600.

The old Pratt Mansion on Tacony street, will be sold at the Philadelphia Exchange, by Ellis & Shaw, on Thursday, May 12th, at noon.

David Campbell will erect several houses on Foulkrod street, between Main and Franklin streets.

A lot of ground, 100 feet by 195 feet, on the Kensington and Oxford pike, has been bought from Susan M. Ford by George H. Bickley, who paid $500 for it.

George Warner, the builder, has sold his two Queen Ann cottages at the corner of Torresdale avenue and Comly street, in Winsconsin, for $3,350; also a lot on Comly street, for $800; also lots on Funk street, for $1,300. He proposes shortly to commence operations on the two acres of ground recently purchased by him in Whitehall, bounded by Frankford, Dittman, Pratt and Washington streets.

BUILDERS' ITEMS.

Building and Real Estate Notes.

JAMES ROBERTSON Sr. of Germantown will build several dwellings there.

JOHN GRAHAM is to build five dwellings corner of Wisteria and Boynton avenues, Germantown.

Hope Presbyterian Mission, Thirty-fourth and Wharton streets, is to have a Gothic stone church built.

N. WILLETS has begun the building of twenty-two small houses on Spruce street, below Eighth street, Camden.

HILLSINGER & SON, of Thirty-eighth and Lancaster Ave., have just started on six-story brick houses at Fifty-ninth and Darby Road.

THE old building which for years has been a sort of a landmark at 1326 Walnut st. has been torn down to give place to a modern dwelling.

ALLEN B. RORKE has been awarded the contract for erecting a large building at 517 Arch street, instead of Stacy Reeves & Son, as previously reported.

AN offer has been made for a tract containing about six acres, on which the party purchasing proposes to erect 6 houses not costing less than $3,500 each.

THE Young Republican Club of this city is desirous of obtaining a property which it can use as its head quarters. A committee on ways and means has been appointed.

THE Market Square Presbyterian Church at Germantown will build a new church building on the site occupied by the old one. A lot has been secured on the east side of Germantown, and a brick chapel will be erected for the accommodation of the members during the construction of the new church.

THE Atlantic Times states that a factory of some kind is agitating the minds of people in Bargaintown, N. J. It is to be hoped that something may be done to utilize the excellent water-power there. Capitalists would do well to interest themselves in some manufacturing here, it being very close to the railroad, with ample water-power.

HUGH MCNEILL will soon commence work on twenty houses on Siegel St., which, with twenty already under way, will make forty on both sides of this street, running from Fifth to Sixth Sts. They will be two stories high, with pressed brick laid in black mortar, white trimmings and white marble roughed up to windows on first floor. They will contain 6 rooms, with all modern improvements, with patent pavements in front and street laid with patent blocks.

THE new Drexel Building, which is in charge of Mr. Stacy Reeves, will be of marble, with fire proof floors and ten stories in height and will cover the old Post Office and U. S. Court site, the Philadelphia Library Co. building and the top of Drexel building at the corner of Fifth and Chestnut, taking in the whole Chestnut street front from the corner of Fifth to the Custom House with the exception of the site occupied by the Independence National Bank.

KETCHUM SONS have just commenced work on five new dwellings at the N. W. Cor. of Seventeenth and Sansom Sts., which will be somewhat similar in style to those on the N. E. corner, but will be better in style and finish. They will have pressed brick fronts with granite trimmings, and all the inside appointments of the latest designs and improvements.

THE SWARTHMORE IMPROVEMENT CO., which owns two beautiful tracts, situated near Swarthmore and Merton stations, about ten miles from the city, in addition to offering lots for sale, are putting up some beautiful dwellings, one now under way, built of stone up to the second story, will cost when completed about $6,500. On plot No. 2, known as the Lee tract, quite a number of lots have already been sold, and the conditions are that no building shall cost less than four times the price paid for the lot. Other conditions of purchase and building are such as to make all the surroundings of modern home pleasant and non-objectable.

REA & RILEY are about to build a large store, of very heavy construction, for Mr. Wm. King, which will be 28 ft. 6 in. by 101 and four stories in height. The front on the first floor will be of iron work and the upper stories of pressed brick with granite trimmings, and will cost about $20,000. They will also erect for Mr. Bart. Shea, a large dwelling and store, 42 by 32 feet, at the N. W. Cor. Thirteenth and Vine sts. They will contain 16 rooms and attics, 3 bath rooms in each and will be finished in hard woods, the halls being of oak and the lower floors of cherry; while the upper rooms will be finished in cypress.—They will be Gothic in style, with two towers on each, one rising to a height of 20 feet above the peak, while the other will be square, with stone balustrade.

W. D. HUSTON builder for Page Bros., has now on hand forty-six houses for which designs in part were made by Furness Evans & Co.—Twenty-two on Diamond street between Sixteenth & Seventeenth streets will have entire fronts of rock faced trimmings with plate glass windows, electric bells and lighting, hard wood wardrobes in second and third stories, with beveled plate glass mirrors; the bath rooms will be lined with tiles and have patent imported porcelain tubs. These houses will also have bay windows from the second story up, which will be lined with California red shingles. It is also rumored that the Page Bros. will soon commence operations to cover the whole block extending from Seventeenth to Eighteenth sts. running north from Diamond.

IMPROVEMENTS look encouraging along the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The only discouraging sign is the recent raising of the fares. Some who contemplated purchasing and building have since given up the idea, but fortunately for Stafford station Mr. Hughes had already commenced work on two houses, which are now nearly finished. Mr. D. L. Leeds, of 619 Walnut St., has sold Mr. Struthers' beautiful 26-acre plot, on the crown of the hills, north of Stafford, with grand views of the Chester Valley to Norristown on the North, and overlooking the railroad Valley and Wayne and Devon on the South. This has been purchased by Mr. N. H. Clark, and will be divided into smaller building lots. The new hotel between Devon and Berwyn is nearly finished and will add to the attractions on the Lancaster Pike.

E. H. FLOOD has started work on eighty-five houses on Van Pelt street, running from near Diamond to Dauphin street. These will be two stories high with ornamental fronts, containing 7 rooms and bath and will cost about $3,300.—They will be finished in hard wood throughout, with cemented cellars and under drainage, crystal gas fixtures and all the latest improvements. The size will be 16 by 29 running back to a five foot alley. He is also just about constructing for Mr. M. Melody forty-two houses in Kensington.—Twenty on Lawrence street, containing six rooms and bath; and twenty-two four room houses on Leithgow street. These are also to have ornamental fronts, with pressed brick cornices and cemented cellars and will cost complete from $1,500 to $2,300. Of these sixty-six houses built last year by Mr. Hood on Diamond, Norris and Pontaine streets: all but ten have been sold at good prices.

THE drawings for the National Security Bank at the corner of Seventh and Girard avenue are now completed, by Architect Frank R. Watson. The new location is Franklin and Girard avenue. It has a frontage of 40 feet, and 76 feet on Franklin street. The exterior of the building will be of Fox Island granite, as also will be the trimmings. The work will be rock faced, with dressed margins and trimmings. The front and sides will be furnished with gables, and triple windows of stained glass and arched heads, these windows will be large and protected by iron grills. The banking room will be 40 by 51 by 40 feet high. The building will be furnished with a massive burglar proof vault reaching nearly the entire height of the building between the suites. The basement is to be cemented and used for storage purposes. The building is strengthened and upheld by brick and iron arches. Around the wall of the banking room is an ornamental gallery of iron railing. This room receives additional light from a large glass cupola, cove shaped, surrounded with panel work to match the rest of the interior finish. The building is to be heated by steam, notwithstanding the ornamental chimney pieces. Operations commence in two weeks, to fit the building for use about November.

THE grand total of the shingle product of the Northwest was 4,577,531,000 shingles, which is a larger showing than in any preceding year. Figures are cited as showing that the maximum annual lumber product of the white-pine districts has probably not yet been reached. The stock of lumber on hand at the mills at the close of the year is placed at 3,068,093,000, or 170,000,000 feet less than at the close of 1885, and 450,000,000 feet less than in 1884. Stocks of shingles were 35,000,000 more than in 1885, and 200,000,000 less than in 1884.

THEDAY SEWED SHOES

are Machine-made, but without the defects of the old makes. They are so constructed as to be perfectly smooth and easy to the wearer. They have no tacks, nails, or wax threads inside to disturb the comfort, hurt the feet, or tear the stocking, and are superior to all other makes, except the fine, hand-made, custom shoes, which they fully equal in many respects. All kinds of Boots and Shoes are made by this process, whether "Common Sense," "Whaukenphast," or the more familiar high French heeled, narrow toed shoe. Ladies, Gentlemen, Girls, Boys and Children will find a large assortment from which to choose, according to their taste.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, APRIL 25, 1887.

Drop into the Real Estate Exchange Rooms and make a friendly call, if nothing more.

The first auction sale of properties by the Real Estate Exchange, was a decided success.

The Real Estate Exchange will hold an auction sale every Monday at 12 o'clock, until further notice.

SEVENTEEN more applications have been made by prominent real estate men of this city for admission to membership in the Real Estate Exchange.

If the building inspecting force of Philadelphia is too small, let it be increased at once; if we have defective fire-escapes, it is because we have not inspectors enough to see that they are provided. Then let us have inspectors, who will see that fire escapes are erected where they are required by law. It requires very little examination to see that fire escapes are not provided where they should be. There are scores of houses full of work people, who in case of fire, would have no efficient way of escape. The present inspectors complain that they are over worked, and that it is simply an impossibility for them to answer all the calls made upon them.

The suggestion has been made that a Bureau of Supplies be established under municipal management. If it could be run honestly it would be a good thing. The various departments some thirty in all, have been in the habit of advertising for and purchasing their own material; the result has been a great deal of unnecessary advertising, and confusion. The City's requirements should be lumped, and bought that way.

Requisitions should be made by each department for needed supplies, as is done in the army. Then we could have order, economy and fair dealing. There is no reason whatever, why such a system should not be established.

It is to be hoped the fund of $1,000,000 for Church extension will be raised by the denomination which has undertaken this work. Church work admits of a display of architectural skill which is not possible in other kinds of buildings. A little emulation among church architects might be stimulated. A few recent structures show a departure in old ideas and standards. Architectural literature is certainly rich in suggestion and even designs which could be utilized. One drawback to beauty of construction is the desire of church builders at least in the great majority of cases to get as much floor space and wall and roof for their money as they can. Another is that appreciation of architectural talent is not as great as it should be. But an improvement has set in and it is hoped a liberal percentage of the one million dollars will be allowed to go for architecture pure and simple.

MR. WM. McDEVITT, a well known insurance authority, says that very little progress has been made in the direction of the improvement of fire barriers; he says, that architects, builders and owners are inclined to disregard the provisions, which ought to be observed. The Master Builders' Association have discussed the matter and are disposed to recommend a re-organization of the department of Building Inspection, under the control of the Director of Public Safety. Complaints of defective fire-escapes are made by the hundred. The inspectors now in service think that the number should be increased to nine on regular work, and six to look after buildings already up. Other cities are better supplied, New York for instance has 33 inspectors, Brooklyn 12, and Boston 20. Inspector R. M. Bowers is very decided in his expression as to the necessity for an increased force, and he points out the danger to the city from further neglect. There are in this city 174,084 dwellings. The duties of the inspector are to see that all buildings are erected in accordance with the law, to see that suitable material is used, and that the work is properly done. They have to see to dangerous walls and supports, or rather to know if they are dangerous. The Inspectors are acting under an old law passed April 13, 1858; after a lapse of 29 years, it is certainly time that attention should be given to the greater necessities of the city. A memorial was presented last week by the allied building trades of the city to the legislature, asking that the number of inspectors be increased from 3 to 14. A bill was introduced some time ago to increase the number from 3 to 5, but under the recent agitation, that bill will be cast aside, and the last suggestion presented for action. The present districts are ridiculously large, and in view of the enormous amount of building that will be done this year, as well as the expansion that may be made from year to year, the department should be thoroughly re-organized, and expanded commensurately with the responsibility belonging to it.

A Communication.

To the Editor Real Estate Record:

DEAR SIR:—You incorrectly state in an editorial in your issue of the above date, that the origin of the Real Estate Exchange was with Jas. H. Stevenson, Esq. I desire to say that after careful deliberation, and the gathering of a mass of printed matter, and endeavoring to profit by the failure and success of Real Estate Exchanges in our own and neighboring cities, I drafted a scheme which was published in full in your valuable paper, the origin was then properly accredited to me. After a severe struggle, and being substantially aided by Jas. H. Stevenson, Esq., Henry C. Thompson, Frederick Sylvester, Geo. W. Hancock, Benj F. Teller, D. S. Lindsay, James S. Francis, THE REAL ESTATE RECORD, and other journals, that which was at first only an idea has become a practical organization, whose success is a foregone conclusion.

Yours very respectfully,
JAMES L. STEVENSON,
Of Jas. H. Stevenson & Son, S. E. Cor.
Fifth and Library.

News Items.

THE metal workers Union has organized for mutual beneficial purposes.

THE Commonwealth Title Insurance and Trust Company have increased their capital stock to $300,000.

A GOOD many applications are being received by the Board of Directors at the Master Builders' Exchange.

THE Arnholt & Schafer Brewing Company, of Philadelphia, recently chartered, will erect handsome buildings.

THE Clark manufacturing company of Buffalo, who are builders, failed for $30,000 and assigned to James E. Ford.

THE Parkesburgh Building and Loan Association of Parkesburgh, has just been incorporated with a capital of $500,000.

JACOB M. COWDIN, of Norristown, a well known real estate agent, died suddenly at that place a few days ago, aged 63 years.

GEORGE D. BOLTON, of Norristown, is president of a street car railway to be built in that place, which will be seven miles long.

ALL the stations on the Penn. railroad, within fifteen miles of the city are to be lighted with electric lights, between now and the middle of May.

WITH the flowers of spring, come a good many executions on judgments, among the small store keepers, and business men. Amounts ranging from fifty dollars up to one thousand. Apparently a great many difficulties are tied over during the winter by the giving of judgment notes, which are to be lifted in the spring.

THE Board of Surveyors at a meeting last week, listened to the friends and opponents of the closing of Penn street. The Board visited the street on Monday, but will not decide until the first Monday in May as to its closing. The sugar refining interests of that locality want the street closed, whilst the Pennsylvania Warehousing Company wish it kept open.

LABOR is disposed to take advantage of the present fine weather, and the necessities of business and employers, to strike for higher wages in several branches of industry. Should these strikes become general it will necessarily result in the throwing aside of several other important enterprises. These occurred last year, and repressed much enterprise that was anxious to manifest itself. Builders are anxious to prosecute work. Material is cheap and abundant. Opportunities are attractive, but if rates of wages are to advance ten per cent as threatened, the result will be that labor will be disemployed, and will be the sufferer.

THE City Trust Safe Deposit and Surety Company, 1321 Walnut street, is having plans and specifications made for a magnificent new building.

By auction, Messrs. M. Thomas & Son sold four acres and twenty perches, fronting on Second st., Fourth st., Moyamensing ave. and Jackson st., for $7,000.

THE house 1305 Arch street is being altered for business purposes by Cope & Stewardson, architects. The front and trimmings are to be of Indiana limestone.

THE Keystone Watch Case Co., Nineteenth and Brown, expect their factory to be finished this month. The property is six-stories high, 34 feet front by 80 deep, and cost $20,000.

THE stove firm of Diller, Caskey & Co., composed of former employees of Isaac W. Shephard & Co., have secured a lot off ground at Sixth and Berks sts. on which they are about to erect a foundry.

MESSRS. COPE & STEWARDSON, architects, have drawn plans for a stone clock tower with chimneys, which is now in course of erection at West Laurel Hill Cemetery. Cost when finished about $3,000.

THE old Market Square Church, Germantown, is to be torn down and a new building erected on its site. It is contemplated to erect a one-story building in semi-circular form, to cost from $30,000 to $40,000.

MR. GEORGE BARTOL, the sugar refiner of this city, has just completed at Spring Manor Farm, Springfield, Chester county, a very handsome tenant house, built of stone costing $3000; also a frame carriage house which cost $1400.

G. M. McCauley, of Harrisburg, is remodeling his property known as the Harris Mansion, South Second street, which was recently purchased by him.

THE following gentlemen have been elected as directors of the Camden Master Builders' Exchange: Chas. W. Johnson, Jas. F. Davis, Geo. B. Calhoun, Josiah T. Worman, Wm. L. Hendrickson, Wm. T. Mead, J. E. Roberts, N. F. Dely and Wm. T. White.

DRAWINGS are being prepared by Charles W. Boulton, of the Alexandria College and Chapel, at Burkville, Kentucky. The building is to be L shape 70x74 feet, and will be built of brick. The estimated cost is to be about $8000. The college is to occupy the site of the one recently destroyed by fire.

SEVERAL houses are to be erected at Bridgeport, Montgomery County, Pa., very shortly. The excursion ground on Fairview Heights has given the town quite an impetus. The owners of the property have placed several fine buildings on the grounds this spring.

GROUND will be broken about May 1st, for the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Mount Airy, situated at Germantown avenue, opposite Allen's Lane. The dimensions will be 100 by 50 feet and a basement, to be built of stone, the exact kind and quality not having yet been decided upon. The trimmings will be of brown stone however.

THE Friends' boardingschool at Westtown, Chester county, Pa., are adding a west wing to their already magnificent structure, which was finished about January 1st, at a cost of $150,000. The addition is being built of fine red brick, trimmed with blue stone from the Messaphian quarries. Henry Taylor, the builder, expects to finish it by November. The college will, when complete, cost $250,000.

FOUR thousand dollars have been paid by the congregation of the Market Square Presbyterian Church for the lot of ground at the corner of Chew street and Stenton avenue, Germantown. During the summer months a chapel, to cost $8,000, will be erected, plans having been prepared for that purpose. The congregation also contemplate the erection of a new church building upon the site of their old church, as before reported.

W. A. LIPPINCOTT is building one of the handsomest stores for its size in Philadelphia at 411 Arch street. It will run from Arch to Appletree street, a distance of 140 feet, with a frontage on both streets of 18 feet. A cast-iron front on each street extending one-story high. The remaining three stories to be of best press-brick on the Arch street front, and the pier-bonds, sill course and eppings, and all the trimmings to be of best red terra-cotta. Operations will begin about May 1st.

ABOUT two hundred thousand dollars will be expended this year in the laying of the foundation and the construction of a portion of the wall of the new jail. The jail will be located at Holmesburg Junction of the New York Branch of the Penna. railroad. The building will be one story and similar in design to the Eastern Penitentiary. The administration building will be three stories high, sandstone with granite facings; the hospital will be 32 by 70. In the center will be a rotunda 80 feet in diameter, 55 feet which from high, will radiate the various wards. The ten wards will contain 738 cells. Each cell will be 8 by 18 feet, and 12 feet high, lighted by skylights in the daytime, and by electricity at night. The construction will be thoroughly fire proof. The walls have brick laid in cement, the floors will be brick arches over cement foundations, and the roof of the same construction, but covered with asphalt. The walls will be 35 feet high, and without any projection to enable culprits to escape, and will be ten feet thick at the bottom, and 3½ feet at the top.

POTSTOWN High School is to be greatly enlarged this month. The addition will consist of granite base with two stories brick and stained shingle roof. The style of architecture will be colonial. All the trimmings will be of Kentucky blue stone. The cost will be nearly $16,000. Pro. Ruppert's house is also being built. The basement will be of stone with two-story brick and an attic, gables, pebble dashed.

FRANK L. & W. E. PRICE have just finished plans of a dwelling-house which will be soon erected for E. M. David, at Chestnut Hill. The property will be very unique and entirely different from any other in the neighborhood. The house to be built of stone. Facings of all walls to be rubble range with as much rock face as possible. Window sills will be Beria blue stone, and door sills of Ohio stone hammer dressed. The inside finish is to be of hard wood and red oak.

On the triangular piece of ground bounded by Ridge and Montgomery avenues and Twenty-sixth street, Jos. Lines is about to erect fifty-three brick houses, trimmings of brown stone. The houses on Twenty-sixth street will be two story with eight rooms. Three-story houses on Ridge and Montgomery avenues, several stores will be built on the Ridge. Just how many has not been decided. At the apex of the triangle a very large prominent building will be erected, this will consist of three stories also.

DURING the present year between one and two hundred houses will be built at Chiselhurst, on the Camden and Atlantic railroad 17 miles from Camden. The houses range in cost from $500 to $1,800. The place is but a little over two years old and during that period one thousand conveyances have been made. The railroad rates have not been affected by the new law and is very much in favor of travelers to that section of the country. Chiselhurst is about to be incorporated as a town.

MENTION was made some time since of the projected operations of Thornton, Merritt & Thornton. They are now building twenty-one two-story houses on Bambray street. They will consist of pre-sold brick fronts, with brown-stone trimmings—the outside bricks to be buttered. Twenty-three-story houses on Twenty-sixth street, these houses will be brown stone to first story, the remaining portion being pressed brick, brown-stone heads and sills. The inside finish is to be of hard wood. On Columbia avenue they build ten three-story houses and four stores, which will be the same as those on Twenty-sixth street. The payments will be granolithic, while the street will be paved with asphalt blocks. These houses will contain all modern improvements, especial attention being called to the drainage, which is under the supervision of an expert. The price of the houses on Bambray street is $2,500. On Twenty-sixth street, $4,500. Those on Columbia avenue, $5,500. The stores will range from $7,000 to $8,500.

A Departure in Life Insurance.

A step forward in life insurance is about to be made by the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia, by which the advantages and usefulness of life insurance will be greatly broadened. The new departure is expressly for the benefit of women. Hitherto most companies have been reluctant to issue policies to women, more particularly because of the hesitancy felt by most women to submit to a medical examination by the regular examining staff of physicians employed by the companies.
Certificates of family doctors are not received by the companies. There is certainly a large class of women who are dependent upon their own exertions for their livelihood, who are either left widows with children to support, care for and educate, or who are desirous of putting by money for their future maintenance, to whom life insurance offers the most secure and available method for making such provision.
Doctors Anna Broomall and Clara Marshall, well-known physicians of the Women's Medical College, have been chosen by the Penn Company as assistant examiners, and the company could not have made a better selection, as both of these doctors are eminently qualified to pass upon the physical soundness of any applicants for insurance. This action of the Penn Mutual anticipates what will no doubt soon become the practice in other reputable companies. The act is a meritorious one, and its advantages will be eagerly grasped by hundreds of women who have failed hitherto to insure their lives only from a sense of delicacy.—From The Philadelphia Record, April 21st.

are Machine-made, but without the defects of the old makes. They are so constructed as to be perfectly smooth and easy to the wearer. They have no tacks, nails, or wax threads inside to disturb the comfort, hurt the feet, or tear the stocking, and are superior to all other makes, except the fine, hand-made, custom shoes, which they fully equal in many respects. All kinds of Boots and Shoes are made by this process, whether "Common Sense," "Whaukenplast," or the more familiar high French heeled, narrow toed shoe. Ladies, Gentlemen, Girls, Boys and Children will find a large assortment from which to choose, according to their taste.

TO MAKE THE OUTSIDE BETTER.

An architect must of necessity be a learned man, and must know many things that he can't find in books. The quality of building material changes faster than books.

The architect knows how to specify for a good tin roof. Does he know how to obtain it? He wants the owner to be satisfied and to know that he gets the roof he pays for.

There is just one way; only one way—if it is the best tin he is after—and that is to specify—"every sheet stamped with the BRAND and THICKNESS."

The brand is "GILBERTSON'S OLD METHOD." The thickness is IC or IX.

If the tin is not stamped, you may or you may not get it. How are you to know after the roof is on? You may say it is not the proper tin. The roofer may say it is.

Our tin is a sheet of steel, covered with all the coating it will carry. You can't see through it—you can't even guess the thickness after the roof is laid.

The brand we have mentioned is guaranteed in all respects to do anything required of a first class roof—guaranteed by us to our customers, and to us by the maker—that it will stand all the tests claimed for it—and more too.

No similar guarantees are offered today by other importers with their plates—that is, guarantees that are so direct, positive or convincing.

A guarantee 'equal to something else' is no guarantee at all.

A good roof should last thirty to forty years, without any other expense than painting.

Inferior tin may last five years—often does not last that long—then the expense begins and keeps on.

The first cost of a good roof is but a trifle more than that of inferior tin—in the long run much less.

The above facts cannot be contradicted.

Builders' Items.

THE stove firm of Diller, Caskey & Co., composed of former employees of Isaac W. Shephard & Co., have secured a lot of ground at Sixth and Berks streets, on which they are about to erect a foundry.

THE old Toland property on Negley's Hill, near Wayne Junction, is shortly to be improved; two streets will be cut through at once, and it is proposed to build houses of medium size. Neither contracts or plans are out as yet. Messrs. Potter & Seymour will have the entire charge of the improvement.

B. L. COLLOM, Germantown, Phila., has received contracts for the following work: Stonework and brickwork for two brick houses for C. W. Henry, Fisher's woods; brickwork of two houses for Robt. Hamilton on Queen street; stonework and brickwork of two houses for Thos. Burns, Queen street; stonework and brickwork of a house for G. H. Davis, on Tulpehocken street; stonework and brickwork of a house for M. D. Wartman, on Meelin street; stonework and brickwork of a house for Mrs. Gazzera, on Thirtieth street, Chestnut hill; stonework and brickwork of Forrest School, at Falls of Schuylkill, 85x135, containing 1200 perch of stone, and 4,700,000 bricks.

MR. CHAS. BALDERSTON, architect, and Henry Taylor, contractor, have charge of the extensive alterations made to the Pennsylvania Club, at 1220 Walnut street. The back buildings will be torn down and new ones erected in their place. A new dining-room will be built on the second floor, 16x30-feet, connected with the kitchen by a dumb-walker. The first floor will contain toilet and coat room and kitchen. The third floor back will consist of board room, private dining and card rooms. New plate-glass windows will adorn the front as will also new doors for both entrance and vestibule, which will be tiled and wainscoted with walnut; also stained glass in and over the doors. The stairway will be altered and improved. The second floor front will be one large room with a elliptic arch in the centre. The third floor will be thrown into one room with toilet rooms situated at convenient places. The whole house will be decorated and refurnished throughout.

ST. AGNES Hospital, located at Broad and Mifflin, which was started in 1880, will probably be finished the latter part of this year. The centre building with north wing is 188 feet front by 180 feet deep. The south wing will be 70x160 feet. There are four stories to the hospital which contain one hundred and eighty rooms, which will be heated by steam, the fittings furnished by Messrs. Brogan & Smith. The corridors are of flagstone, all of which will be placed by Messrs. Conway Bros. The stairways as well as the halls being fire proof. The iron work is from the Novelty Iron Works of West Philadelphia. On the third floor is located the chapel, which will be handsomely furnished. The drainage is being placed by Mr. Wm. H. Doyle, and is being done in the most thorough and scientific manner. Electric lights will be placed in all parts of the building, which when finished, will be one of the most complete hospitals in the country. The stone used is brown stone, with granite trimmings; sun porches will be built on the side facing the west on all the four floors. The estimated cost is $250,000.

THE Theatre being erected at Broad street and Montgomery avenue, will be under the management of Messrs. Southwell & Morton; it will be called the Palace Theatre. It will front on Broad; the main entrance will be 50 feet wide by 60 feet high. The Montgomery avenue side will have twenty windows on the first floor, also four entrances. On the second floor will be thirty windows. A sash that can be moved at one time will be placed between the upper story and the roof. The floor of the parquet will be 109 x57 feet. The parquet circle will be 30 feet deep, and will occupy the East, North and South sides, forming a parallelogram with an ornamental front. The stage will be 150x50 with two tiers of boxes on each side. The balcony will have boxes on each end, they being continued from the parquet circle below. The entrance to the balcony will be from two handsome stairways on Broad street. A balcony and two large halls which can be thrown into one will be used for promenading purposes. The construction of the building will be of brick with brown-stone trimmings and iron. The inside finish will be of hard wood with magnificent decorations and furnishings. The Theatre will be crowned by a dome 90 feet high.

THE PHILADELPHIA REAL ESTATE RECORD

AND BUILDERS' GUIDE.

VOL. II.—NO. 17.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, MAY 2, 1887.

PRICE 15 CENTS.

THE PHILADELPHIA REAL ESTATE RECORD, AND BUILDERS' GUIDE, PUBLISHED EVERY MONDAY, AT 727 WALNUT STREET.

TERMS:
One Year, in advance, - - - $5 00
Six Months, " " " " " 3 00
Subscriptions for less than Six Months will not be received.

JOHN N. GALLAGHER, Prop'r.

Refers with permission to William M. Slingerly,
Proprietor of Phila. "Record."

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, MAY 2, 1887.

THE third regular sale of valuable properties by the Real Estate Exchange takes place on Monday next. The public seem to take a deep interest in these sales, as the attendance is not only large, but many familiar faces easily recognized as wealthy property owners, ready to pick up a bargain at any time, can be seen among the audience.

ANOTHER and somewhat startling innovation has recently occurred and yet it seems a wonder that it had not taken place sooner. The Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company are taking a great many risks on the lives of women and have consequently very wisely added to their staff of medical examiners Dr Anna Broome and Dr Clara Marshall, and no stronger evidence of the professional skill and science of these two American women can be given than the bare fact that one of the shrewdest and best managed life insurance companies in the country is willing to risk its capital on their professional judgment and conclusions.

BUILDERS' ITEMS.

Building and Real Estate Notes.

JACOB NICE and James Porter will build in Germantown.

THE Master Builders' Exchange is increasing in membership.

THE Carpenters and Master Builders are getting along smoothly.

J. E. & A. L. PENNOCK are making alterations to the house 2115 Spring Garden street. The house is to be torn out, and completely remodeled; also a house to be used as a store, 15 N. Thirteenth street, this will be of brick and brown-stone trimmings.

MR. CHAS. LEEDOM is building a stone house with rock-dress trimmings, the stone being from the Ward quarries. The house will be surrounded by bay and orial windows. It will also have a circular tower and slate roof. The property commands a fine view of the Delaware River. Plans made by P. A. Welsh.

A LARGE amount of building is being done this spring in Germantown and vicinity. Mr. Geo. T. Pearson, the architect, reports a stone house on Wissahickon avenue, for Mr. Thos. Jones; a double stone and brick house on Cheltenham avenue, for Mr. Henry Mason; four houses on Wingochocking terrace, for Mr. John T. Roberts, colonial style of architecture; and two pairs of stone and brick houses at Upsal Station.

SEVERAL new improvements are being built at Holmesburg, Twenty-third ward. Two houses for Mr. Chas. Stout on Holme ave., which will cost about $3,000 for the pair; Romolo Vasquez is the architect. Two also for Mr. Geo. Castor on Main street, and store and dwelling on Delaware ave.; builder, Wm. Terry.

DRAWINGS are now in course of preparation, by Jas. H. Windrim, for the new building for the Western Saving Fund at Twelfth and Walnut, the site being that of the old structure.
